'WE HAVE WON' HUGHES' FINAL WORD AS 15,000 CHEER HIM

POLL SHOWS HUGHES LEAD IN ELECTORS

Seems Sure of 270 Votes and May Receive a Total of 363.

FEW STATES DOUBTFUL

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected next Tuesday, according to the surface indications of the prevailing political sentiment in the forty-eight states.

If Wilson and Marshall should win it would be because of a much greater shifting of Republican voters to Democratic ranks in the closely contested states than has been detected by painstaking investigation.

These Democratic gains have been reduced materially in the last fortnight by a reaction in favor of Hughes and have been offset to some extent from the start by the swing of Democratic votes to the Republican national ticket.

HUGHES SURE OF 270.

THE TRIBUNE has obtained detailed reports upon the conditions in every state on the eve of the election. These reports were prepared by unprejudiced political experts whose forecasts of election results have proved reliable in the past.

There are 531 votes in the electoral college, and 266 constitute the majority necessary to election.

Analysis of the reports shows that Hughes appears to be assured of 270 votes; that he probably will receive 324 votes, and that he may receive 363 votes. Wilson is sure of 139 votes, probably will receive 168 votes, and may receive 207 votes.

ANALYSIS OF VOTES.

A summary of the analysis follows:

IN THE DOUBTFUL STATES.

In the list of states regarded as sure for Hughes there are only two which the Democratic managers seriously profess hope of carrying for Wilson. These are South Dakota with five and Utah with four votes. This hope, however, does not seem to be substantiated by THE TRIBUNE's reports.

In the list of doubtful states classed as probably Republican is Connecticut, which the Democrats have begun to lose hope of carrying. Likewise the chances of a Republican victory in Ohio and Wisconsin have improved so much in the

THE TRIBUNE'S SUGGESTIONS TO VOTERS

In order to vote any straight party ticket the voter may place a cross in the circle at the top of the column devoted to the party whose ticket he or she wishes to vote entire.

In order to vote a party ticket with exceptions in favor of certain candidates on other tickets a cross should be placed at the top of the column and also a cross in the square before the name of the candidate or candidates in other party columns for whom the voter wishes his vote to be counted.

Voters should be careful not to forget to put the cross in the circle at the head of the column, otherwise his vote will be lost in the most important contest, that for president. A cross in the circle before the word Republican at the top of the ballot, third column from the left, will be counted for Mr. Hughes without crosses in the squares before the names of the electors. A cross in the circle before the word Democratic will be counted for Mr. Wilson.

There is a Progressive column but no Progressive candidates and this circle and column should be ignored.

There is a separate ballot for women.

Following are the recommendations of THE TRIBUNE for such readers as care to consider suggestions upon the long list of candidates represented upon the blanket ballot of this important election:

For president and vice president the Republican candidates, Charles E. Hughes and Charles W. Fairbanks. Vote by placing a cross in the circle before the word Republican at the top of the third column from the left of the ballot sheet.

Women may vote for candidates for president and vice president.

For governor THE TRIBUNE recommends a vote for either the Republican candidate, Frank O. Lowden, or the Democratic candidate, Edward F. Dunne.

For secretary of state, the incumbent, Lewis G. Stevenson, Democratic candidate. THE TRIBUNE believes Secretary Stevenson deserves reëlection on the ground of good service.

For auditor of public accounts, the Republican candidate, Andrew Russel.

For state treasurer, the Democratic candidate, Arthur W. Charles.

For trustees of the university (three to be chosen), the Democratic candidates, Edward Chilton Craig and Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, and the Republican candidate, a present trustee, William L. Abbott. Women may vote for university trustees.

For representatives in congress, the Republican candidates. It is important that Mr. Hughes should have the support of a Republican congress.

For representatives in the general assembly, THE TRIBUNE advises the voter to follow the recommendations of the Legislative Voters' league, published elsewhere in THE TRIBUNE.

For state's attorney, THE TRIBUNE recommends the Socialist candidate, William A. Cunnea (fourth column from the left).

For recorder of deeds, the incumbent, Joseph F. Connery, Democratic candidate, on his record.

For clerk of the Circuit court, John W. Rainey, Democratic candidate.

For clerk of the Superior court, John Kjellander, Republican candidate.

For coroner, the incumbent, Peter M. Hoffman, Republican candidate.

For member board of assessors (full term), George K. Schmidt, Republican candidate. Women may vote for this office.

For member board of assessors (to fill vacancy), Charles Ringer, Republican candidate. Women may vote for this office.

For member of the board of review, Thomas J. Webb, Democratic candidate. Women may vote for this office.

For president sanitary board, Charles H. Sergel, Republican candidate. Women may vote for this office.

For trustees sanitary district (three to be selected), Charles H. Sergel and James H. Lawley, Republican candidates, and Thomas M. Sullivan, Democratic candidate. Women may vote.

For judge of Circuit court (to fill vacancy), Jacob H. Hopkins, Democratic candidate.

For judge of Superior court (to fill vacancy), Oscar Hebel, Republican candidate.

For associate judges of the Municipal court ten are to be chosen for the full term. They are on a separate little ballot. THE TRIBUNE recommends the return of those of the sitting judges who are running for reëlection—namely: on the Democratic ticket, Judges John R. Caverly, Harry P. Dolan, John J. Rooney, Charles A. Williams, and James C. Martin; on the Republican ticket, Judges John R. Newcomer and Hosea W. Wells.

In voting for the remaining three places THE TRIBUNE follows the Bar association primary, and recommends Wells M. Cook, John A. Swanson, and Howard Hayes, all on the Republican ticket.

For associate judge of the Municipal court (to fill vacancy), Bernard P. Barasa, Republican candidate.

On a separate "little ballot," which is not little, are presented five propositions for voters to pass upon.

The most important of these is fourth from the top on the man's ballot. It is tucked away under a mass of print and should be carefully searched out and voted upon. This is the tax amendment to the constitution, the first step in the reform of our unjust and inefficient Illinois tax system. Unfortunately, the women cannot vote upon this proposition, but all men should vote yes, regardless of party, for it is indorsed by all parties.

The three preceding propositions deal with park and library consolidation and with bond issues for sites and construction in connection with city garbage reduction and for bathing beaches, etc. Civic associations oppose these propositions on grounds previously discussed in THE TRIBUNE and which seem plausible. THE TRIBUNE recommends a vote of no on the first proposition on the ballot, the bond issue for the garbage plants, and on the third proposition on the ballot, for the consolidation of the parks, etc. THE TRIBUNE recommends a vote of yes for bathing beach bonds. Women may vote on all three.

The proposition at the bottom of the sheet, to amend the banking laws, is obscure. Vote no.

On Page 2 will be found a fac simile of the essential part of the woman's ballot and also of the Little ballot, marked according to "The Tribune's" recommendations made in the foregoing.

HUGHES AND LABOR

"The Tribune" asks the attention of its readers to an illuminating review of the record of Charles E. Hughes in respect to labor. The article, which first appeared in the Daily News yesterday afternoon, is published on page 1 of part 2 of this issue of "The Tribune." It is written by Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago, a leader in work for the betterment of the condition of women in industry.

CHICAGO HOSTS OF G. O. P. MARCH IN HUGHES LINE

Cheering Thousands View Biggest Party Parade in Years.

WATER BOMBS HURLED

The elephant of the Grand Old Party put a belligerent twist in his trunk yesterday and started out to show Chicago that he still has the same old fight in him that he had in the days before the split of 1912.

Nearly 20,000 Republicans rode and marched in the biggest political demonstration that Chicago has seen in many a campaign.

THE OFFICIAL COUNT.

Counting machines in the reviewing stand in front of the Union League club caught the number of marchers on foot at 7,849 and the number of automobiles at 1,822. Figuring six persons in a machine, the total number that rode in the parade was 10,932. On this estimate the grand total of marchers was 18,781.

A crowd estimated at half a million lined the sidewalks along the line of march. It was a demonstrative crowd that waved its hats and split the welkin with cheers.

Downtown Chicago was gayly decorated. Banners, flags, and red, white, and blue festoons made the fronts of the building as gorgeous as rainbows. Portraits of Hughes and the local Republican candidates appeared in the windows.

SOME HOT SLOGANS.

The spirit of the procession showed in the floats and slogans. On one great motor truck rode Uncle Sam in full regalia. In one hand he carried a cloth of dirty yellow.

Don't Make Me Wear This After Nov. 7.

So read the sign to which he pointed from time to time.

"We won't," was the cry that followed him along the line of march.

CANDIDATES GET CHEERS.

At the head of the parade proper rode the Republican candidates and campaign managers. Col. Frank O. Lowden, Republican nominee for governor, was in the first car, and the shouts which recognized him kept him standing with his hat off most of the time.

Twelve veterans of the civil war formed a fife and drum corps which brought storms of cheers from the throats of the men and women along the street. There were also the minute men of '76 and the revolutionary heroes, Washington, Von Steuben, Lafayette, and Kosciusko. And there was this slogan:

Baker Cooks Wilson's Goose.

And this:

Weasel Words Won't Win.

WATER "BOMBS" HURLED.

A rumor had persisted overnight that the Democrats had bought 60,000 banners inscribed with "We want Wilson" and planned to break up the parade by a counter demonstration. But there was only one troublesome incident.

Four men were arrested for throwing paper bags filled with water on the parade from windows in the Conway building, at Clark and Washington streets.

"It was a dry parade," one of them said, "and we wanted to give it some water."

The names of the jokesters were: Edward Clark, 22 years old, 4519 North Ashland avenue; Bradley Madans, 22 years old, 367 East Sixtieth street; Randall D. Collins, 22 years old, 6575 Evans avenue, and De Witt C. Showers, 23 years old, 4553 Sheridan road.

MEN CARRY FLAGS.

With this exception there was nothing to mar the occasion. There was line after line of men carrying flags. The contingents of automobiles were broken up, but the last automobile section stretched for miles with the machines in double line.

There were thousands of women in the parade. Half of the automobiles were crowded with them, carrying flags and banners. "Molly Pitcher" was the leading representative of the women. In a float, near the head of the procession she was shown swabbing out a gun.

HUGHES TO WIN, WILLCOX AVERS

Will Have at Least 100 Majority of Electoral Votes, the G. O. P. Chairman Says.

New York, Nov. 4.—In an informal statement, issued tonight, William R. Willcox, chairman of the Republican national committee, made a positive claim of victory in the election next Tuesday.

Mr. Willcox reported to Mr. Hughes that his minimum majority in the electoral college will be 100 votes and that "doubtless the majority will be much greater." Mr. Willcox gave no details in regard to the outcome in the different states.

RESULT NOT IN DOUBT.

"The result of next Tuesday's election is not in doubt nor is it a matter of uncertainty," Chairman Willcox said in his forecast. "It is not a question of rival claims. This fight has been won for the ticket of the reunited Republican party.

"After receiving reports from most of the states throughout the country it is the unanimous belief of the members of the national campaign committee that Mr. Hughes will have at least 100 majority in the electoral college, and doubtless this majority will be very much larger.

MAKES REPORT TO HUGHES.

"I have made this report to Mr. Hughes this afternoon, as it is based on reports received from all over the country.

"So far as the claims of our opponents are concerned, these extravagant claims are the invariable accompaniment of Democratic presidential campaigns. Our opponents always have elected their candidates by a large majority in the days immediately preceding the election, but they fail on election day, and they will fail lamentably on Tuesday next."

MAY RAIN ON ELECTION DAY.

Unsettled Weather in Great Lakes Region a Possibility—Fair Over Rest of Country.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—There is a possibility of unsettled weather, with rain, in the region of the great lakes next Tuesday. In nearly all other parts of the country fair weather is predicted.

CHICAGO WAGERS NEAR $1,000,000

Hughes Still Favorite at Ten to Seven—Miller and Hoyne Even.

Several hundred thousand dollars had been wagered on Hughes and Wilson and the Cook county tickets in Chicago up to last night, with Hughes remaining a strong favorite.

This was the estimate made by "Jim" O'Leary after checking up his totals following the Hughes parade yesterday and tabulating the reports from other places where thousands of dollars were left to be placed.

Hughes still reigned a 10 to 7 favorite at O'Leary's in the stockyards district when the lights were turned out in the Halsted street emporium. That is, O'Leary was putting up $10 on Hughes to $7 on Wilson.

Several large tickets are said to have been written, one of $10,000 to $7,000 on Hughes. The names of the bettors were not divulged.

Thousands Placed at Cafes.

Down in the loop district in the well known cafés thousands of dollars went down during the day at even money on the general result. A large bundle of Miller and Hoyne money also made its appearance during the afternoon.

Between $50,000 and $60,000 had been placed at Righeimer's on North Clark street at even money on Hughes and Wilson and even money on Miller and Hoyne, with a few exceptions of small bets which gave odds on Hughes, up to 6 o'clock last night.

Between $40,000 and $50,000 was still in the safe at closing time last night. Most of this was left to be placed on Hoyne and Miller.

At Smiley Corbett's Lambs cafe on Randolph street about $30,000 had been placed.

The "Wildest" Bet.

One of the "wildest" bets of the day was made by Edward Farrar, former member of the legislature. He put up $50 to $100 that Hughes would carry Cook county by 50,000 plurality over Wilson.

Smoke Inspector Dr W. H. Reid left $300 to bet even on Miller, and the Hoyne men covered that.

Still another pool of $3,875 Hoyne money was covered by the Miller men at even money.

In none of the loop places could any Dunne money be found. Odds of 2 to 1 were being offered at Righeimer's on Lowden, with no takers.

That is, Righeimer was merely handling the money as stakeholder. He was not making a book himself.

O'Leary had about $130,000 on Hughes at 10 to 7. The eleventh hour bettors are expected to swamp both O'Leary's and Righeimer's tomorrow.

WILD SCENES IN NEW YORK MARK WINDUP

Madison Square Throng Roars 35 Minutes for Nominee.

U. S. FIRST ALWAYS.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Charles E. Hughes closed his campaign for the presidency in this city tonight amid the wildest scenes he has inspired since he took the stump.

For more than half an hour in Madison Square Garden 15,000 Hughes enthusiasts rocked the building with shouts and stamping feet.

This reception was the climax of a perfect day for the nominee—a day where he had been whirled at breakneck pace through the city for five afternoon speeches and encountered friendly audiences everywhere.

PARADE "WHEEL OF FLAME."

Before the night meeting Mr. Hughes rode at the head of a great torchlight procession called a "wheel of flame," the nine "spokes" of which converged upon Fifth avenue.

Many thousands of men, each carrying a flaming torch, were in line as the processions came together, one after another. So long was the parade that it was split into two sections, one of which marched up Fifth avenue and the other up Madison avenue to the garden.

The broad avenues were filled with long ribbons of light as the Republican cohorts moved onward. Interspersed at frequent intervals were bands, which played martial and patriotic airs. The car in which the candidate rode was the only automobile in line.

WILD CHEERS GREET HUGHES.

It was just 9:15 o'clock when Mr. Hughes entered Madison Square Garden. Gov. Whitman was winding up his speech espousing the Republican cause when the nominee appeared.

Before the governor's famous whiskers came into view the crowd was on its feet, yelling as if mad, anticipating by the police and escort that the candidate was coming.

When Mr. Hughes reached the platform and stood smilingly underneath the big sounding board, the noise trebled.

Thirty thousand feet pounded in unison in one titanic pound after another, as the owners of the feet yelled and waved their flags frantically.

Five minutes of this noise passed and no abatement. Wave after wave of wild yells, the beating of flag staffs on chairs, the pounding of feet, and the noise of hand claps blended in one vast maelstrom of noise.

WAVES AMERICAN FLAG.

Mr. Hughes' secretary, Lawrence H. Green, then handed his chief a tiny American flag, which the nominee waved. His face parted in a smile that showed even beneath his whiskers. Then some enthusiast started yelling:

"Hughes! Hughes! Hughes!" in a sort of college yell. In a moment 5,000 voices took up the staccato shout in a vast crash of yells while those on the platform waved their flags in unison. This kept up for ten nerve racking minutes and then was overwhelmed by a fresh outburst of plain yells and hand claps, beside which previous noise seemed faint.

Mr. Hughes, William M. Calder, Republican nominee for senator, and Gov. Whitman stood under the big sounding board and grinned at each other, at the crowd, and then back again.

RACKET ROCKS GARDEN.

Fifteen minuets passed and still no cessation of the racket. It was ear splitting. Billows of sound rose like the waving of the flags all over the vast audience.

At 9:30 some one passed a papier maché elephant to the nominee, who smilingly held it aloft while the crowd cheered itself wild again.

Then they started in the "Hughes, Hughes, Hughes" refrain — this time every flag in the audience being waved back and forth in unison.

National Chairman Willcox, standing near Hughes, wore a broad smile. Some one pointed out to Hughes the box where Mrs. Hughes and his children were seated and the nominee waved to them.

That was the occasion for a fresh outburst that turned into another stamping bee, to noise of stamping feet echoing and reverberating like artillery fire. After twenty minutes the noise was still continuing just as strongly.

A few of the shouters began settling down in their seats at 9:35—when the demonstration had been on twenty minutes—but there was no apparent abatement in the volume of the roar. Mr. Hughes shifted from one foot to another and smiled.

At 9:38 Mrs. Hughes was ushered to the speaker's stand and stood blushingly beside her husband while the roar redoubled and rose more shrilly. Mrs. Hughes shook hands all around and smiled and smiled.

Hughes Family on Platform.

The enthusiastic boosters went over to the Hughes box and, amid a perfect pandemonium of noise, escorted the whole Hughes family to the stand—the three daughters of the nominee and his daughter-in-law. Mr. Hughes kissed the daughters, Helen, Katherine, and Elizabeth. Charles Evans Hughes Jr. was the last member of the family brought to the platform. It was apparent Mr. Hughes was greatly affected by the whole demonstration.

Twenty-eight minutes after the noise started the band swung into "Auld Lang Syne" and thousands of voices joined in a mighty chorus.

At 9:47, when the demonstration had been on thirty-two minutes, the band played "The Star Spangled Banner," and once again the crowd formed itself into a mighty chorus.

Cheer for 35 Minutes.

Then came "America." It was then 9:50, and the cheering had been on for thirty-five minutes. With the tune finished, most of the audience sat down and for the moment the noise died down perceptibly.

Then it rose again. Hughes sat down and Controller Prendergast, chairman of the meeting, rose, waiting for order. Hughes appealed with gestures for the crowd to stop.

It was 9:55 when Mr. Prendergast finally got a dead quiet and started speaking. He was stopped momentarily when a voice cried: "Cheers for Teddy!" and the crowd gave them. Then Mr. Hughes was introduced.

Blast Causes Excitement.

Only one incident marred the day. That was during the afternoon in Worth street, when a car of flashlight powder exploded within a few feet of Mr. Hughes as he sat in his automobile waiting for one of the divisions of the parade to start. It was believed at first that a bomb had been hurled at the nominee. The only persons injured, the police said, were two newspaper men, who were slightly hurt.

The nominee did not seem perturbed by the incident and smilingly acknowledged the plaudits of the crowds through which he passed as the paraders moved on.

A drizzling rain which began falling just as the parade started dampened somewhat the ardor of the street demonstration which greeted the Republican candidate, but cheering crowds lined Fifth avenue from the time he passed under the Dewey arch in Washington square.

Sees Victory on Tuesday.

"My voice is worn, but my heart is stout and my confidence is complete that we are marching to a triumphant victory next Tuesday," Mr. Hughes began in his Madison Square garden speech. "When I first heard your greeting it seemed to sound like a convention, but after a while I thought it sounded like an election.

"It has been quite apparent for some time that the American people were about to record a very decisive conviction. I think I can forecast the determination which is to be recorded next Tuesday. I believe that the American people have determined that this nation shall regain its international prestige and the rights of American citizens shall be protected throughout the world.

"While we are devoted to the interests of peace, we understand very well what are the indispensable conditions of maintaining a permanent peace. The way to preserve peace is to deserve respect. We propose that this nation shall stand erect before the world with conscious self-respect, prepared for every emergency, devoted to the ideals of justice, not the truculent nor threatening, but exhibiting firmness and consistency and an indomitable spirit which will show that we mean what we say and that we say what we mean.

People for Preparedness.

"I believe that the American people are to record in this election an expression of their opinion with respect to the necessity for proper preparation to maintain our national defense. We believe in preparedness, but we do not believe in paper preparations.

"I say to the American people that they cannot trust an administration which has permitted itself to place at the head of our great bureaus of administration men conspicuously unfit to discharge the duties thus devolved upon them.

"I think that the American people are about to record their dissatisfaction with the state of our industrial preparedness. I think that they are alive to the very serious situation in which we are placed at this time. It will not do to make light of it."

Mr. Hughes referred in detail to the situation in Europe, reiterating his conviction that a protective tariff would be necessary to aid American industry in meeting commercial competition with Europe after the war.

Is Friend of Labor.

"There has been much talk in these later days about the labor vote," he continued. "I want to say this: You cannot buy the labor vote; you cannot coerce the labor vote; you cannot frighten the labor vote; you cannot impose upon the labor vote by talking about invisible government or by any kind of vilification of motives.

"We stand here desirous to give opportunities for work, desirous to build up every agency for the American workingman. We are here as the friends of labor, because we are devoted to those policies through which alone the ideals of labor can be attained.

"We want in all our work consideration of the importance of a dominant sense of American unity. The test of Americanism is not a test of race or blood of or ancestry. The test is supreme devotion to our country, supreme love of the United States.

"If I am elected president—and I expect to be elected president—we shall have an administration which has no interests but the interests of the United States, which knows no policy but the supreme welfare of the people of the United States."

A WOMAN'S BALLOT, MARKED ACCORDING TO RECOMMENDATIONS OF 'THE TRIBUNE'

"The Tribune" reproduces herewith a facsimile of that portion of the woman's ballot which contains the full tickets of the Republican and Democratic parties. The ballot is marked in accordance with the recommendations made to voters by "The Tribune" on the first page of this issue. The circle at the head of the Republican ticket is marked with a cross. The effect of this marking in the circle is a vote for Hughes and Fairbanks and for all of the other candidates in that column, excepting where names in the other column are marked with a cross in the squares opposite their names.

The reason Mr. Abbott is specially marked for university trustee and Mr. Sergel and Mr. Lawley for drainage trustees is that otherwise it would not be known which of the six nominees for the three offices in each of these two groups the voter desired to choose. In these two cases the candidates are not running specifically against the individual opposite name.

NEW YORK CITY POLL RESULT

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—A carefully compiled estimate, made by the World as the result of an elaborate canvass of enrolled voters through the entire city, indicates a plurality for President Wilson below Westchester of 97,904.

HARRIET "LOSES HER GRIP."

Anna, Ill., Nov. 4.—Harriet Howard, Republican national committee organizer of women voters, is minus one handbag containing her correspondence, records of all descriptions, and nearly $20 in cash. She lost the handbag from the car in which yesterday she sped across the country from Greenville to Centralia, Ill.

THESE PROJECTS FACE VOTER ON LITTLE BALLOT

What Five Propositions Are and Attitude of Civic Organizations Toward Them.

In addition to the square yard of paper on which the general ballot is printed, the voter will be handed another large sheet on which appear five propositions submitted to referendum vote.

This sheet is known as the "little ballot," but the voter who reads all the finely printed text before he marks his regular ballot will find that the five minutes allotted him in the polling booth by law has disappeared before he has voted for president, governor, or state's attorney.

But it is not expected that any voter will attempt this sort of speed test. Every one of the five propositions has been discussed in the newspapers and in the numerous meetings held during the campaign. Educational work in connection with some of them has been in progress for several months. Thus the necessity for reading the entire ballot has been eliminated except for the voter who has not read the papers or attended any of the meetings where the issues have been discussed.

Big Array of Type.

The first two propositions in the column of five are the biggest in the matter of type used. They present municipal bond issues, and the law requires that the entire text of the bond ordinances passed by the city council be printed on the ballot. But following each of the ordinances is a brief statement of the purpose for which the bonds are asked.

The first of them is a proposed bond issue of $2,000,000 for the development of Chicago's garbage and waste disposal equipment. Most of this sum is asked for extension of the city's reduction plant and for the establishment of new incinerating plants. The plan was presented hastily to the city council, and because of that haste and the haziness of the plans every civic organization that has gone on record on the subject has opposed these bonds.

Opposition to Second.

Some opposition has been expressed to the second municipal bond issue—$2,450,000 for beaches, natatoriums, and playgrounds. This criticism was based on the attitude of the Thompson administration toward the committee on parks, playgrounds, and bathing beaches, whose authority to expend money has been questioned by the law department. In spite of this action the committee unanimously has indorsed this proposition and it has received city wide support—on the north and south sides because of the proposed enlargement of their beaches and on the west side because of the promise of swimming and recreational facilities in the natatoriums and community centers planned for that section.

The third proposition is the question whether Chicago shall adopt the park consolidation bill, concentrating in the municipal corporation all the powers and duties of the park boards, the library board, and the board of directors of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium.

Mayor's Action Criticized.

Mayor Thompson had this question placed on the ballot by petition. His action has been criticised and the voters have been advised by the civic organizations to oppose placing the park patronage and contracts at the disposal of the Thompson-Lundin organization. The mayor himself has issued a statement saying he has not asked the voters to approve this proposition—that he caused it to be submitted merely as a duty.

None of the criticisms directed at these first propositions has hit the fourth and fifth. General support has been given both of them.

The fourth one presents a constitutional amendment for tax reform. This amendment provides for the classification of personal property for the purposes of taxation. The Civic Federation and other organizations have battled for this amendment for years and predict its passage by a large vote.

The fifth, last, and shortest of the propositions has been discussed but little. It presents an amendment to the general banking law which would prohibit a state bank from selecting a title closely similar to that of a bank already in existence.

URGE VOTES FOR TAX CHANGE

Resolutions pledging each ward and country town committeeman in Cook county to do all in his power to bring about the adoption of the proposed amendment relating to personal property taxation and to instruct the party workers at the polls to call the attention of all voters to the position of the amendment on the men's proposition ballot were adopted by the Democratic managing committee yesterday. The Republican county committee has taken the same action, and, with the efforts of the various civic and business organizations, the amendment is expected to receive a heavy affirmative vote in spite of the fact that it is in fourth place—next to the last—on the men's "little" ballot, which this year is two feet long.

CHICAGO G. O. P. PARADES AND CHEERS FOR HUGHES

and a large poster over the float read: "Molly Pitcher was not too proud to fight."

Nearly Two Hours Passing.

The parade started at 2:10. It ended at 4:45. It was continuous for two hours and thirty-five minutes. It took an hour and forty minutes to pass a given point.

It mobilized in Grant park. The line of march was from Grant park into Michigan boulevard at Van Buren street, then to Washington street, to La Salle, to Monroe, to State, to Jackson boulevard, to Market, where the parade was dismissed.

Six brass bands were stationed at conspicuous corners and played continuously. More than twenty other bands marched.

Six hundred policemen guarded the line of march. Traffic was stopped. Street cars were barred from the loop. North side cars turned back at Randolph street; south side cars at Van Buren; west side cars at Fifth avenue.

Healey Gets Cheers.

Chief of Police Healey, in command of a platoon of mounted police, headed the parade. Behind the police came automobiles carrying Frank O. Lowden, Mayor Thompson, and candidates for state and county offices. Chief Healey was cheered lustily.

As the candidates came into view the crowd would shout: "What's the matter with Lowden?" "What's the matter with Harry B. Miller?" "What's the matter with Medill McCormick?" "What's the matter with Billy Mason?" Then would come the answer, "They're all right!" in a shout that boomed like thunder.

Floats Make Hits.

The floats embodied clever ideas and registered tellingly with the crowd.

The float of the Hamilton club, its white horses driven by Uncle Sam, properly clothed in the star spangled banner, displayed an elephant symbolical of the grand old party, while in the shadow of the rampant beast reposed little Miss Columbia among her flags.

On another float destitution was pictured by a ragged, haggard boy. The inscription was:

"Flour $11 a barrel; eggs 43 cents a dozen. Result of the Democratic promise to reduce the high cost of living."

On the float of the Thirty-third ward—Harry B. Miller's ward—were a bear and a goat in cages. The descriptive blazon was: "Teddy is for Hughes; he's a bear." That explained the bear. One was privileged to do his own guessing regarding the goat.

The thrilling old picture, "The Spirit of '76," was metamorphosed into flesh and blood in the persons of three young men who, in knickerbockers and pigtails, portrayed the heroic battle trio. A banner borne in front read: "They were not too proud to fight."

Some Racy Banners.

Hundreds of printed slogans borne aloft kept the crowd merry. These were the outgrowth of a prize contest held by the Hughes Business Men's league under whose auspices the parade was given. Here are some of these terse and humorous epigrams:

America first; Hughes next; Wilson never again.

What started the soup kitchens of 1913-'14? Ask dad; he knows.

Peace with Mexico has cost more lives than the Spanish war.

Don't paint the White house yellow.

I didn't raise my boy to be a sissy.

Wilson's policies in 1913-'14 kept us out of work.

Who's who in America? Hughes.

Weasel words are good for rabbits, but not for American voters.

1898—The Rough Riders were not too proud to fight.

There's no yellow in our flag; its hues spell Hughes.

Wilson's policy: "We surrender to everybody."

Hughes—The laboring man's best friend: a vote for him means permanent prosperity.

Thank God for Carranza; he kept us out of Mexico.

We want an eagle, not a canary bird.

Do you think Washington was a bandit?

Good-by, schoolmaster.

Hamilton Club a Hit.

The most spectacular section of the parade was that in which several thousand members of the Hamilton club marched. Each of the twelve men in each of the serried ranks carried a red, white, and blue umbrella and from his lapel dangled a huge white pasteboard elephant.

The Cowboy Punch.

Over the cow punchers from the stock yards floated this banner:

Stockyards men for Hughes and Lowden.

One of the horsemen bore another slogan aimed at those "Too proud to fight." It read:

1898—The Rough Riders were not too proud to fight.

Scattered through the parade were automobiles bearing the purple, white and gold of the National Woman's party, urging voters to cast their ballots against Wilson and proclaiming the Blackstone theater meeting to be held tonight.

Large black ink bottles mounted on long sticks bore the words: "Our New Flag."

Placards read: "Hughes and Right; Wilson and Write."

Another favorite was: "Too Much Wilson—That's All."

After the ward clubs came automobiles—and automobiles—and automobiles. It seemed an endless procession. Electric horns shrieked. Radiators steamed. Passengers and onlookers shouted. Flags waved. And still they came, scores and scores of them, and then the count began going by hundreds. Every automobile was loaded to the running boards with men and women.

It was Hughesday also in Evanston. Hundreds of machines, flag draped and covered with the Republican candidate's banners, were in the big parade which all Evanston shut up shop and home to see. Mayor Harry P. Pearson was marshal of the parade and was assisted by Perkins B. Bass, James A. Patten, and Joseph E. Paden as grand marshals.

Many women drove machines in the parade, some estimates placing the feminine contingent as high as one-third of the turnout. Among the women who took part were Mrs. Wirt Humphrey, Mrs. Howard T. Wilcoxen, Mrs. William Sherman Carson, and Mrs. Eugene H. Barnett.

VOTE "YES" ON TAX PROPOSAL, SPONSORS URGE

Illinois Special Commission Sends Out Appeal Not to Forget.

The Illinois special tax commission sent out a bulletin yesterday urging voters to pay particular attention to the tax amendment proposition on the "little ballot."

No actual concerted opposition to the amendment to the state constitution is expected. Negligence of the voters, it is pointed out, is the only thing that will prevent a complete revision of the tax laws of the state. Failure to vote the referendum propositions, they say, is just as dangerous to its success as voting against it.

On the ballots prepared for the Chicago voters—men only—the tax amendment proposition appears in fourth place. Outside of Chicago it appears in first place on the little ballot. The special tax commission urges all voters to mark "yes" in the square.

Means Up to Date Tax Laws.

A favorable vote on the tax amendment, it is pointed out, will amend the antiquated state constitution and bring it up to date. It will put Illinois in the same class on taxation matters with more progressive states, of which Minnesota is given as an example.

It costs more to tax a man's watch and collect the tax than the tax is worth. To tax bank deposits would cause runs on banks, so the taxing boards don't do it. The effort of finding who owns stocks and bonds is so great that most of the holders are allowed to escape paying any tax whatever.

Realty Bears Brunt.

The result of this antiquated system, the tax experts say, is that such tangible things as real estate must bear the burden of the tax for all. The poor man's home pays the tax which the rich man's bonds did not pay.

Under the tax amendment the system will be changed. New taxing laws can be made and changed by the legislature to fit modern industrial and commercial conditions. Rates and methods can be worked out for taxing the stocks and bonds of the rich. Small personal property which is not worth the trouble of taxing can be ignored. Tax rates can be lower because more people will be paying taxes. Tax dodging, so the commission thinks, will become almost a thing of the past.

Strike a Blow For Your Own Interests

Protection from official abuse, extortion and impositions can best be won by making it known that we will stand by our friends in office.

Our natural guardian in Springfield is the Secretary of State. In that office we demand Service, Industry, Competence and Courage. We have had all in LEWIS G. STEVENSON, who is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket.

Advice on this subject which you can depend upon is given by the manufacturers who built your cars, the dealers who sold you your cars, the periodicals which speak for your welfare and the organizations which work for your interests. Read what they say:

Help Protect Yourself

We, the undersigned, without regard to political affiliation, endorse Secretary of State Lewis G. Stevenson for re-election, believing that in so doing we are assisting those who have taken the initiative and leadership in legislative matters pertaining to the Automobile, Public Safety and the building of Good Roads, etc.

The United States Government, at the request of and under the direction of Mr. Stevenson, conducted an investigation of gasoline pumps, with the result that 82% of the pumps and measuring devices used in Chicago and throughout the State were found to give short measure, which represented a loss to the motorists of over a MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR. A State Weights and Measures department under the direction of such a man as Lewis G. Stevenson would stop this illegal practice.

The enormous growth of the Automobile Industry demands the service of an efficient and experienced man of the type Mr. Stevenson has shown himself to be.

WE FAVOR HIS RE-ELECTION

COLONEL WINDS UP CAMPAIGNING IN CONNECTICUT

Roosevelt Talks to Big Crowds in Bridgeport—Rips Into Democratic Policies.

BY J. P. YODER.

[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 4.—In zip and sting, typically Rooseveltian style, Col. Roosevelt delivered his Hughes campaign valedictory here tonight in a speech to 3,500 persons at the Armory and to an overflow meeting of 10,000 outside. Despite a downpour throughout, 40,000 lined the streets for the parade.

It caused the colonel a good laugh to see "W. W." in big silver letters on the uniforms of bandsmen in front of his auto. He pointed it out and was assured the initials stand for "Wheeler & Wilson's band."

The colonel was introduced by Senator George McLean as the "greatest American known from the River of Doubt to Mount Zion."

Urges Capital and Labor on Par.

Roosevelt opened with a plea for "capital and labor on a par." He declared "party organizations must make room for the farmer and the workingman."

Just before the colonel began, three men, costumed as characters in the "Spirit of '76," entered, bearing banners reading, "Washington heroes compared to Villa's bandits. There'll be no Baker in Hughes' cabinet."

Roosevelt leaped to his feet and clapped his hands and yelled "Hurrah! Hurrah!" This brought down the house.

"We must recognize that big business must be regulated, that its promoters must receive ample reward for their efforts, and workingmen ample wa[illegible] for work," he said.

He scored the Democratic tariff, saying the removal of the sugar tariff made $100,000,000 profit for the sugar trust and smashed a hundred small growers.

Warns of Industrial Warfare.

Roosevelt painted a gloomy picture of "industrial cataclysm to follow the end of the war, if Wilson is reëlected."

"You'll only get the food elocution can provide," he said. "We are bound to have suffering and struggles due to change, whoever is elected, but you will minimize the hardships if you elect Hughes."

Scoring Democratic business methods, Roosevelt charged that the United States treasury balance is kept up "only by adroit juggling."

Turning to Americanism and preparedness, he quoted comic poetry in describing Secretary Daniels, saying:

"So in amity befitting
A community of nuns
We are sitting at our knitting
On the twelve inch guns."

Despite a quiet tip that there are 2,500 German voters in Bridgeport, Roosevelt mercilessly hammered the hyphenates.

CANVASS BY NEW YORK SUN SHOWS HUGHES WILL WIN.

Finds Majority of Electoral Votes Assured—Poll by New York Herald Indicates Wilson Victory.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Sun tomorrow will present a summary of political conditions in all the states on the eve of election. It says: "On the face of these reports Mr. Hughes would appear to have the better of it. The states which seem to be pretty surely in the Republican column have a total electoral vote of 280. Against this Mr. Wilson would seem to be sure of only 154 votes."

The Herald will announce tomorrow morning that a nation-wide straw vote it has been taking indicates a total of 307 electoral votes for Wilson and 224 for Hughes. In its summary the Herald says: The situation rests on a balance so delicate that a hair's weight may swing it in either direction."

Ohio Poll Favors Wilson.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—The Dispatch poll, covering eighty-two of Ohio's eighty-eight counties: Wilson, 43,748; Hughes, 29,807. The Dispatch predicts on this result that Wilson will carry Ohio by more than 100,000.

MAYOR DETAILS "INSIDE" OF CAR STRIKE AWARD.

Declares Hoyne Could Have Given Men Nothing if He, as Umpire, Had Not Made the Award.

Mayor Thompson made further revelations concerning the "inside story" of the arbitration of the street car men's strike a year ago.

"I was the umpire and Maclay Hoyne was the men's representative and no matter what Maclay Hoyne, as the representative of the men, demanded he could not get it without my O. K.," said the mayor.

"On the other hand, suppose that the companies' representative had declared himself in favor of a wage increase of ¼ of 1 per cent per hour. Suppose the umpire had approved that, then where would Mr. Hoyne have been and what would have happened to the men with the fearless one standing alone?

"As Mr. Hoyne says, it is true that James M. Sheean left the conference saying the figures I had compiled would put the companies in bankruptcy.

"I wrote the figures which were afterward included in the award and Hoyne merely did the detail work of making the award a legal document."

Mrs. Thurber's Will Filed.

The will of Mrs. Martha C. Thurber, widow of W. Scott Thurber, founder of the Thurber Art galleries in Michigan avenue, was filed yesterday. Mrs. Thurber left her property, valued at $10,000, to her two daughters, Mrs. Harriet T. Sweet, 3727 Grand boulevard, and Mrs. Aimee T. Wessells of Atlanta, Ga., and her two grandchildren, Marjorie and Thurber Sweet.

WOMEN TO MAKE FINAL APPEAL

Mrs. Harriot S. Blatch to Talk Tonight at Blackstone Theater.

Apparently confident that their efforts have sealed the doom of Woodrow Wilson in several of the "doubtful" suffrage states, members of the National Woman's party will hold their last mass meeting of the campaign tonight at the Blackstone theater. Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch will deliver the principal address.

In addition to making the speech of the evening Mrs. Blatch will appeal by long distance telephone to the women in the twelve suffrage states to cast their votes against Wilson because he "kept us out of suffrage." Mrs. Blatch reached Chicago yesterday after trips through the western suffrage states.

Sees Swing to Hughes.

"I was particularly impressed by the number of women responding to the call of the National Woman's party," she said. "This number includes many independent voters and also thousands of Democratic women. Hordes came to me after every meeting to say they were convinced President Wilson should be defeated because of his opposition to national woman's suffrage.

"There were clear indications that the Democrats are taking the Woman's party seriously. They sent men and women to our meetings to heckle us. The Democratic national committee got out a leaflet aimed against Mr. Hughes, but it has given me a great opportunity to make the contrast between Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wilson on suffrage.

It is true that Mr. Hughes, while governor of New York, did refuse to receive a delegation of suffragists at first, but a month later he did receive they, whereas while Wilson was governor of New Jersey he would never see a delegation of suffrage workers, absolutely ignored telegrams and letters, and gave out that the question was unimportant and a negligible one."

Satisfied with Campaign.

The official statement from the party headquarters yesterday follows:

"The National Woman's party is satisfied that its campaign has been a success. We are certain that its influence will be felt in all the twelve equal suffrage states and that in a number of them the woman's vote will be the deciding factor. The response of the women of the west to the appeal of the National Woman's party to 'vote against Wilson' has been most generous."

URGES SMALL SCHOOL BOARD

Russell Sage Foundation Director Outlines Model Law Before Council Committee.

Leonard P. Ayres, director of the educational department of the Russell Sage foundation, yesterday gave an outline of a model board of education law before the city council committee on schools. Such a law, according to Mr. Ayres, should provide for a small board of education, preferably seven, to be elected by the people for a three year term. It should also provide, he said, that all employés who have served a three year probationary period should be given permanent tenure of office. Mr. Ayres thought the secretary of the Chicago board should be made a clerk subordinate to the business manager and his $10,000 salary reduced accordingly.

THE WOMAN VOTE

Nearly 3,700,000 Are Qualified to Cast Ballots for President on Tuesday.

ONE of the bewildering factors in forecasting results next Tuesday is the woman vote. At that time the women of twelve states of voting age—some 3,665,000—will have the right to vote for president. Even if only 3,000,000 cast ballots it will be the largest number of women that ever voted in the world's history.

Based on the last census [1910] the woman vote in the twelve states is as follows:

Illinois	1,567,491
California	671,386
Kansas	438,934
Colorado	213,425
Washington	277,727
Oregon	168,323
Arizona	43,891
Montana	81,741
Idaho	69,818
Utah	85,729
Wyoming	28,840
Nevada	18,140
Total	3,663,445

South Dakota, West Virginia, and Iowa will vote on the question of extending the suffrage to women Tuesday. South Dakota has had school suffrage for women since 1887.

YOUNG WOMEN LEAD CHASE FOR BURGLAR AT MODISTE'S.

Robber Distances Them, but Sewing Machine Agent Is Arrested Later as Suspect.

Two young women led an unsuccessful chase of several blocks yesterday after a burglar who had entered and stolen jewelry, silverware, and money from the home of their employer in the rear of a millinery shop at 2868 Milwaukee avenue.

The young women are Miss Helen Bernstein of 8640 North St. Louis avenue and Mrs. Dina Anderson of 5016 Byron street, both employed by Mrs. A. Hendrickson, modiste and milliner.

Benjamin H. Loomis of 144 North Paulina street was arrested later. He is a canvassing salesman employed by the Singer Sewing Machine company. He denies the charge. The police assert, however, that spoons, a safety razor, and other of the stolen articles were found in his possession.

SUFFRAGE VOTE NEAR 1,300,000

Harriet Vittum Predicts That Majority Will Be for Hughes.

Miss Harriet Vittum, manager of the women's department, Republican national headquarters, in Chicago, has given out some figures in regard to the women's vote of Illinois. In discussing the vote she said:

"This is the first time in six of the western states for women to cast their vote for president of the United States. Everywhere women are taking the keenest interest and undoubtedly they will vote in great numbers. We have figured that women in these states will cast about 80 per cent of the vote of the men in the same states at the last presidential election.

Vote of 1,284,613.

"Figuring on this percentage we will have this year a new vote of 1,284,613. This is the largest increase of intelligent voters ever made at one time to the electorate of this country. At the last presidential election there were six states in which women voted. These women cast a vote of 1,016,512. The total vote of the women now enfranchised is thus somewhat more than 2,250,000 and from that number 500,000 women's votes are expected from Illinois alone.

"Some weeks ago, in order to find out just where the Wilson votes might be looked for, I determined to make a poll of the women through the medium of the women's clubs of the state. Club presidents have been most gracious in their response and dozens of clubs from every part of the state have been heard from.

Clubs for Hughes.

"Taking thirty-five clubs, which represent every part of the state and in which 1,176 votes were cast, 720 were for Hughes and 456 for Wilson. Nine of these clubs are Chicago clubs and they give Mr. Hughes 206 votes against 127 for Mr. Wilson. In twenty-five clubs from various parts of down state the vote stands 502 for Mr. Hughes and 266 for Mr. Wilson.

"The Wilson has kept us out of war cry which has been raised especially to get women was successful at first, but when the women had a chance to think this over quietly a reaction set in and this was strengthened by the published statement of the judge advocate of the army, who said that 'instead of being in peace, we are actually in a state of war.'

$3,000,000 BET

Brokers in Wall Street Estimate That as Amount Which Will Change Hands in New York City.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The disposition of most Wall street bettors on the presidential election today was to await publication of the final newspaper polls tomorrow before further action. However, quite a large amount of money was placed on the curb at the prevailing odds of 10 to 7 on Hughes, with many Wilson people offering 6½ to 10 to 7 on their candidate. It is estimated that fully $50,000 was staked, which is comparatively large for a Saturday just prior to election.

One of the principal Wall street betting commissioners today figured that in New York City alone not less than $3,000,000 has been bet on the general result and 75 per cent of this had been placed in Wall street.

Outside of today's betting on the presidential result the most interesting development in the financial district was the betting on Ohio. One curb commissioner offered $10,000 at 6 to 5 that Wilson will carry the state, but only succeeded in placing $1,200 against $1,000. Another commissioner, just at the close of business, bet $1,000 to $800 on the same proposition, the Waldorf crowd taking the Hughes end of the wager.

Odds of 5 to 3 were offered that Hughes will carry New York state, while even money was bet that he will not get 100,000 plurality. Another wager of $300 against $1,000 was made that Hughes will carry New York, Indiana, and New Jersey. A wager was made of $2,000 against $5,000 that Wilson will not receive 75,000 plurality in Greater New York, while 6 to 5 was freely offered that the president will carry Kings county.

PUSH EMBARGO ON WHEAT.

Master Bakers Use Signs in Hughes Parade to Promote Plan of Action by Congress.

B. H. Dahlheimer, president of the Chicago Master Bakers' association, got in a few punches for the wheat embargo idea yesterday while the Hughes parade was in progress.

He, in company with several other bakers, rode in autos in the parade, bearing large banners demanding an embargo on wheat exports to Europe.

Chicago congressmen have been so hard to find that the committe of the bakers' association has as yet been unable to get any definite opinions from them on the embargo proposition.

NEXT CONGRESS LIKELY TO SEE POWER DIVIDED

House Pretty Sure to Be Republican—Democrats Have Shade for the Senate.

BY ELISHA HANSON.

The Republicans will probably gain control of the next house of representatives by a margin of from fifteen to thirty votes, and have a chance, though a slim one, to capture the senate by a majority not greater than two.

The election of a republican house has been practically conceded for a number of weeks, but the outcome of the fight for the senate will be in doubt until all of the votes are counted in the thirty-two states which are to elect thirty-three senators.

A landslide for Hughes, with an overwhelming popular vote, would give him control not only of the house but of the senate. On the other hand, a landslide for Wilson in all likelihood would overcome the big gains made by the Republicans in the campaign for the house and insure Democratic control of both branches of congress for the next two years. Only a Wilson landslide can preserve the house for the Democrats, according to most conservative estimates.

Present Status in Senate.

At the present time the senate consists of fifty-five Democrats, forty Republicans, and one vacancy, while the house is made up of 227 Democrats, 199 Republicans, three Progressives, one independent, one Socialist, one Prohibitionist, one progressive protectionist, one progressive Democrat, and one vacancy.

As the campaign for the next house now stands, the election of 226 Republicans and 185 Democrats seems assured, landslides excepted. Also one Prohibitionist and one Socialist will pull through. Twenty-two districts throughout the country are in doubt. The Republicans, with 226 places seemingly safe, have more than a majority. The election of 218 members will give them control of the house by one vote.

Chances in House.

The Republicans will obtain control of the next house by making slight gains throughout the country. In only one of the larger northern states does there appear likelihood of a loss to their present membership. That is Ohio, where there is a possibility that the Democrats will make a net gain of two. There are now thirteen Republicans and nine Democrats in the Ohio delegation. By reason of peculiar local conditions it seems likely that the next delegation will be divided equally between the two parties.

In Illinois the Republicans will gain from two to five congressmen. The present delegation consists of ten Democrats and seventeen Republicans. All of the sitting Republicans seem certain of reëlection. Reports from the Fourteenth district indicate the defeat of Congressman Tavenner, Democrat, by W. J. Graham, Republican. William E. Williams, the present Democratic congressman at large, will also be defeated, as both Medill McCormick and William E. Mason, the Republican candidates, appear certain of victory.

Buchanan May Be Beaten.

In Chicago, the Seventh district, now represented by Buchanan, is in doubt. Niels Juul has made a strong campaign and has been ably assisted by the Republican congressional campaign committee. In the Eighth district a hard fight has been made by Frank Sullivan against Congressman Gallagher, but the chances appear to favor Gallagher.

Down state, Congressmen Stone of the Sixteenth and Foster of the Twenty-third, Democrats, are having hard fights. Late reports indicate the Sixteenth district is about a standoff between Stone and Clifford Ireland, the Republican candidate, and the Twenty-third is a little in favor of Foster over Henry C. Ferriman of Robinson.

Outlook in Indiana.

Indiana will send an increased Republican membership to the next congress. There are now eleven Democrats and two Republicans in the Indiana delegation. The situation in the state is so chaotic that seven places are in doubt. The Republicans appear certain of three and the Democrats only of three.

The present makeup of the Iowa delegation is ten Republicans and one Democrat. The next delegation will be the same, or else eleven Republicans.

The Michigan delegation will probably remain as now constituted, eleven Republicans and two Democrats. The Republicans concede the reëlection of Congressmen Beakes and Doremus and insist all eleven of their candidates will win.

Socialists in Wisconsin.

The Republicans may capture one or two Democratic seats in Wisconsin and still gain no votes. The Socialists are making a strong bid in Milwaukee for the places now held by Congressmen Stafford and Cary, Republicans. In 1910 they defeated Stafford and almost beat Cary. In 1912 and 1914 the Democrats and Republicans fused against the Socialists and the congressmen won. This year the Democrats refused to fuse, and there are three candidates in each district, with the chances slightly in favor of the Socialists.

The Republicans will probably sweep Kansas, according to latest reports. There are now six Democrats and two Republicans in congress from that state. The Republicans appear certain of seven of the new members and to have the better chance in the Kansas City district for the eighth.

Missouri will probably give two or three additional Republican congressmen—one in the First district, another in St. Louis, and possibly one more from the Hensley, Shackleford, Hamlin, or Decker districts. These four were strong anti-preparedness men in the last session and their constituents are going after them strong.

Work Hard for Senate.

With the house in their grasp, the Republicans during the last week have redoubled their energies in an effort to win the senate. At the present time the senate has fifty five Democrats, forty Republicans, and one vacancy. In the Maine election Senator Johnson, a Democrat, was beaten by Col. Fred Hale, so that the basis of computing the next senate is fixed at fifty-five Democrats and forty-one Republicans. In order to win the senate, the Republicans must get at least eight more seats. In order to tie it, throwing the balance of power in the hands of the vice president, they must win seven.

Where are they going to get them?

Thirty-three senators are to be elected in thirty-two states—Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Indiana (2), Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Sure to Make a Change.

These states at present furnish the senate eighteen Democratic and fifteen Republican senators. The Republicans will gain senators in New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, and Ohio, and two in Indiana. There is every likelihood they will lose one in Delaware, giving them a net gain of five. If they do not win any others, the makeup of the next senate then will be fifty Democrats and forty-six Republicans.

In order to tie the senate the Republicans must win two senators in the doubtful states, and in order to control it they must win three senators from the doubtful states. These states are Arizona, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, and Nevada. It is conceded off hand that the Democrats will reëlect senators in Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia. Also it is conceded that Republican senators will be chosen to succeed Republican senators in California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, and Washington.

There is some doubt concerning the election of Republicans to succeed Republicans in New Mexico, Wyoming, and Wisconsin.

Where Republicans See Chance.

Taking the states in which the Republicans must win two to tie and three to control, providing they hold their own in New Mexico, Wyoming, and Wisconsin, their chances appear best in Maryland, Nebraska, Montana, and Arizona.

In Nebraska, Senator Hitchcock, the Democratic candidate for reëlection, is being opposed by the Bryan wing of the party. Bryan has refused to indorse him and Bryan's brother, Charles W. Bryan, is openly opposing him. Hitchcock's friends admit he will run behind President Wilson. The wet and dry issue is a burning one in Nebraska this year and Hitchcock is being supported by the wets irrespective of party affiliations. It is his hope that the support accorded by wet Republicans will more than offset the defection of Bryan Democrats. John L. Kennedy, the Republican candidate, has made an excellent campaign. Republicans assert he will run far ahead of the ticket and predict his election, irrespective of the outcome of the presidential contest.

The fight in Montana is between Senator Myers, the present Democratic incumbent, and former Congressman Charles N. Pray. It is exceedingly close. The Republicans are looking to the women's vote to win for Pray.

In Arizona, Ashurst is being opposed by Joseph H. Kibbey, the strongest Republican in the state. The senator's record is a bad one in small matters—such as the abuse of his franking and telegraph privileges. The Republican candidate has made much of this.

Calder Sure to Win.

Now with respect to the states where Republican gains seem certain. In New York William M. Calder, the Republican nominee, is opposed by William F. McCombs, former chairman of the Democratic national committee. Senator O'Gorman, the present Democratic senator, declined a renomination. McCombs' nomination was particularly displeasing to Mr. Wilson and it is predicted he probably will lead the Republican ticket in New York and win over McCombs anywhere from 100,000 to 150,000.

In New Jersey there is a similar condition of factional strife in which an anti-Wilson Democrat is running for the senate. He is Senator James E. Martine. J. S. Frelinghuysen, the Republican candidate, won his nomination in a hard campaign from former Gov. Franklin Murphy. Unlike the Democrats, however, the Republicans have united firmly.

In Indiana the trend has all been to the Republicans during the last few weeks. Senators Kern and Taggart, Democrats, are being opposed by Harry S. New, former Republican national committeeman, and James E. Watson, former congressman. Of the two Democrats, Taggart appears the stronger, and of the two Republicans Watson the weaker. If the vote on the presidency is closely in favor of Hughes, Taggart may possibly beat Watson. If the predicted 25,000 or 30,000 majority for Hughes results, however, Watson will unquestionably pull through on his coat tails.

Du Pont Family Fight.

The weakest place in the country for the Republicans, so far as the senate is concerned, is Delaware. Senator Henry A. Du Pont was fought for a renomination by his cousin, Alfred I. Du Pont. The senator won out, but the A. I. Du Pont faction is openly supporting the Democratic candidate, Judge J. O. Wolcott. The whole Du Pont family is mixed up in the row, and the senator appears to be in for a beating unless the Hughes vote is large enough to pull him through. That it will be so is generally doubted in Republican circles.

Held on Twelve Theft Charges.

Paul Pinkney, alias Frank Smith, colored, who escaped from the Fiftieth street police station a week ago, was held to the grand jury in $12,000 bonds on twelve charges of burglary by Judge Gemmill yesterday.

RULE BY PEOPLE OR BY GROUP IS AT ISSUE: WILSON

G. O. P. Victory Means Trusteeship Under Big Business, President Says.

The New York World tomorrow will print the following interview with President Wilson:

BY HENRY N. HALL.

"Undoubtedly the great issue to be decided on Nov. 7, an issue on which rests the future happiness of the American people, is whether this country is to go backward under the Republican party to a form of government by trustees and resume methods that it deliberately rejected four years ago, or whether it is to go forward along its present lines of government by public opinion."

President Wilson made this summary of his views at the conclusion of an interview in which he discussed the issues of the campaign.

Two Ideas of Government.

"I don't like to draw distinctions between groups or classes of my fellow countrymen," he continued, "but it must be evident to every one that there are two very sharply contrasted ideas of government in this country.

"One is that only those are qualified to direct the government who have been, in a large way of business, a success, and that the only safety for the country is in constituting such persons trustees of the prosperity of the rest, leaving it to their generosity and sense of their own advantage to share their material success to a certain extent with those whose interests they profess to be safeguarding.

"This has been so patent in the matter of the tariff as to be almost amusing, the idea there having been that if a few privileged manufacturers and investors were allowed to write the tariff schedules they would see that the rest of the population profited by the results as much as it was wise for them to profit without increasing wages overmuch or letting the power that comes with success spread to too large a number of persons.

Have Not Deceived Public.

"I am willing to believe that these people have deceived themselves, but I am also very confident that they have deceived nobody else and that the country now understands very clearly that in the election of this year we are to decide whether we will resume government under guardians or continue government by public opinion.

"I say this very deliberately and without any desire to impugn the motives of those who have represented and advocated the older ways of control of the people's affairs, and yet, in view of the unprecedented bitterness of the present campaign and the apparent recklessness in the statement of fact and motive, I cannot avoid the impression that some unhandsome passion underlies the present struggle of the Republican leaders for office and power.

"They are evidently after something other than the approval of public opinion. They manifest a personal eagerness and passion which it is difficult to associate with disinterested views of public policy or with any calm and just consideration of the interests of the nation as a whole."

Guided by Public Opinion.

I asked Mr. Wilson whether, when action commended itself to him, he submitted it to the test of public opinion, in other words, whether public opinion was the star by which he guides his course.

"Public opinion, the will of the people," he replied, "is certainly the standard by which I have sought to be guided, though every man who tries to lead a party or promote a policy must realize, as I have realized, how difficult it is to be sure that he is putting the right interpretation on public opinion.

"I have always thought it safe to proceed on the assumption that the people would not wish the merely expedient or profitable thing done, but that they would wish the big thing done, the thing which was generous and honest and right and for the interest of the whole country, and that the people would wish always to be sure that the interests of the nation as a whole were being safeguarded in every possible way.

Cites Preparedness Sentiment.

"I can illustrate the idea best by an example. I was perfectly confident when congress was in the earlier stages of discussing the program of preparedness that the people of the country wanted the nation to be prepared to meet any emergency, whether of action or of self-defense, but I found many of my associates in Washington questioning the approval of public opinion for a program as extensive as that proposed. I was told, in particular, that the people of the middle west were not in favor of it. I replied, 'Of course I cannot say for them that they are, but I'll go out and find out.'

"I therefore went out and spoke in a number of cities of the middle west for the purpose of stating just what I understood the dangers and necessities of the present situation to be, so far as the United States was concerned, and what measures I thought out to be taken to meet any possible emergency, and the thing that I expected happened.

"Such opposition to a program of preparedness as there had been disappeared the moment the people knew the real situation and the actual proposals, and before my trip was over I felt that I could go back to Washington and state with confidence that the people of the middle west were in favor of preparedness. When I did get back to Washington I found it was not necessary to state it, because it had already become evident to those who had thought the contrary."

Blames War on Autocracy.

I asked Mr. Wilson whether his experience during the last four years has strengthened his faith in democracy.

"My faith in democracy has been strengthened by many things, and from more than one quarter," he said. "I am convinced that only governments initiate such wars as the present, and that they are never brought on by peoples, and that therefore democracy is the best preventive of such jealousies and suspicions and secret intrigues as produce wars among nations where small groups control rather than the great body of public opinion.

"And take what has happened on our side of the water; we may well be proud of it. We have had a splendid exhibition of the self-possession of a great people in the midst of all sorts of provocations and anxieties and sudden changes. We who have faith in democracy may well be proud that the people of the United States have shown an extraordinary capacity to distinguish between the big essential things and the details which, however lamentable and irritating, do not constitute the essence of the situation.

Sees U. S. Truly Democratic.

"And this faith in democracy, this inspiration I have received from the people, has extended all through the executive departments and made ours truly a government by the people. I think the whole cabinet has felt the influence of public opinion as directly and as sensitively as I have tried to feel it, and I think I can say with confidence that there never has been a time in the history of our country when the executive departments of the government were more immediately responsive to the influences proceeding out of the body of the people themselves than they are now.

"The whole process has illustrated a very noteworthy and interesting fact—that stimulation and development come from outside the government rather than from inside the departments. It is a striking fact that the improved agricultural methods which have been promoted by the agents of the department of agriculture have consisted in spreading to all the farmers the best processes which these agents learned from the most successful farmers themselves rather than those which they carried to the farmer out of their own studies."

BOTH WILSON AND HUGHES ARE RIDICULED BY BENSON.

Socialist Nominee Assails Former for High Prices, Latter for "Twaddle."

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Allan N. Benson, Socialist candidate for president, summing up his view of the campaign issues of the major parties in an address here tonight, said: "If Mr. Hughes believes everything is all wrong Mr. Wilson nicely balances matters by assuring us everything is all right."

Sketching prosperity under the Democratic administration, Mr. Benson asserted the increase in national wealth, which he said President Wilson estimated at $41,000,000,000 since he became president, had not enabled the wage earner to "remove with ease goods from the shelves of the grocery store," and most of the profits from last year's swollen exports, he indicated, had gone into the pockets of grain dealers and "other speculators."

Turning his attention to the Republican candidate for president Mr. Benson accused him of "going about the country pin pricking Mr. Wilson about little things." He stated that "with militarism grasping the country by the throat Mr. Hughes talks for hours about the necessity of using fitness as the only guide in appointing ambassadors and consuls."

STARTS INQUIRY ON FIRES.

State Marshal Investigates Three Mysterious Blazes in South Wabash Avenue.

The state fire marshal has been asked to investigate three mysterious fires in two barns at the rear of 1233-1235 South Wabash avenue in twenty-four hours. The first was discovered Friday night in a barn occupied by the William Dee company, sewer contractors. The others were in a garage adjoining.

THE 'DRY' CANDIDATE

Does Some Forecasting for Himself.

BY JOHN R. GOLDEN.

[Prohibition Nominee for Governor of Illinois.]

"I will poll from 100,000 to 200,000 votes.

"I am likely to carry several counties and numbers of precincts down the state, especially in the rural districts, where the voters are almost unanimously for me.

"The people down the state are tired of graft in state administrations, in the legislature, and in politics. They are revolting against boss rule, and there are thousands of old time political workers who are canvassing their respective precincts and counties for me. In fact, my active candidacy, in which I have made more than 600 speeches, was forced upon me by well known leaders of the Republican, Democratic, and Progressive parties.

"My vote next Tuesday for governor will surprise Chicago and many out in the state who have not been aware of this quiet independent movement on the part of influential men of all parties."

ULTIMATE "DRY" VICTORY IS PREDICTION BY HANLY.

Prohibition Nominee Ends Campaign in Indianapolis, Home City—Sees National Movement Gain.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Here in the capital city of Indiana, where for four years he presided as a Republican governor, J. Frank Hanly greeted a throng of his neighbors tonight, told them why he deserted his old party to become the Prohibition candidate, and assured them that his running mate, Ira Landrith, and himself had laid the foundation for an ultimate national dry victory.

"God's in His heaven! The cause is marching on," he vehemently declared amid applause.

"After 20,000 miles of travel through thirty-four states of the union, I have come again to you with faith confirmed and braver purpose, made so because of what I have seen and heard."

WILSON CLAIMS HIS RIVALS GIVE PERIL TO NATION

Charges Attempts Are Being Made to Coerce Workers Into Ranks of G. O. P.

Long Branch, N. J., Nov. 4.—President Wilson, addressing a large crowd at Shadow Lawn in his last campaign speech, today denounced those who, he said, were attempting to "make political capital out of things which, if not settled wisely, might bring this country into the world conflict which is devastating Europe."

He appealed to the voters of New Jersey to defeat the "invisible government" which he said again is attempting to gain control of the state government. "The thing which is being attempted in New Jersey," he added, "is being attempted in the United States with more and more transparency of purpose." He added that coercion is being used for this purpose.

The president added that in the national struggle the Republicans have failed to bring forth a single campaign issue on which they could make their fight and "now are attempting to fill the country with alarms."

Effort of Old Guard.

"It has been very hard," Mr. Wilson said, "not to take off my coat and get back to fighting against the effort to reinstate in power the men whom we routed six years ago and held up to the reprobation and contempt of all lovers of just and true government.

"Invisible government never existed in more hateful form than it has existed in past years in New Jersey and that invisible government never had more successful places of concealment than it had in such localities as Atlantic City, from where the candidate for governor on the Republican side has been chosen and it never received more successful and persistent defense than it has received from the newspapers which he owns and controls.

"When I see this unblushing, this impudent attempt to reinstate these forces do you wonder that I would like to get out again and denounce the whole crowd as I know them? Because their purpose is to do exactly what they used to do in the old days when, in private conclave, they used to do the things that no man would care to do in public and when this state was governed not by its legislature, not by its accredited servants, but by men who contrive things for their own interest without taking the public into their confidence at all—backstairs government.

No Need of Deception.

"I do not believe the people of New Jersey are going to be deceived by this thing. Deceived? Why should they be? There is no concealment of the purpose. If any man votes for the Republican state candidates in this contest he knows that he is voting for the reëstablishment of invisible government.

"It is delightful to fight the things that are wrong. It is delightful to hit something that is worth destroying. The only thing that is disappointing in contests of this sort is that these fellows dodge and will not get hit. They sneak and will not reveal their purpose. They have no sand or stomach for the fight in the open and they erect things that look like bulwarks, but are mere pretenses.

Part of Greater Effort.

"But, after all, my fellow citizens, the thing that is being attempted in New Jersey is only part of what is being attempted in the United States with more and more transparency of purpose. Look how the campaign has gone. First of all, an attempt to set up some kind of handsome issue. Not a very interesting attempt, because the issue was a new one every week. As soon as you approached what was said to be the issue it seemed to fade and disappear and there was nothing for you to grasp or grapple. And after finding that the search for an issue was in vain, they came down once more to the only thing they have in recent years ever known how to talk about, and that was the protective tariff.

"They know perfectly well that all the pretenses about the protective tariff have been torn away by the patent demonstrations of fact. They know that the working men of this country may have been deceived for a little while, but they cannot be deceived all the time. They know, just as well as we know that the industries in which the highest protection was given paid the lowest wages, and they know that the highest wages were paid in the least protected industries. This is a matter of record.

Employes Are Underpaid.

"They know that in some of the most highly protected industries the conditions under which the laboring people lived were a disgrace to our civilization. They know that these gentlemen who profess American patriotic feeling for the American laborer were most eager to import laborers from abroad and employ those who, because they did not know what America could afford them, were willing to take what they could get. They know that the conditions of the laboring people in their employ were a patent contradiction of all the promises they had made to these working people when election was on.

"And now what do we witness? Having despaired of an issue, they are filling the country with alarms. They are attempting coercion of their laborers. They imagine that these men are not their own masters and dare not vote as they think, but at last, I thank God, the American laborer is awake. He at last judges his friends by what they do and not by what they say.

"Let them fill the air with alarms. The alarms are their own, not ours. They used to control the credit of the country; now they control nothing but the betting.

Failed to State Problems.

"It was the duty of those who represented the Republican party, as it was our duty, in this campaign to expound the real heart of the social necessities and the political exigencies of America. Have they done that? Have they not merely said that though the right things had been done they had been done by the wrong people? If they were done and were the right things to do, then every man ought to stand by them and praise them. It is not a question of personal qualification. It is a question of what the person, whether qualified or unqualified, intends to do that tells in an exigency like this, for it is an exigency.

"It is a crisis because some of the fundamental things of the life of the world have to be determined. That is one reason why we have been saying so much—by 'we' I mean everybody who has been discussing this campaign—about the apparent desire of some people to have our public policy determined by European reasons and not American reasons. We have seen that unless we could unite and direct and purify the forces of this country we could not do what it was necessary to do for the world through the instrumentality of America.

Warns of Grave Perils.

"It amazes me that men calling themselves statesmen should discuss some of the things our opponents have been dwelling upon when the whole atmosphere of the world was lurid with the blaze of threatened trouble; men spreading tinder in this country when sparks without number were blowing over from this terrible conflagration; men making party sport of unsettled questions, not settled ones; of present courses of action; seeking to make party capital out of things which, if not settled wisely, might bring this country at any moment into the world conflict which is devastating Europe.

"The United States will never again be what it has been. The United States was once in enjoyment of what we used to call splendid isolation. The 3,000 miles of the Atlantic seemed to hold all European affairs at arm's length from us. The great spaces of the Pacific seemed to disclose no threat of influence upon our politics.

"With this outlook, is it worth while to stop to think of party advantage? Is it worth stopping to think of how we have voted in the past? We are now going to vote, if we be men with eyes open that can see the world, as those who wish to make a new America in a new world mean the same old thing for mankind that it meant when this great republic was set up, mean hope that justice and righteous judgment, and unselfish action.

No Precedent on Votes.

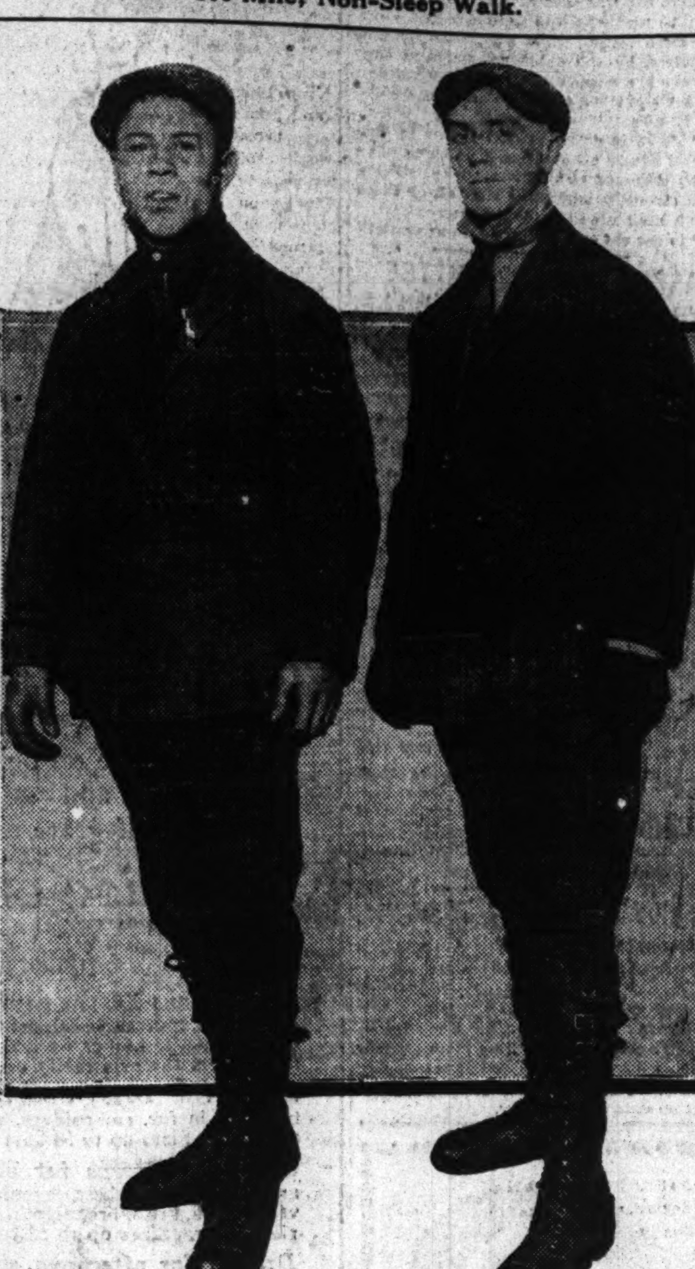
"Is it not worth while voting for these things, no matter how you may have voted in past years? You never had these things to vote for before. Are you going to determine what you are going to vote for now by what you voted for in an era that is concluded? For my part, I thank God that the era of the Old Guard has gone by. They never conceived or understood an unselfish purpose in their lives.

"Look at the industries which have treated their employés as if they were fellow men and human beings. Have they not had better factories and have they not made more money than the rest?

"So, my fellow citizens, I feel rising in my pulses already the inspiration and impulse which is to come, not only to the United States, but to the world next Tuesday. I do not identify myself with this. To me has fallen the good fortune of happening to be the spokesman of the American people at this critical and fateful time. I do not know what is wise. I cannot be sure that I judge right, but I am sure that my heart speaks the same thing that they wish their hearts to speak. It is only in this impulse, in this sympathetic connection which I am sure that I have with them, that I am worthy to speak for them at all."

OFF FOR VALPARAISO

Two Boys Snapped as They Were About to Leave on 100 Mile, Non-Sleep Walk.



Immanuel I. Olshansky Albert J. Paulson

Two boys from the Off the Street club spent the night on the road from Chicago to Valparaiso, Ind. They expect to come back this evening with the amateur record for the 100 mile nonsleep walk. The boys are Immanuel I. Olshansky and Albert J. Paulson. They left THE TRIBUNE at 6 o'clock and expect to get back to their starting point at 9 or 10 o'clock tonight with good luck. The hikers have scheduled three hours for rest and refreshment. They intended to walk all night and spend two hours for breakfast. Another hour is to be consumed for luncheon.

All the training the two boys have had has come through their weekly hikes as boy scout masters.

M'CORMICK GIVES G. O. P. 6 STATES; SEVENTY VOTES

Democratic Chairman Sure Wilson Will Get 364 Electoral Ballots—Maybe 461.

New York, Nov. 3.—Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic national committee, tonight issued his first and only estimate on the national election, as follows:

"Woodrow Wilson will be reëlected president next Tuesday by a popular plurality and a majority in the electoral college.

"President Wilson will have not fewer than 364 votes in the electoral college, with the probability that this number may be increased to 416, and the possibility that it may be swelled to 461.

Makes Four Groups.

"In this, my first formal and my final estimate, I have classified the states into four groups, as follows:

"1—Democratic.

"2—Probably Democratic.

"3—Doubtful.

"4—Republican.

"Thirty states, with a total of 364 electoral votes, properly belong in the 'Democratic' column, as follows:

Alabama	12	Nebraska	8
Arizona	3	Nevada	3
Arkansas	9	New Jersey	14
Colorado	6	New York	45
Connecticut	7	North Carolina	12
Delaware	3	Ohio	24
Florida	6	Oklahoma	10
Georgia	14	South Carolina	9
Illinois	29	Tennessee	12
Indiana	15	Texas	20
Kentucky	13	Virginia	12
Louisiana	10	Washington	7
Maryland	8	West Virginia	8
Mississippi	10	Wisconsin	13
Missouri	18
Montana	4	Total	364

"Probable" and "Doubtful."

"Included among the close states and classified as 'probably Democratic' are nine, with fifty-two votes in the electoral college, as follows:

California	13	North Dakota	5
Idaho	4	Utah	4
Kansas	10	Wyoming	3
New Mexico	3
Oregon	5	Total	52
South Dakota	5

"The 'doubtful states' are three in number, with forty-five electoral votes, as follows:

Michigan	15	Massachusetts	18
Minnesota	12
		Total	45

"The states that look to be 'Republican' are six in number, with seventy electoral votes, as follows:

Iowa	13	Vermont	4
Maine	6	Rhode Island	5
Pennsylvania	38
New Hampshire	4	Total	70

"There are 531 votes in the electoral college, and a majority of 266 is required to elect.

Claims Careful Canvass.

"In making this estimate I have been governed by reliable reports gathered by our organization bureau from every quarter of the United States. These reports are detailed. They represent the best judgment, conservatively stated, of experienced men. In every instance they are supported by figures representing careful canvasses, painstaking polls and straw votes throughout the country. In this work the national committee has relied not only upon precinct, county and state organizations, but upon an elaborate system of checks and counter checks, repeated at frequent intervals during the progress of the campaign.

"Reports from states classified as 'probably Democratic' and from states listed as 'doubtful,' confirm the judgment that no mistake has been made in the list of states classified as 'Democratic.'

"The state of Ohio is typical—Ohio that has never before cast its electoral vote for a Democratic president, save in 1912. The Republicans concede Ohio to President Wilson and our reports confirm this concession.

"Fight in Desperation."

"Other sections, states adjoining Ohio and far removed from Ohio, furnish abundant proof that the spirit that moves Ohioans to support President Wilson is not affected by and does not stop at imaginary state lines.

"In Minnesota and Michigan, states heretofore as strongly Republican as Pennsylvania, the Republicans themselves realize the danger to their ticket and are fighting with the vigor born of desperation. There is Pennsylvania itself, the citadel of protection, which is only claimed by the Republicans by a much reduced majority, in which there is not a doubt that President Wilson will go to the city of Philadelphia with a plurality. There are states in the far west, states on the Pacific coast, states in the southwest, states in the east wherein surface indications showing a tremendous trend toward the president are corroborated by reports from precinct canvassers.

Foreshadows Re-election.

"All of this means something. It foreshadows the reëlection of the president just as surely as two and two makes four.

"It means in the states enumerated as 'probably Democratic' the indications justify the belief that Republican defections, coupled with acknowledged Democratic gains from the ranks of Progressives and independents, make it measurably certain that most, if not all, of these states will cast their electoral votes for Woodrow Wilson."

PRESIDENTIAL FORECASTS

REPUBLICAN

BY ALVIN T. HERT.

[Western Manager Republican National Committee.]

Hughes and Fairbanks are sure to carry the following states and thereby will secure a large majority in the electoral college:

Maine	6	Minnesota	12
N. Hampshire	4	Iowa	13
Vermont	4	Missouri	18
Massachusetts	12	N. Dakota	5
Rhode Island	5	S. Dakota	5
Connecticut	7	Kansas	10
New York	45	Wyoming	3
New Jersey	14	Idaho	4
Pennsylvania	38	Utah	4
Delaware	3	N. Mexico	3
W. Virginia	8	Washington	7
Ohio	24	Oregon	5
Kentucky	13	California	13
Indiana	15
Illinois	29	Total electoral vote	357
Michigan	15
Wisconsin	13

The Republican ticket also probably will be sucessful in Nebraska, which has eight electoral votes.

There is a good prospect of carrying in addition such so-called doubtful states as Colorado, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, and Arizona.

BY MAYOR W. H. THOMPSON.

[Illinois Republican National Committeeman.]

I believe the twenty-nine electoral votes of Illinois will be given to Hughes and Fairbanks by a large plurality, and that our entire state ticket will be triumphantly elected.

This means, of course, that we shall increase the number of Republican representatives from Illinois in the lower house of congress and control, with largely increased majorities, both branches of the legislature at Springfield.

I also firmly believe that the whole Cook county Republican ticket will win a decisive victory.

BY HARRIET E. VITTUM.

[Manager of Work of Western Republican Women.]

The swing of the last ten days to Mr. Hughes has been perhaps more noticeable in the woman's department. Thousands of women in the twelve suffrage states who three weeks ago were accepting Mr. Wilson because they believed he kept us out of war have been influenced by the plain presentation of facts and, perhaps more than by anything else, by the statement of the judge advocate of the army that legally and technically we are at war with Mexico.

Out in Wyoming the kept-us-out-of-war cry had its effect until a few weeks ago, when their own boys were ordered to the front.

State by state the women have swung from Mr. Wilson and his "peace at any price" policy to Mr. Hughes and his record of straight forward, firm statesmanship, which gives them courage to believe Mr. Hughes' policy is the one that for the next four years we shall need to really keep us out of war.

Perhaps no one personal statement has done more to influence women than the statement made by Florence Kelley, known as a friend of labor. She said:

"Mr. Hughes has promised you the federal suffrage amendment, and we who for years have worked with Mr. Hughes know that he is a man who does not make promises which he cannot keep. Mr. Hughes may be only a 100 per cent candidate but he is a 102 per cent keeper of pledges."

BY JOHN C. EVERSMAN.

[Secretary of the Republican Congressional Committee at the Chicago Headquarters.]

The next house of representatives of the United States to the Republicans by a margin of at least forty-five. Most of the gains will come from the western states.

I have received reports indicating Republicans will gain congressional seats in Arizona, Kentucky, California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

It is well to bear in mind that in the congressional elections of 1914 there were thirty-two districts in which a change of from 32 to 969 votes would have given the Republicans the national house of representatives by 27. In these districts the Progressive votes ranged respectively from 200 to 12,000.

DEMOCRATIC

BY SENATOR THOMAS J. WALSH

[Manager Western Headquarters Democratic National Committee.]

Wilson will be reëlected by a greater popular vote than has ever heretofore been given to a presidential candidate.

Two conditions impress themselves upon the mind of every one who has followed the campaign—namely, that an enormous number of Republicans will vote for Wilson and only a negligible number of Democrats will vote for Hughes.

As to the independent vote, so far as it has been vocal at all it is for Wilson. The woman vote is for Wilson. The labor vote is for Wilson. Among voters of foreign birth a surprisingly large number are for Wilson, as high as 90 per cent in the case of the Bohemians, Poles, and other citizens of Slavic origin. The Scandinavians are particularly friendly to the president. The German defection, on which so many hopes for Hughes were built, has practically faded away.

From Republican sources admissions are made that the Republican majority will be cut 40,000 to 50,000 in each of the states of Iowa, Minnesota, and Michigan. Peace and prosperity are patent facts. Not a dent has been made in the obvious argument these offer for the reëlection of the president.

BY CHARLES BOESCHENSTEIN.

[Illinois Member of the Democratic National Committee.]

Illinois will cast its electoral vote for President Wilson next Tuesday, as it did four years ago. If any one doubted how Chicago would go that doubt would have been dispelled had he witnessed the Republican parade yesterday afternoon. After weeks of careful preparation the opposition was able to only imitate the Thompson parade of two years ago and had to rely to a large degree upon city hall employés to swell the participants. A dead silence greeted the marchers all through the loop and the only real outbursts of enthusiasm were cheers for Wilson.

This lack of Hughes sentiment clearly demonstrates that President Wilson will sweep Cook county and he will receive an unprecedented majority in Illinois.

BY MRS. GEORGE BASS

[Chairman Woman's Bureau Western Democratic Headquarters.]

Fortified by trustworthy information that the women of all parties in the twelve suffrage states are strongly for the reëlection of President Wilson, and encouraged further by reliable reports from the same states and elsewhere that the Progressives are similarly disposed, our hopes are high for victory for President Wilson.

I think it will be conceded that one of the outstanding features of this presidential election has been the fact that the woman vote is the balancing factor. In many of the twelve voting states, notably in Illinois, it is admitted that, "as vote the women, so goes the state."

In Illinois, particularly, the women have been and are the unknown quantity. Given the right to vote for president for the first time, the women of Illinois, I believe, have gone about the task of choosing a president with open minds and a sincere desire to vote for the best man. I believe further that they will not be swayed by family traditions nor influenced by wornout party shibboleths.

USE HARD BUSINESS SENSE IN PREPARING TO VOTE!

That Is Plea of Chicago Association of Commerce Under Caption, "One Flag, Good Government."

Under the caption of "One Flag, Good Government," the Chicago Association of Commerce is out with an appeal to its members to "do for government what you would do for your own business" in the local and state elections. The plea is made on the title page of this week's issue of the official publication.

"A Chicago business man is a constant pupil in the school of efficiency," the statement says, "and in it he is yearly rising to higher grades. He is developing standards and ideals, and these he inevitably demands shall be applied in the processes of government, whatever the size and functions of the political unit.

"The great national elections are at hand, and favorites and policies possess the mind and inflame the soul, but it is nevertheless possible to choose with reflection among candidates for certain offices, seeking an employé to do public business who will do it after business principles. One flag, good government. With all practical reverence for the past, intelligently choose in the mazes of the ballot and do for government what you would do for your own business."

LAKE FOREST COP PRESSES 'EM ON CHIEF'S DESK.

That's Why Patrolman Barnett Was Busy Sandpapering the Top of It Yesterday.

Chief Walter MacGuire of Lake Forest entered his office yesterday morning and then gasped in astonishment. The top of his mahogany desk had a whitish, sickly appearance.

Chief MacGuire whirled on his heel. The force turned red and stammered. With the chief, he bent over the desk.

"Ah!" said MacGuire, "the print of a flatiron. Only one person could have done that."

The one person turned out to be Policeman Clifford Barnett, who is a widower pro tem. while his marriage to a Spanish cabaret singer is going through annulment proceedings. He had pressed his trousers on the desk top.

For that reason Chief MacGuire ordered the force to sandpaper the desk and apply new coats of varnish.

HEARING ON CAR SHORTAGE.

Representatives of all railroads have been summoned to appear before the interstate commerce commission in Louisville on Wednesday to give evidence in a hearing on the car shortage situation.

The announcement was made yesterday by officers of the commission in view of the widespread interest in the coal and food crises developed by lack of cars.

The hearing in Louisville will go into the subject of per diem and demurrage charges, detention of cars, and the distribution of equipment.

MISS WHITEHEAD MARRIED TO EDWARD DE W. SHUMWAY

Small Wedding at Home of Bride's Mother Because of Recent Death in Family.

Society was interested yesterday in the wedding of Miss Virginia Whitehead and Edward De Witt Shumway, which took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elisha P. Whitehead, 33 Bellevue place, at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Shumway is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gold Shumway of 190 East Chestnut street and a brother of Mrs. Cyrus Adams Jr., Mrs. Solomon Smith, and Mrs. John Stuart of Winnetka. Both families have long been identified with the social life of the city.

The wedding was small because of recent bereavement in the bride's family and the bride had only two attendants, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., who came from Wichita, Kas., for the wedding, and Mrs. Lewis Williams of Cleveland. Mrs. McCormick was formerly Miss Dorothy Linn, and Mrs. Williams, before her marriage was Miss Lester Coffeen. The two matrons of honor wore gowns of gold colored taffeta, with shephardess hats of brown velvet and carried bouquets of yellow orchids.

The bridal gown was of white satin trimmed with silver lace. The veil was of tulle and rose point. The bride carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

John Stuart served as best man and the ushers were John W. Brown, Chauncey B. Blair, Robert S. Lane, Albert A. Sercomb, R. Douglas Stuart, and Benson A. Talbot.

Policeman Hurt, Mounting.

Mounted Policeman Almon G. Specht was hurt yesterday when his horse bolted as the policeman was trying to mount. He was dragged twenty feet before pedestrians stopped the horse.

DAUGHTER OF EX-POLICE CHIEF BATTLES ROBBER.

Katharine Knight of Evanston Fights Thief Who Appears to Have Shown Bad Strategy.

Katharine Knight of 1847 Asbury avenue, Evanston, is the daughter of a former Evanston chief of police. Perhaps that is the reason she had no fear of a "moll buzzer" who tried to snatch her purse yesterday.

Miss Knight, who is 18 years old, was returning home from a shopping trip. She was in front of 1825 Asbury avenue when the purse snatcher seized her.

What followed is best described by the statement that Miss Knight ran into her own home a few minutes later with her finger nails torn loose and bleeding from her frantic scratching of the purse snatcher's face. Her hands also showed scratches and bruises from her efforts to retain possession of the purse.

She was minus the purse. It contained a railway ticket worth 15 cents and 20 cents in change. As stated above, Miss Knight was returning from her shopping trip.

JAIL FOR 'BLIND PIG' KEEPER.

Lake Forest Resort Owner Draws $400 Fine and Thirty Days in Cell.

Albert Shirk of Lake Forest, convicted of conducting a "blind pig" in the outskirts of the suburb, was sentenced to pay a fine of $400 and to serve thirty days in jail at Waukegan yesterday.

Shirk's place has been characterized as a menace to the community, and the Lake County Law and Order league is planning to proceed against it under the abatement law.

Recently Joseph Dunn, 101 Noble avenue, Lake Forest, was beaten unconscious at Shirk's place and thrown in a pig pen for dead. He refuses to name his assailants.

PLUNGES 500 FT. TO DEATH; WRITES "FAREWELL" IN SKY.

Great Crowd at San Diego Exposition Watches Joe Boquel Hurtle to Ground.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 4.—Losing control of his aeroplane, Joe Boquel, exposition aviator, fell 500 feet to death this afternoon.

A great crowd in the Panama California exposition grounds witnessed the crash.

With smoke pouring from vapor tanks on the tips of wings, Boquel wrote the word "farewell" in the sky just before his machine plunged earthward. He was to conclude his engagement here tomorrow.

POLL INDICATES HUGHES LEADING ELECTORAL VOTE

Republicans Seem Sure of 270 Votes and May Obtain Total of 363 of College.

last ten days that the capture of their forty electoral votes by Wilson is now deemed distinctly improbable.

The only state of those classed as sure for Wilson which the Republicans profess hope of carrying is Arizona, but the nonpartisan reports received by THE TRIBUNE do not bear out this expectation. In the list of doubtful states that probably will be carried by Wilson, Maryland and Nevada are claimed by the Republican managers, but the reports give the Democrats the decided advantage in both.

Handicaps Upon Wilson.

If Wilson, in addition to the states classed as surely Democratic, carries all of the states probably for him and the states in which the chances are even, he would still be fifty-nine votes short of the requisite majority.

Hughes could win easily without New York. It would be next to impossible for Wilson to win without New York. Without New York he could carry both Ohio and Wisconsin and still be twenty-two votes short of a majority. If he could carry Illinois, Ohio, and Wisconsin, he could win without New York and have seven votes to spare. This appears to be an extremely remote possibility.

With both New York and Illinois accounted safely Republican, it is difficult for the Democratic managers to figure out a majority for Wilson. In addition to Ohio and Wisconsin, the president would have to carry Washington, with 7, and Indiana, with 15 votes, in order to win. It is extremely improbable that anything short of a landslide for Wilson would give him all four of these normally Republican states.

Chief Campaign Arguments.

In all of the states approximately the same forces are operating to decide the election. President Wilson has won thousands of Republican votes by the arguments "Let prosperity alone" and "Wilson kept us out of war." The effect of these arguments has been more noticeable in the west than in the east.

The Democratic gains from this source have been offset to a considerable degree by the defection of Democrats who repudiate and fear the "peace at any price" tendencies of the Wilson administration, Democrats who condemn the Mexican fiasco, Democrats who believe that the country will need a protective tariff after the war, and those German-Americans and Irish-Americans, normally Democratic, who regard Mr. Wilson unneutrally favorable to the allies in dealing with the European belligerents.

Effect of Adamson Law.

Next in importance is the Adamson law, raising the wages of train operating railroad employés 25 per cent. This has won thousands of votes for Mr. Wilson among the trainmen, who are normally Republican, and among other workingmen enrolled in the ranks of organized labor, which hitherto has been reckoned about 25 per cent Republican.

The drift to Wilson from this cause, however, is less than it first appeared to be.

Both parties have made a special bid for the votes of the women in the ten equal suffrage states. With tons of literature and lurid pictures of war scenes the Democratic managers have played upon the fears and sympathies of women to the tune of "Wilson kept us out of war." The effect has been gratifying to the Democratic leaders, for the response of women to this appeal furnishes the chief basis for placing several far western states in the Wilson column.

This movement among the women has been offset by the defections from the Democratic party of some women and many men who have not been able to stomach the Democratic preachments of the gospel of fear.

Conditions by States.

The conditions described in THE TRIBUNE's report are summarised as follows:

NEW ENGLAND STATES

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island will deliver safe pluralities to Hughes and Fairbanks. The trend of sentiment in Maine was disclosed by the Republican landslide in the election of United States senators, congressmen and state officers in September last. The repudiation of the administration immediately after the passage of the Adamson law was such that even Senator Johnson, who was personally popular, and Congressman McGillicuddy, with a great labor constituency, were defeated by Republican opponents. The Democrats saved only a few state assemblymen out of the wreck.

It soon became apparent that the forces which produced these results in Maine were at work all through New England and the eastern states generally. Connecticut proved the only weak spot in New England from the Republican viewpoint. Within the last year and a half there has been an influx of about 50,000 workingmen in Connecticut finding employment in the munition factories. Only about 10,000 of these citizens, however, were able to qualify as voters under the Connecticut laws. It is estimated that these new voters in the state are 75 per cent Democratic, but the indications are the Republicans still hold the advantage in this state, which is normally Republican in presidential years. The Republican managers expect to carry the state for Hughes by a plurality of 10,000.

NEW YORK

In three articles last week I reviewed conditions in New York state. The indications are that Wilson will carry New York City but that Hughes will come down to the Bronx with an upstate plurality so large that he will win the forty-five electoral votes of the commonwealth by a plurality ranging from 50,000 to 100,000.

Outside of New York City, Buffalo, and several distinctly industrial centers, the Republicans are holding their forces well in line. Murphy in New York and Connors in Buffalo will not deliver the organizations to the president. William M. Calder, Republican, will defeat William F. McCombs, Democrat, for United States senator, and Gov. Whitman, Republican, will be reëlected over Judge Seabury, Democrat.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES

Democratic National Chairman McCormick and a few other overenthusiastic Democratic leaders are claiming that Wilson will carry Pennsylvania. This claim has aroused only smiles among the Republicans and the practical politicians in the Democratic camp. The utmost that the Democrats can accomplish in Pennsylvania is to trim down to some extent the overwhelming Republican plurality normally returned by this state.

The Democratic managers even have given up hope of carrying the president's own state, New Jersey. The anti-Wilson sentiment in New Jersey was disclosed in the Democratic primary when the administration candidate for senator was beaten by Senator Martine. There is a large German-American and New York commuters vote in New Jersey, all of which will be swung against the president.

The chances are that Delaware will turn up in the Republican column, the chief contest there being over the senatorship. There is a hot fight in Maryland, where the Wilson leaders are hard pressed to hold the state for the president. The Mexican question is a hot issue in Maryland and there is a large German-American vote.

THE SOLID SOUTH

There are thirteen southern states counted surely for Wilson. This list includes Oklahoma, in which the Socialists have been making inroads upon the Democratic strength, particularly in the rural districts. It is not likely, however, that the Socialists will cut into the Democratic vote sufficiently to swing the state to Hughes.

THE BORDER STATES

West Virginia, Kentucky, and Missouri constitute fair fighting ground in this campaign. In each state there is a neck and neck race between Wilson and Hughes.

The fight in West Virginia centered at first on the state ticket. Later the Democrats admitted that Senator Chilton was in danger of defeat and now they are worried about the national ticket.

Alvin T. Hert, western Republican manager, is certain that his state, Kentucky, will return Hughes electors. He has devoted special attention to the task of organizing the state for the Republicans and both Roosevelt and Fairbanks have given effective aid in proselyting for votes for Hughes.

Missouri went Republican in 1904 and 1908 and the combined Republican and Progressive vote was larger than the Democratic vote for president in the state in 1912. Walter S. Dickey, Republican candidate for senator against Senator Reed, has organized the state down to the precincts for himself, the Republican national ticket, and the state ticket. The Republican managers are greatly encouraged by the prospects in Missouri.

THE MIDDLE WEST

Ohio has worried the Republican managers more than any state in the entire campaign. The state was turned over to the management of the eastern headquarters of the Republican national committee, which failed to establish an effective organization in the early days of the campaign. It soon was discovered that Ohioans were giving great heed to the prosperity and "kept us out of war" arguments, and that workingmen normally Republican were drifting to Wilson because of the passage of the Adamson law. Heroic work has been done in the state in the last fortnight, and the Republicans now are confident of winning its twenty-four electoral votes. To their advantage is the difficulty of wiping out a normal Republican plurality so large as that of Ohio, which is estimated at 100,000.

What chance the Democrats ever had of carrying Indiana has been dwindling as a result of the effective work of the Republican organization, directed by Will H. Hays. The Progressives are back in the old party, and their leaders are coöperating with the Republicans. The state is credited to Hughes by at least 20,000, and estimates within the last few days raise the figure to 35,000.

Michigan is a rock ribbed Republican state which, like Pennsylvania, the Democrats talk of carrying without having any adequate basis for the hope. Its electoral votes will be found in the Hughes column next Tuesday night.

Democratic confidence that Illinois will deliver its twenty-nine electors to Wilson has waned practically to the vanishing point. Wilson would have to carry Chicago by a plurality of more than 125,000 in order to offset the avalanche of Republican votes downstate. The Democrats have relied largely upon the woman vote from the start, figuring that an overwhelming number of these new voters for president would respond to the "kept us out of war" argument. It now appears extremely improbable that more than 50 per cent of the women will vote for Wilson, and the president would need more than 60 per cent of their number to come anywhere near breaking even with the Hughes votes cast by both men and women.

Wisconsin is doubtful to about the same extent as Ohio. The factional fights in the Republican organization, of long standing, have endangered chances of Republican success, but the latest reports from the state show the Democrats losing ground. The advantage now is slightly with the Republicans.

TRANSMISSISSIPPI STATES

The Democrats have given up any hope of carrying Iowa and Kansas. Minnesota is now clearly safe for Hughes, although the Democrats have made a hard fight there, and the Republicans will win by a reduced plurality. The same may be said of North Dakota and South Dakota, in both of which the Democrats have made gains.

Nebraska is likely to be close, the advantage now resting with the Democrats. The peace at any price argument has won Wilson thousands of Republican votes in this state. There is an exciting contest over the liquor issue in progress, however, and the state appears likely to go "dry." The Republican candidates are mainly "dry," and Bryan is giving them aid and comfort to an extent that may result in heavy gains by the Republican national ticket.

MOUNTAIN STATES

The Republicans admit that Montana will be close and that it is likely to go Democratic. Women in this state vote for president for the first time and are being organized by Mrs. Walsh, wife of the Democratic senator, who is in charge of the western Democratic headquarters.

Colorado discloses a strong preference for Wilson, but the Republican managers say the contest is extremely close and that they have not given up hope. Wyoming appears to be safely Republican, as does Idaho. In Utah there is a spectacular fight centering on the Smoot machine and the Democrats are claiming the state. The latest estimates, however, indicate that the Republican organization is holding its own and will deliver the electoral vote as usual.

Nevada has been closely contested territory in recent years, and this campaign proves no exception. The Democrats had decidedly the better of the argument in this state up to date.

PACIFIC COAST STATES

Washington is doubtful, Wilson and Hughes running neck and neck. Eastern Washington, where the strict prohibitionists and progressives flourish amid the rich wheat fields and apple orchards probably will go for Wilson by at least 5,000, but Republicans hope the west side, where timber is the principal industry, hit by the Underwood tariff, will overcome this for Hughes.

But Seattle and King county, casting one-fourth of the total vote of the state, will go for Wilson, as the shipyards are crowded with orders and the ports are doing a tremendous business with Russia and the far east. The labor vote is strong here and will almost go solidly for Wilson, although the business interests are making a strong campaign for Hughes.

Oregon is safely Republican, though probably by a reduced plurality.

The utmost the Democrats hope to accomplish in California is to land two electoral votes, as they did in 1912. The chances, however, appear to be against them in this particular. Despite the friction between Hughes and Hiram Johnson early in the campaign, the governor, whose election to the senatorship is assured, has guaranteed to deliver the entire electoral vote of the state for the Republican national ticket, and even Democrats admit that he generally accomplishes his purpose in California.

SOUTHWEST BORDER

New Mexico was in the doubtful list a few weeks ago, but with noticeable Republican leanings. Now there seems to be practically no doubt that it will be carried by Hughes. It is just the other way around in Arizona, which the reports show practically committed to Wilson, although the Republicans say they have a chance of carrying it

'OLD SLUSH FUND AGAIN AT WORK?' MERIT BODY ASKS

Civil Service Reform Association Bares Letter of Deputy Warden Asking Money.

"Is the old slush fund again at work?"

That question is asked definitely by the Civil Service Reform association of Chicago in a statement issued last night. The statement is accompanied by photographs of two letters received by a deputy game and fish warden and signed by Henry C. Wagner, a district warden.

The first letter cost the deputy warden, who is unnamed, $10, and the second cost him $15, the statement says, and the civil service people claim to have the proof in their possession.

The inference in the statement is that the money was collected for the Democratic state campaign. Sept. 21, the date mentioned in the first letter, was Democratic day at the Illinois state fair, the occasion on which Gov. Dunne and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri spoke.

Here Are the Letters.

The letters are on the stationery of the "State of Illinois Game and Fish Commission." The first letter reads as follows:

"Dear Sir: Enclosed please find $10 worth of tickets for Gov. Dunne day, which are charged up to you. Kindly mail in money order for such to me at once. Be sure to attend this affair. Your expenses will be paid.

"On Thursday, Sept. 21, the commission will hold its annual meeting. All wardens are expected to be there. Your expenses will be paid.

"Yours very truly,
"HENRY C. WAGNER,
"District Warden."

"P. S. Meeting on Sept. 21 to be held at Springfield office. H. W."

The second letter, under date of Oct. 31, reads:

"Dear Sir: Kindly be at this office tomorrow without fail.

"Yours very truly,
"H. C. WAGNER,
"District Warden."

Reform Body's Statement.

The statement from the Civil Service Reform association of Chicago is signed by William B. Hale, president; Russell Whitman, W. McM. Rutter, and Helen Quan, vice presidents; and R. E. Blackwood, secretary. It sets out the Illinois law prohibiting the soliciting of funds from any member of the classified civil service for political purposes and the penalties for violation, and continues:

At 10 o'clock this morning we received two original letters which we have caused to be photographed. For obvious reasons the name of the recipient of these letters has been stricken out. The remainder of both letters is as they were received in due course.

"In response to the first letter, dated Sept. 5, we have proof that the sum of $10 was paid to Henry C. Wagner by the recipient of the letter. In response to the second letter we have proof that the sum of $15 was paid to Henry C. Wagner by the recipient of the letter.

"Both letters were addressed to and received by the same person, and that person is a deputy game and fish warden in the classified civil service of the state of Illinois.

"There is evidence that either by letter or orally other deputy wardens have been assessed in this same way. There is a strong presumption that all of them have been urged to contribute.

BANKERS PICK COMMITTEE TO DRAFT TWO NEW BILLS.

Start Work Soon on Measures for Supervision and Creation of State Department.

W. S. Rearick, president of the Illinois Bankers' association, announces that the committee on private bank supervision, authorized at the meeting of the executive council, will be as follows:

Incorporated bankers—C. C. Craig, Galesburg; L. L. Emmerson, Mount Vernon; Nelson H. Greene, Moline; J. F. Hagey, Chicago; J. R. Pierce, Quincy.

The committee appointed by the private bankers is as follows: Hezekiah G. Henry, chairman, Camp Point; Bert Roach, Bushnell; C. A. Schureman, Saybrook; H. A. Smith, Galva; W. E. Colburn, Chicago.

At a meeting to be held shortly this joint committee is expected to start work on the two proposed bills, providing respectively state supervision of private banks and the creation of a state banking department, which are to be presented to the legislature.

THE NATURAL BEAUTY OF NEW FURNITURE

Don't Endanger It with Artificial Aids.

When you wash a fine varnished surface you take a big risk. Some varnishes will go to pieces under such treatment. Another danger is the use of so-called polishes which impart a high gloss for the time being but which in time dry, check and crack the fine surface.

Best results are obtained by the use of Tobey Polish—made from the secret formula of The Tobey Furniture Company (Chicago and New York), and used by them for cleaning and preserving finishes of varnish and enamel. The fact that a big furniture house uses Tobey Polish on its finest pieces is certainly full assurance of its safety and efficiency when used on the furniture and woodwork in your home.

Tobey Polish restores the life and beauty of fine furniture and woodwork by cleaning the surface and by keeping the natural finish in all its original newness. More than this, it renews the elasticity of the finish, preventing unsightly cracking and checking. Leaves no greasy film—no veneer. Wonderfully easy to use. No hard rubbing. You see the fine results instantly.

And it won't collect dust. Try it on a chair or piano. See the big difference. Use it on your automobile—see how it maintains the brand-new look. Sold at the better stores everywhere. Bottles 25c and 50c; quart jugs, $1.—Advertisement.

LOWDEN TO WIN WITH ALL SLATE, G. O. P. CONFIDENT

Colonel Expected to Run Ahead of the State Republican Ticket.

Frank O. Lowden's election as governor of Illinois is believed to be as good as consummated by every Republican who has had much to do with the state campaign. With him the state leaders expect the entire state ticket to be elected. It is generally believed Col. Lowden will run considerably ahead of his state ticket associates. Some estimates place this lead as high as 50,000.

Gov. Dunne, on the other hand, is serenely confident he is to be reëlected and by a substantial plurality over Col. Lowden. His Democratic managers claim for him that he will carry not only Cook county by a sweeping majority over Lowden, but will come to the Cook county line with a lead over Lowden.

The Republican View.

The Republican state management can detect no symptoms of a Wilson landslide in the 101 counties outside of Cook. Every report they have is indicative of a Republican victory of the usual proportions. They believe Hughes will have an easy majority of the woman's vote and that the state ticket will run neck and neck with the Republican electors. They have no doubt of a heavy pro-Lowden vote in downstate counties where Wilson is to have a labor vote.

Chicago, both sides privately admit, is the puzzle that it has been all through the campaign. Each fears a cleanup vote, but neither Republican nor Democrat talks of less than 100,000 plurality of the men's ballots.

The Point of Difference.

The difference between the two camps is that the Republicans are confident of a downstate Republican majority that will offset the maximum Democratic lead that could be secured by a Wilson landslide. The Democrats, if they carry the downstate at all, know it would be by a hair's breadth, and nothing that could be set up against a substantial Republican majority in Cook county, now claimed by the Republican managers as certain to exceed [illegible].

If the state ticket returns show the result is not 50,000 either way the prospects are that candidates on both state tickets will be elected.

Henry W. Huttman, Democrat, for lieutenant governor, is expected to get a heavy German vote in Chicago, but John G. Oglesby, who was lieutenant governor for four years, has a personal following that is expected to place him above the danger line, under any contingency.

For secretary of state, Lewis G. Stevenson, the present incumbent, who was appointed by Gov. Dunne to the vacancy caused by the death of Harry Woods, has made a strong personal campaign. He has the backing of the automobile people, but he also has the earnest opposition of a big chunk of the Democratic organization in Cook county. Lewis L. Emmerson of Mount Vernon, the Republican nominee, will get a smashing vote in southern Illinois and a united organization vote in Cook county. This race promises to be close and exciting.

Andrew Russel, the present state treasurer, is the Republican nominee for state auditor against James J. Brady, who went into office with the Democratic landslide in 1912. Mr. Russel has an independent support and he is picked as a winner by the experts, barring only a Democratic cleanup that will carry everything before it.

Arthur W. Charles, present chairman of the Democratic state committee, is the Democratic nominee for state treasurer, backed all over the place by the regular organization and a strong line of downstate boosters. Len Small, the Republican nominee, won eighty-seven counties in the September primaries after a spectacular contest and is not worried over Tuesday's prospects.

Brundage vs. Lucey.

Edward J. Brundage, who nosed out Senator Richard J. Barr for the Republican nomination for attorney general, is up against the present attorney general, Patrick J. Lucey. This event, too, promises to be one of the thrillers on election day.

The only state office for which women may vote is that of trustee of the University of Illinois. Three are to be elected. The Republican nominees are William L. Abbott of Chicago, present president of the board; Otis W. Hoit of Geneseo, and Mrs. Mary E. Busey of Urbana, all present board members. The Democratic nominees are E. C. Craig of Mattoon, Mrs. Hannah Solomon of Chicago, and George T. Page of Peoria.

GOVERNORSHIP FORECASTS

REPUBLICAN

BY FRED E. STERLING.

[Chairman Republican State Central Committee.]

Hughes and Lowden will carry Illinois by 150,000 plurality.

At the last four presidential elections the average male vote has been 1,127,436. Add to this the approximate woman's vote of 700,000, the total vote on the presidency in Illinois should be in the vicinity of 1,800,000.

In two normal elections the Republican male vote averaged 53 per cent of the total vote. If past voting conditions hold good next Tuesday (as our polls indicate they will), there should be approximately 583,000 male votes for Hughes and 371,000 women votes, giving him a total of 954,000 votes in the state.

In two elections, when Democratic conditions were apparently normal, the vote for the Democratic candidates was 44 per cent of the total vote. On this basis, Wilson should receive 484,000 male votes and 308,000 women votes, or a total of 792,000 votes. This would give Hughes a plurality of 162,000.

Our polls indicate Lowden will run ahead of Hughes, but even on the foregoing basis his plurality over Dunne would be 99,000, as the women cannot vote for governor. I anticipate, however, that Lowden's plurality will be in the neighborhood of 150,000. He and the entire state ticket will be elected.

I think we will gain ee congressmen and we will have a safe working majority in both houses of the legislature. This is surely a Republican year in Illinois.

DEMOCRATIC

BY ARTHUR W. CHARLES.

[Chairman Democratic State Central Committee.]

One week ago when our canvass of the state was completed, I estimated President Wilson would carry the state by 125,000 and that the candidates on the Democratic state ticket would all win with pluralities that would average 50,000.

That prediction stands, except for one thing. During the last week there has been a decided swing to Wilson and the Democratic state ticket among voters who were listed as doubtful. The attitude of the majority of the leaders of the national Progressive party, the explosion of the Lodge roorback, and the general disgust occasioned by Republican campaign methods have brought about this swing.

I believe that I am extremely conservative when I add 25,000 to the Democratic pluralities shown by the original canvass and give the state to Wilson by 150,000 and to my associates on the state ticket by 75,000. There is no reason to change my original estimate that the women of the state alone will give the president 75,000 plurality.

I now believe that the state ticket will have a majority outside of Cook county. I believe seventy counties will be carried by the Democratic candidates. Their vote will be especially heavy in the industrial centers, but the farmers are for the Democratic candidates, and will not reduce the Democratic majorities but, rather, serve to swell them.

BY WILLIAM L. O'CONNELL,

[Campaign Manager for Gov. E. F. Dunne.]

From reports reaching me from all over the state, Wilson and Dunne and the entire Democratic ticket will come to Cook county with a plurality.

In Cook county I predict Wilson and Dunne and the entire Democratic ticket will have a plurality of the man vote of at least 75,000. Wilson will receive at least 65 per cent of the woman vote in the state.

POLISH VOTE FOR HUGHES, ALLIANCE OFFICIAL SAYS.

The Polish vote in America will go largely for Charles Evans Hughes and for the Republican party in the main, is the opinion of Joseph A. Werwinski of South Bend, Ind., of the Polish National alliance and prominent in national political circles. Mr. Werwinski toured Missouri and Nebraska for the Republican national committee.

"Poles of America," he said, "are patriotic—they are for America always first. Protection of American lives and property abroad and of American interests at home stand preëminent before them in political discussions. The Poles of America represent to a great extent the foundation of American business—the good middle class of laborers.

"Dependent on good business, they are for a protective tariff, which is represented in the Republican party. And they go beyond that, grasping the situation at home and abroad to an extent unthought of by the average political worker. In the west and central west they have not lost sight of the issues."

DRYS ASK FOR VOLUNTEERS TO MAN POLLS TUESDAY.

County Committee Fears Carelessness in Counting Prohibition Vote—Sends Out Hurry Up Call.

The Prohibition county central committee has sent out a hurry up call for volunteers to man the polls on election day to prevent careless and dishonest counting. Party managers express the fear that there will be more than the usual careless counting, owing to the size of the ballot and the anxiety of judges and clerks to finish their work. They also declare that the sharp contest over the national and state tickets and the local fight over state's attorney is likely to lead to dishonest counting from which minority parties suffer most.

The Prohibitionists declare that they will stand for an honest count for all parties and will not hesitate to call atten to any crooked or careless work even though they are not the sufferers from this.

Many women will watch the count and work at the polls for the Prohibitionists. Volunteers are reporting at Prohibition county headquarters in room 863 Transportation building.

PRAISES RECORDER'S RECORD

"In over twenty-five years' practical experience with the recorder's office, I can safely say that Mr. Connery has made the best recorder Cook county has ever had."

This was the statement of Robert E. L. Brooks, former president of the Torrens Land Title Registration league, who has registered in the Torrens office more than 6,000 pieces of property with a value exceeding $2,000,000. He is urging Mr. Connery's reëlection.

Presidential Vote Hope of Both Sides—Cunnea Going Strong.

Homer Galpin, chairman of the Republican committee, places the minimum plurality for the Cook county ticket at 75,000.

James A. Dailey, chairman of the Democratic committee, places the plurality for his ticket all the way from 65,000 to 100,000.

State's Attorney Hoyne says he will be reëlected by not less than 50,000.

Harry B. Miller is certain his plurality will be not less than 40,000.

Cunnea Sees Landslide.

William A. Cunnea, Socialist candidate for state's attorney, sees a landslide coming to him Tuesday.

"I will be elected state's attorney by a plurality that may assume the proportions of a majority over all," said Cunnea. "I base this on my vote of four years ago, to which has been added as many more votes from men in all walks of life who want the office of state's attorney taken out of politics and administered in the interest of justice and not in the interests of individuals or cliques."

Both sides are placing a lot of confidence in straight ticket voting. The Democrats are sure President Wilson's handling of the Adamson bill has won the whole ticket the full support of organized labor in Chicago. In addition to this act of the president, Samuel Gompers, John J. Fitzpatrick, and Margaret Haley have been whooping it up for Wilson in the industrial district trying to overcome the big Republican vote in the residential wards.

The State's Attorneyship.

The Democrats have two well defined fears. One is over the coronership and the other—and the real fright—is over the state's attorneyship.

That Cunnea is going to cut a wide swath through both the Republican and Democratic ranks is conceded on both sides. The deep seated fear on the part of the Democrats was acknowledged in the act of the managing committee in deciding to throw away the 200,000 sample ballots, fearing distribution among Democrats would be a big aid to Cunnea in educating the voters where to look for Cunnea's name.

Cunnea has made a campaign that has been popular from the start. He has insisted he was fairly elected four years ago and that the election was subsequently stolen from him. Most of his literature has carried the slogan:

"Reëlect Cunnea."

This has caught on all over the city. In addition, the Hoyne-city hall row has given Cunnea the opening he was looking for—to represent to the voters that the state's attorneyship fight between Hoyne and Miller was one of about 99 per cent politics.

The Chances of Hoyne.

Hoyne, on the other hand, is counting much on the support of the crowd that follows Ald. Charles E. Merriam. He thinks he will cut deep into the Republican strongholds on both the north and south sides because of this support. He also carries the indorsement this time of Roger C. Sullivan, as well as Carter H. Harrison. In addition to this, he expects the lion's share of the organized labor vote because of his having served with Mayor Thompson on the arbitration board that awarded the street car men a big increase in wages.

Late reports last night also were that Hoyne may get the deliverable William Lorimer vote on the west side, which is to be an act of reprisal against the city hall for failure to support him in his recent attempt to break into congress again.

Straight Vote, Miller Hope.

Miller goes to the polls with the solid backing of the city hall organization and whatever benefit he will get from the straight Republican ballots. That Col. Lowden, candidate for governor, is going to get a big vote in Cook county, aided by such candidates as Medill McCormick, Andrew Russel and Edward J. Brundage, is conceded. The question is as to how far the electorate on the Republican side will do their voting quick and safely by merely marking a cross in the circle.

Miller's chances, his friends believe, will be in the straight party vote. They rely on Hughes and Lowden to carry him along to safety. Besides, he has behind him a well organized fighting army in every ward in the city.

Some Other Fights.

That Bowler for coroner will be snowed under, unless Wilson should carry the county by a landslide and that Hoyne is in considerable danger is the admission by the insiders in the Democratic fold.

The big fights next to these on the Democratic side are for Rainey for Circuit court clerk, O'Brien for assessor, Sullivan for president of the sanitary district board, Webb for board of review, and Connery for county recorder.

Women can vote for O'Brien, Sullivan and Webb, and the Democrats have been very active in lining up the great women vote on the west side and in the river wards.

The Republicans concede that if the vote is anywhere close between Hughes and Wilson in the county, Webb, Rainey, Sullivan, O'Brien and Connery will have better than an even break with the independent and women voters. They predict their defeat, however, in the anticipation of a tidal wave vote for Hughes in the closing hours of the campaign.

Women Big Figure.

The Republican managers, however, are banking big on the women voters in the residential districts for Litzinger for board of review, Sergel for president of the sanitary district, and Schmidt and Ringer for assessors. Sergel and Ringer are former Progressives and while leading that party locally were particularly strong with the women voters.

John Kjellander, running against James C. Gavin, a former Hearst Independence leaguer, for Superior court clerk, is conceded a big lead on the normal vote.

August W. Miller, running against John W. Rainey for Superior court clerk, is admittedly up against a tough proposition.

The race between Joseph Haas on the Republican ticket and Connery for recorder has not developed the strength for the Republican candidate that the leaders had hoped.

But both camps concede anything approaching a landslide either way for the head of the ticket will carry the tail with the hide and sweep the entire ticket to victory.

COUNTY FORECASTS

How the Local Managers Size Up the Situation.

BY JAMES M. DAILEY.

[Chairman Cook County Democratic Committee.]

"I believe the Democratic county and state candidates for whom women can vote will receive pluralities ranging around 100,000, or about 30,000 less than that for the president. The Democratic state candidates, including Gov. Dunne, and the county candidates for whom women cannot vote will receive pluralities of about 50,000, falling about 15,000 votes behind the president."

BY HOMER K. GALPIN

[Chairman Republican County Central Committee.]

The voters of Cook county and Chicago will roll up majorities for Hughes and the entire Republican ticket ranging from 75,000 upward. The remarkable demonstration for Hughes witnessed in the loop yesterday foretells the outcome.

A little over a week ago this committee predicted that Cook county would go for the Republican ticket by 75,000. These figures were based upon a thorough canvass made in every precinct in Chicago and the country districts. These figures were conservative.

Hughes and the entire ticket will carry Cook county by a sweeping plurality, the figure will exceed 75,000, and I predict that Col. Frank O. Lowden will receive more men's votes than will the head of the ticket.

We are not worried over the county ticket. Every Republican candidate will be elected.

GREAT INTEREST IN LONDON IN RESULTS OF ELECTION.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—No American election in recent years has excited one-twentieth of the interest aroused by the contest between Wilson and Hughes, because it is felt that America's next president must play an important rôle in the settlement of world conditions after the war.

Not merely Americans here are on the tiptoe of excited speculation but Britishers, accustomed to regard with indifference the internal political struggle of other nations, feel in this case that they have direct interest in the issue.

Americans here are arranging "sitting up" parties for Tuesday night to hear the election results. One particularly large one is fixed for the Savoy, despite the fact that prohibition will reign from 9:30 o'clock. These "dry" parties put the acid test to the reality of the interest in the result.

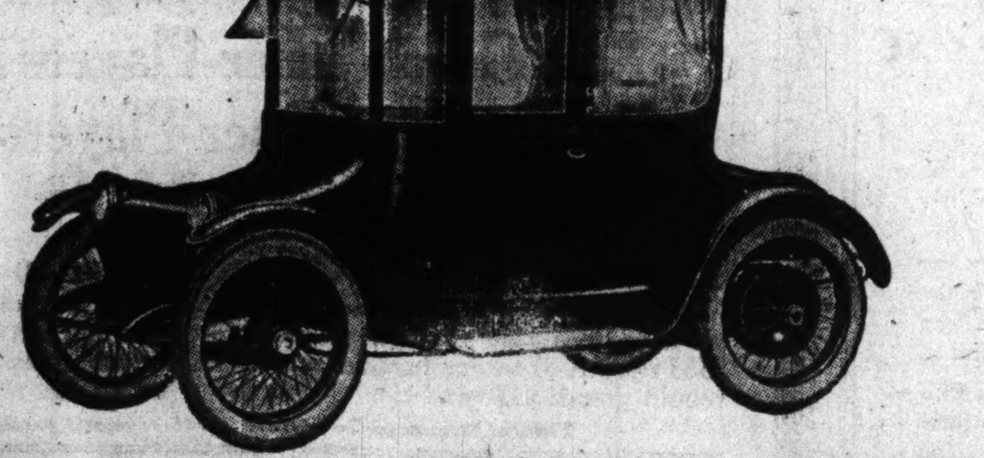
Detroit Electric



Now a Detroit Electric for $1775

That line will bear repetition. Read it again—Now a Detroit Electric for $1775.

For ten years the Detroit Electric has borne the reputation of being the finest enclosed car built. It is matchless among all-year cars in design, in quality of construction, and in modern refinements.

And the world of enclosed car purchasers knows this. Though there are cars of higher price and cars of lower price, far more Detroit Electrics are bought than any other enclosed car either of gasoline or electric type.

This model 68, at $1775, in every feature, every refinement, every detail is typically Detroit Electric in quality and workmanship.

It is a car we are proud to give the name Detroit Electric.

Note these fine car features:

Mileage—65 to 100 miles per charge. Speed—5 to 24 miles per hour. Battery—42 cells, 13 plate, standard Detroit Electric battery guaranteed. Interior Arrangement—Rear seat 50 inches wide. Revolving pullman chair front right corner. Auxiliary seat left front corner. Upholstering—Exclusive patterns in whipcords. Tires—Goodrich Silvertown cord pneumatic type, safety tread rear. Size 33x4½ inches. Wheelbase—100-inch wheelbase. Tread, standard 56 inches. Wheels, Houck wire.

The Critic Handel
by Margaret D. Dickson
The Only difference between Händel and You

POSSIBLY you never astonished your elders in quite the way Handel did, but after all there is not much difference between the greatest musicians and the average man. You, like they, have musical feeling which seeks expression. They simply have a natural ability for playing some musical instrument by hand and have developed this ability through long practice. To satisfy your musical desires, you need an instrument that responds directly to your musical feeling and does not require the manipulation of trained and talented fingers. The

Baldwin
Manualo
The Player-Piano that is all but human puts your individual musical feeling into whatever selection you play. It voices your musical desires as if you were a talented musician playing by hand. It translates into ravishing tone your subtlest and most instinctive wish.

The Manualo is sold in Chicago by the makers only.

G. O. P. CONTROL OF LEGISLATURE SEEMS CERTAIN

Senate Likely to Be Dry by a Slight Margin—House Wet by Ten or Twelve.

The Republicans are certain to have a working majority in both branches of the Fiftieth Illinois general assembly. The senate doubtless will be "dry" by from three to five majority, and the house is likely to be "wet" by from ten to twelve.

This prediction is made possible by the fact that more than 120 of the 153 members to be chosen for the house are as good as elected, due to the absence of contests between the two big parties, and only half of the senate is to be elected on Tuesday.

How It Lines Up.

Close checkers on the makeup of the new house figure on a political lineup as follows: Republicans, 85; Democrats, 67; Socialists, 1. There are seventeen holdover Republican senators and nine Democratic holdovers. The indications are that there will be sixteen new Republicans and nine new Democrats, making a total of thirty-three Republicans and eighteen Democrats.

There are twenty-eight districts out of the fifty-one in which there is no contest between the two major parties for the three house places in each district. These districts are as follows:

First, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-third, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-ninth, in Cook county, and the Eighth, Tenth, Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-second, Twenty-fourth, Thirty-third, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, Forty-first, Forty-second, Fiftieth, and Fifty-first downstate.

Where Breaks Are Possible.

In seven of the foregoing, however, there are Socialists, independents, or Progressives who might break through. These are the Thirteenth, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fifth in Chicago, where the Socialists have an even chance; the Eighth, or Woodstock, district, where Dennis E. Gibbons is an independent Democrat; the Tenth, or Rockford, district, where Herbert S. Hicks is likely to be elected as an independent; the Twentieth, where William H. Dunn of Essex is a Progressive nominee backed by the drys; and the Thirty-fifth, or Dixon, district, where Ernest Carter is a Progressive candidate.

VOTE FOR BRUNDAGE, IS PLEA OF FRANK SHEPARD.

Man Needed for Attorney General Is One Who Can Draft Tax Amendment, Says Attorney.

Besides supporting the tax amendment proposition at Tuesday's election voters are urged in a special appeal made by Frank Shepard, member of the executive committee of the Association of Commerce, to select the best attorney general to carry out their expressed wishes. The matter of indorsing the tax amendment proposition is the first step, Attorney Shepard advises, but later, if approved, tax amending laws must be drafted which will stand the tests of court.

"Edward J. Brundage is the candidate for attorney general all should vote for," said Attorney Shepard. "He is skilled in the work of drafting laws, an experience which came to him as corporation counsel, and practically all of his legal work there has been tested in court and withstood attack. He is an ardent supporter of the tax amendment issue.

"As illustrations, take the two ordinances to regulate, one the size of milk bottles and the second to regulate the size of loaves of bread. Both were designed to protect the public against short weight sharks. They were fought in the United States Supreme court, but sustained.

"Corporation Counsel Brundage handled all special assessment work for the city and revised all the city's ordinances without engaging special counsel."

"UNCLE JOE" SEES VICTORY FOR G. O. P. ALL ALONG LINE.

Says Wilson Will Not Draw Heavy Vote Except South of Mason and Dixon Line.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 4.—"For the life of me I cannot see where Wilson will draw a heavy vote except south of the Mason and Dixon line," said "Uncle Joe" Cannon today.

"Young voters may be misled, may follow after strange gods, but the older men realize that Democracy means panic and that this country would today be in the midst of the worst panic it has ever known but for the European war.

"Not only in this district but, I believe, throughout the entire country voters will do the sane thing, the sensible thing—cast their ballots for the Republican ticket and protection. I predict Republican victory all along the line."

LOWDEN CLOSES CHICAGO BATTLE; GOES TO OREGON

Republican Candidate Will Get the Election News at Sinissippi Farm.

Col. Frank O. Lowden closed his Cook county campaign last night with a series of speeches, ending with one at the new Ray school, 5631 Kimbark avenue. He is at his Sinissippi farm today, and tomorrow will make the final appearance of the campaign at Oregon, the county seat of his home county of Ogle. He expects to receive the election returns at his country home.

Last night Col. Lowden was greeted with big crowds and much enthusiasm. Repeatedly he predicted harder times and higher tax rates unless the voters substituted Republican national and state administrations for Democratic rule.

Recalls Old Statement.

In this connection Col. Lowden recalled a significant statement made at Springfield on March 30, 1915, by manufacturers, merchants, employers of labor in Illinois and representatives of commercial and employers' organizations at a meeting held under the auspices of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. This statement was submitted to members of the Forty-ninth general assembly at that time, but Col. Lowden quoted it as indicative of the evil effects of the Underwood Democratic tariff law. It follows:

"Never has business been subjected to severer stress than during the last year; never has the present record of unemployment been surpassed; never have the charitable organizations been so burdened with cases of real want and distress.

Work Half Time; Wages Cut.

"Industry is working at half time or less; wages are reduced or cut off entirely, and the most stringent economy is being practiced in countless homes. Everywhere the effects of lack of business manifests itself. This is essentially a time when every possible encouragement should be given to revive business; where no extra burden should be placed upon it; when every possible restriction that would hamper its growth should be removed, and when every opportunity for increasing employment should be offered."

There were fourteen signers to the appeal, among the signers being, besides the Illinois Manufacturers' association, Decatur Association of Commerce, Peoria Association of Commerce, Tri-City Manufacturers' association, Chicago Laundrymen's association, and Illinois Coal Operators' association.

MRS. FUNK FOR—AND AGAINST

Antoinette Is Going to Vote for Woodrow, While Mrs. L. L. Is Strong for Charles Evans.

Two Chicago women of the same name have taken opposite stands on the presidential situation. Mrs. L. L. Funk of 4416 Prairie avenue is for Hughes. Mrs. Antoinette Funk is for Wilson. Mrs. L. L. Funk is president of the Children's Day association. Mrs. Antoinette Funk was formerly a practicing attorney in Chicago, but for some time has been working for suffrage in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. L. L. Funk has been annoyed by a popular misunderstanding that has confounded her name with that of Mrs. Antoinette Funk.

"From the beginning of the campaign," writes one of Mrs. L. L. Funk's friends, "Mrs. L. L. Funk has been unqualifiedly in favor of Mr. Hughes. This mistake in identity has caused much annoyance and at times a questioning of the political integrity of Mrs. L. L. Funk."

Asks Police to Arrest Him.

James E. Queeney Jr. of Clinton walked into the police station and asked to be arrested. He was accommodated. This was the first arrest made by the police for six days.

What Chicago Thinks of the Jeffery

Read, please, the following letter:

Mr. A. M. Robbins,
Centaur Motor Co., Chicago.

Dear Sir: I have now driven my Jeffery "Six" long enough to feel that I can give an authoritative opinion on its performance, and it is a pleasure to say to you that the representations made to me before my purchase have been more than fulfilled.

I was told I would find this motor practically free from vibration at any speed. I am frank to say I will go even further than you did and will state that the motor is ABSOLUTELY free from perceptible vibration. It is evident that in the new crank shaft construction you have produced what is to my mind finality in gasoline motors. At all speeds, and I have driven this car from four to seventy miles per hour on high, I find the flow of power smooth, liquid, velvety—without qualification.

This car satisfies me and, what is even more, it satisfies my wife. Its roominess, the perfection of the Demountable Sedan body which you have supplied, and the beautifully easy riding springs leave no room for criticism. The finish—what you would call, I believe, the "paint job"—I find to be equal to the highest priced cars.

I have no apology to make to any man for the car I drive. (Name on request.)

We do not believe that we need say any more than this gentleman has written.

He paid his money for a Jeffery car and made the test of value, which is the best of all tests—a test of the man who has bought something and paid for it.

The record of the Jeffery car in Chicago is an open book. There are nearly two thousand of them in use here. You know its reputation. You know what people think and say about it.

The new Jeffery models now current live up to Jeffery tradition. The test of Palos Hill, which we described last week, where a Jeffery "Six" climbed this ugly grade on high with a load of nine full grown men—the low gear test of the car which acted as pilot in the recent record run of Sidney Hatch, keeping pace with a man on foot from Milwaukee to Chicago on rough country roads, largely in the dark—every test of road performance all lead to one conclusion.

This car will satisfy you as it satisfied the gentleman whose letter we print today.

When may we have the privilege of demonstrating these facts to you?

Princely Pianos at Popular Prices

IT is a difficult task to build pianos, grade by grade, better than they have ever been built before. Still more difficult it is to keep the price well within the reach of the average purchaser.

We have triumphantly accomplished both.

Nearly forty years ago we brought into our factories some of the greatest tone builders in America. Every passing year has added to their skill—to their art. And keeping pace with them month by month, ingenious men have made such progress in our factory methods and organization that, while our standards of quality have risen, prices have not.

Today, by our improved processes, aided by enormous production, we are able to build and market a piano which formerly cost $350 at $275. We can and do build Inner player-pianos at $395 which outvalue many instruments priced elsewhere at $475. And we now make a Grand Piano priced at $585 which is equal in tone to many others selling at $700. Every instrument in our six great lines is similarly underpriced.

We publish these truths that you may prove them by giving us but five minutes of your time in our music rooms. Our new fall stocks are now on display—

Conover Pianos Cable Pianos
Kingsbury Pianos Wellington Pianos
Solo Carola Inner-Players and Euphona Inner-Players

And we have just received our Christmas allotment from the MASON & HAMLIN factories at Boston.

Piano time is here. Call NOW when you may have the widest possible choice of woods, styles and finishes. New pianos we have from $185 up; new players from $395 up; new grands from $585 up. And in our bargain parlors, rebuilt uprights at $65 and up; rebuilt grands $350 and up. Below are a few of this week's specials.

MOTOR BANDITS GET PAY ROLL OF THIRTY WORKERS

Force Employes and Cashier to Hold Up Hands—Tear Telephone Off Wall.

Thirty employés, waiting for their pay, held their hands high in air before a pair of leveled revolvers yesterday while two motor bandits knocked down Thomas Watling, superintendent of the Concrete Steel company, seized the $400 payroll, and fled in a waiting automobile.

The robbery took place at 11:40 o'clock in the office of the steel company in the plant at 3209 West Thirteenth street.

Watling was seated at a table. He had just taken the pay money from the safe and placed it before him and was about to begin paying off the thirty employés who stood in a line before him. Suddenly the two bandits entered.

One of them ordered the men to hold up their hands. Instantly every hand went up. The other robber trained a revolver on Watling. Then he struck him a blow over the head and felled him. He seized the sack containing the money. At the same time he reached for the telephone and tore it from the wall.

Down in the alley waited an automobile, the engine of which was running. Two men were seated in the car. As the two robbers ran down the stairs the car started slowly and presently all four were racing to safety.

Employés of the plant were compelled to run a half block to reach a telephone to call police. Watling was not seriously hurt. He lives at 6008 Harper avenue.

ROMANCE OF SOCIETY GIRL AND POLICEMAN SHATTERED

Husband Who Saved Washington, D. C., Debutante in Runaway and Then Eloped, Sues Her Mother.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The shattering of a romance that had its inception in the stopping of a runaway horse and culmination in the elopement of a society debutante with a policeman is related in a $50,000 "heart balm" suit filed today in the District Supreme court by Policeman Guy W. French against Mrs. Margaret K. C. Beale, a wealthy society woman of Washington and Newport.

Miss Atala W. Beale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beale, who made her debut in Washington society last winter, late last February was rescued by Policeman French when her horse ran away. Washington society was startled on the morning of April 24 to read of the marriage after an elopement to Rockville, Md., of the policeman and society "bud."

They lived there happily until July 28. But, according to the declaration filed with the suit, the mother "took an unreasonable and intense dislike to the plaintiff and sought to poison the mind of the young bride against him and alienate her affections."

MOVIE MAD

And That May Explain Why She Has Disappeared.

Esther Maddox
KIRIACOPULOS PHOTO.

Esther Maddox is a little southern girl from Vicksburg, who came to the "big city" about a year ao and became infatuated with moving picture actors and actresses. She has disappeared from 1844 West Monroe street, where she lived with a widowed mother and sister, Mrs. Pearl Abner.

The child left her home at 10 o'clock Friday morning with an older girl named Clara Le Monte, who worked at the Boston store, and neither of the two has been heard from since.

Miss Maddox is about 5 feet 3 inches tall, with dark blue, laughing eyes, and even, white teeth. Her hair is brown and curly, and she commonly wears it up; the picture was taken to send to the Essanay Film company, where Miss Maddox hoped to get a trial, and where she thought the hair worn in curls would be apprpeciated.

The other girl is a pronounced brunette, about 5 feet 7 in height. She is 17 years old and is also a "movie" enthusiast, and she lives at 1449 West Twenty-first place.

ROBERTSON URGES HEALTH COURSE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Tells Principals He Would Have Text Book on Sanitation in Every Room—Greatest Study of All.

Text books on health and a regular course in health for the public schools were recommended by Health Commissioner Robertson in a talk at a meeting of public school principals yesterday.

"If I was superintendent of schools I would have a text book on health in every classroom," said Dr. Robertson. "You will say that you have to have so much reading, so much mathematics, and so much geography. But what is the greatest study of all? The greatest study of all is the study of mankind.

"If I had the power I would start with the study of bacteria in the schools. No great progress will be made in the problem of sanitation unless it is made through the schools."

KENTUCKY BRED WOMAN CATCHES THIEVES AT WORK

Mrs. Amelia Calhoun Tells Judge Just How She Did It.

Mrs. Amelia Calhoun, who hails from Kentucky and knows how to handle a revolver to the best advantage, told a jury in Judge Barrett's court yesterday how she caught two burglars in her home, 823 North Clark street, on Sept. 17, while her husband slept.

One of the robbers, Jacob Minsky, was sentenced to from one year to life imprisonment. Peter Kane, who some years ago was arrested on a charge of robbing Albert Vasey, an employé of Montgomery Ward & Co., who afterwards disappeared, has forfeited $3,000 bonds.

Revolver Under Pillow.

"I was awakened about 5 o'clock in the morning and found some one trying to force open the locked door of my bedroom," Mrs. Calhoun testified. "I'm from Kentucky and I'm not afraid of firearms. I always keep a revolver under my pillow.

"I took the revolver in my hand and sat up in bed and listened. I heard them ransack a linen closet and a storeroom off my bedroom and then heard them try to get into my husband's bedroom in which my husband was sleeping.

Hands Up, There!

"When they did that I opened the door of my room and covered them with a revolver. I made them hold up their hands. Kane dropped his revolver and dropped his handkerchief over it and when he made a move to pick it up I fired a shot at him. I made the two of them keep their hands above their heads until the Chicago avenue police came and arrested them."

ASKS HUNT FOR DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Mary Johnson Says Young Woman May Have Left to Become an Actress.

Mrs. Mary Johnson of 1921 Milwaukee avenue asked the police last night to search for her missing daughter, Mrs. Mary McCauley, 20 years old. The young woman, who is attractive and pretty, had aspirations to become an actress and is believed by the mother to have gone to Indianapolis with a girl friend in the hope of realizing her ambitions. She had been living apart from her husband, the mother told the police.

HEALEY SHOWS CRIME LESS.

Chief of Police Healey's crime report, submitted yesterday to Mayor Thompson, indicated a decrease of 15 per cent in criminal complaints during the month of October this year, as compared with October, 1915. There were 1,725 such complaints in October of this year. The only classification that showed an increase, according to the comparative figures, was robberies. There were 188 robberies, 31 per cent more than last year.

OSBORNE TO SEE PRISON PLAY

Hull House Players to Present Work Based on Sing Sing Plot.

TRIAL GIVEN VERBATIM

Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, is expected to come to Chicago to see the production of a prison play called "Punishment." The play, of four acts, will be given by the Hull House players in Hull House theater on Nov. 9, 10, 11, and 12.

It is said to have the distinction of being the only play of prison life indorsed by Mr. Osborne. The play was written by Louise Barleigh and Edward Hale Bierstadt. Both authors spent a great deal of time at Sing Sing with Mr. Osborne and with the men, among whom they made many friends.

Plot from Real Life.

The plot incidents of the play are taken direct from actual happenings at Sing Sing during Mr. Osborne's régime—that is, with the exception of that part of the plot which deals with the home life of the warden. The political maneuvers, the framing up of an escape to discredit the warden, the smuggling in of whisky, and the final trial of the prisoner are taken almost verbatim from actual occurrences within the last two years, being changed only in so far as the expediencies of the drama necessitate.

Keep Prison Atmosphere.

Mr. Bierstadt is here now, at Mr. Osborne's special request, to supervise the production of the play and see that the essential element of the prison atmosphere is retained.

WIFE SUES BROKERAGE FIRM FOR HER HUSBAND'S LOSSES.

Mrs. F. W. Shaver Sues Logan & Bryan for $25,000 Based on $8,000 Dropped on Trade Board.

Mrs. Minna Shaver of 3828 North Robey street filed suit yesterday against the brokerage firm of Logan & Bryan as a corporation and as individuals. The suit is for $25,000.

F. W. Shaver, the husband, lost $8,000 through speculation on the board of trade, it is said. The money was placed through the Logan & Bryan firm.

The suit is brought under the statute which allows a suit to be filed six months afterward for three times the amount lost.

U. S. WITNESSES HELD ON "DOPE" STORY OF WOMAN

Federal Official Releases Pair Accused in Weird Tale by Drug "Captive."

Federal officers yesterday began an investigation of a story told the police by Mrs. Mollie Cotman of 751 North Dearborn street, who was found in a stupor in a flat occupied by two government witnesses at 117 West Ohio street.

The woman asserts she was forced to go to the flat by James Mansfield, its occupant, when he represented that he was a secret service man. Arriving there, she said, Mansfield and his wife made her submit to an injection of morphine, after which she fainted.

Admit Giving Morphine.

Mansfield and his wife denied the accusation, but admitted they had given the woman a morphine injection at her own request. They were all arrested and the federal officers were notified.

Dr. William H. Sage of the government's "dope" department admitted that he had used Mansfield several times to trap alleged drug sellers, and stated he and his wife were to have been used during the day as witnesses against George Lewis, who came to this country from Greece three years ago.

Dr. Sage Ordered Them Released.

Mansfield and his wife were released by the police on orders from Dr. Sage and brought before Commissioner Foote to testify against Lewis. When Lewis was remanded to jail he began shouting at the officers and the last words he said before being locked up were:

"They ain't no justice in this country nohow."

Lewis, according the police, lives on the earnings of immoral women and was arrested in connection with the death several months ago of a woman known as Cleone, who was found dead in a doorway. Her body was covered with bruises. The police said she had been living with Lewis.

DUNNE DENIES DEFICIT CLAIM

Governor Brands False Russel's Charge That State Is Bankrupt.

GOOD SURPLUS, HE SAYS

Gov. Dunne made his final appeal to voters in the form of a statement issued yesterday afternoon, as follows:

"The need in which Mr. Lowden and his associates on the Republican ticket find themselves for an effective issue to stem the Democratic wave may be measured by the desperate character of their roorback campaign.

"It is the general rule for false eleventh hour charges to be made by persons of no responsibility, and thus the canard about the Joliet penitentiary was circulated by Fred Sterling, but this fell so flat that restraint was abandoned and to Adrew Russel, state treasurer, and candidate for state auditor, was handed the task of launching a final blow.

Calls Claims False.

"Mr. Russel proceeded to drag the credit of his state into the mire. For the sake of getting votes, he proclaimed Illinois to be a bankrupt.

"The falsity of this claim is apparent to any one who is familiar with accounts and examines the distorted figures put forth by Mr. Russel in his effort to destroy the credit of the state of which he is trustee.

"Others will convince themselves with this reflection: That if Mr. Russel tells the truth at this late hour he has betrayed the people by keeping silent so long. He has spoken in every county, and said nothing of the amazing conditions he now proclaims.

Penalty Up to People.

"And if Mr. Russel is not telling the truth and has, as I charge, falsely assailed the credit of his state for a political advantage, then he is guilty of an offense which the citizens will know how to punish.

"I can assure the people that Illinois is so far from being bankrupt that, like few other governments, it operates entirely on a cash basis. It does not owe a dollar to any man, there is a healthy surplus in the treasury; it does not even have to borrow to anticipate tax collections.

"Also it is proper to ask Mr. Russel how much of the state's money is deposited in his own banks."

Gets Divorce from Auto Salesman.

Mrs. Katherine M. Durham was granted a decree of divorce from Benjamin F. Durham, a former salesman with the Premier Automobile company, by Judge Thomson yesterday on charges of desertion and cruelty. Mrs. Durham testified he never had seen their child, born after he deserted her.

How Attractive to YOU Is Your Home?

EVENINGS when you go home—do you stay there, or do you seek your diversion elsewhere? Not until you have MUSIC will you get out of life your full measure of enjoyment. An APOLLO player piano will transform those evenings that now are dull into delightful, inspiring ones. No one can detect the difference between APOLLO playing and the personal playing of the concert pianist, because of its wonderful down touch system and other features that are exclusive.

Exclusive Features of the APOLLO
Player Piano

Do you want an instrument that does not possess them all?

Solo Device

The solo device on the APOLLO enables you to instantly change the key in which the piece is written to suit your taste or the voice of the singer. This is a most remarkable improvement, without which no player piano is complete. Any player piano which will not do the above is not a solo instrument.

Down Touch

The APOLLO is the only natural playing player; the only one that strikes down on the keys as the human hand strikes. Other players do not use the keyboard at all, but produce sound by striking up. Have you ever seen a human being play that way? The down touch of the APOLLO is a human touch and is one of the fundamentals primarily responsible for the hand played effect of the music it produces.

Motive Power

The Metronome motor furnishes power for the APOLLO. It will wind and rewind the longest music roll without the necessity of pedaling. It gives absolute control of tempo or time and relieves you of all responsibility for the music roll.

Dynaline Expression Indicator

The Dynaline Expression Indicator—found only on the APOLLO PLAYER PIANO—teaches any person playing perfect dynamics, or in other words perfect expression, so that every piece played may be rendered exactly as it was originally played. No one should purchase a player piano without the DYNALINE EXPRESSION INDICATOR.

Music Roll

When the APOLLO player piano enters your home it brings with it access to any and every player piano roll on the market. The APOLLO plays them all and gets from them all they have to offer.

We are now showing the new style W Apollo. Price $650. Terms as low as $15 monthly.

PLAYER PIANOS AT $400, $450, $475 AND MORE.

SHREWD THIEVES LOOTED HOMES AT LAKE FOREST

J. W. Thorna Finds Burglars Took Only Solid Silver, Gold, and Jewels.

James W. Thorne, who was one of the victims of a crew of burglars who ransacked summer homes in Lake Forest on Friday night, went out to Lake Forest yesterday with a Globe Indemnity company operative and took a partial inventory of his losses.

"The thieves evidently were experts," said Mr. Thorne to a friend after his investigation. "They took only solid silver, gold and jewels. They left untouched many other things of value which might be burdensome to carry or dispose of."

Among the things which the thieves left was a hamper of bric-à-brac considered to be of great value. A small portable safe in a closet on the second floor was untouched, although the thieves had been in the closet, set it afire with the candles they carried, and extinguished the fire.

Two of Mr. Thorne's big game rifles were taken by the burglars, as were the gold fittings in Mrs. Thorne's Tiffany made traveling bag. Mrs Thorne's jewel box at the summer home also was found to be open and empty.

Mr. Thorne said he did not know what it had contained, if anything, and it would be necessary for Mrs. Thorne to make a trip to the house and check up on her personal property before the full extent of the losses could be determined.

Find Finger Prints.

At the residence of Charles Garfield King, next door to the Thorne residence on Ridge road, the burglars left finger prints which may be the means of catching them. These prints are on a window pane which they broke The losses at the King residence have not been checked up. Investigators found, however, that the thieves had followed the same policy as in the Thorne robbery. Heavy plate was left untouched.

Lake Forest police have not been asked to give assistance, as the residences lie outside of the city limits. The houses are isolated on large grounds and the only caretakers are the gardeners, who live in cottages at least half a block from the houses. Following the last series of fall robberies in the section last year residents engaged a guard of private detectives.

Soup Scalds Kill Baby.

Julian Vucha, 2 years old, of 1446 Fullerton avenue, died yesterday in the Children's Memorial hospital of scalds suffered at his home in the afternoon. He overturned a kettle of boiling soup.

HUSBAND LOST

He Had Cash and Securities Worth Several Hundred Thousand Dollars, She Says.

Mrs. James Alexander Hayward

Mrs. James Alexander Hayward, wife of the wealthy Chicago real estate man and hotel promoter, arrived in Chicago yesterday personally to conduct the search for her husband, who disappeared several days ago carrying a large sum of currency and papers showing his ownership of several hundred thousand dollars' worth of Chicago real estate.

A week ago Mrs. Hayward, at Berrien Springs, Mich., received a letter from her husband in which he said he was liquidating his Chicago holdings and was going home to the Springs to retire from active business. After closing his accounts at several banks and taking bonds and currency from safety deposit vaults he dropped from sight.

Detectives for the last three nights have been searching in the cabarets for Mr. Hayward. He was robbed of $600 last September by Mrs. Ellen Bell, whom he met in McGovern Bros.' cabaret at 661 North Clark street.

MOTHER AND CHILD BURNED

Mrs. Rose Gallistra's Dress Ignited When She Runs to Rescue of Her Daughter.

Mrs. Rose Gallistra of 7739 South Hermitage avenue, and her daughter, Philomena, 6 years old, were severely burned yesterday. The child was playing with several other children at the rear of her home near a fire when her clothing became ignited. Her screams were heard by the mother. In putting out the fire the mother's clothing became ignited and she also was burned.

DR. SANDBERG MARRIES NURSE; DIVORCE CITED

Stensland Bank Crash and Domestic Unhappiness Recalled by Wedding.

An echo of the Stensland bank disaster was heard yesterday when Dr. Karl F. M. Sandberg, former husband of Mrs. Inga Stensland Sandberg, daughter of the noted defaulter, was married to Mrs. Emelia P. Peterson.

There has always been a persistent rumor that the same influence that wrecked the home of the banker caused the separation of Dr. Sandberg and his first wife. In the web of the tale runs the influence of a woman who was a close friend of the first Mrs. Sandberg.

Mrs. Inga Stensland Sandberg is a musician. Before the failure of the Stensland bank she was a member of the faculty of the Chicago Musical college.

Cared Little for Society.

The Sandbergs occupied a house just around the corner from the Stensland mansion in Wicker Park. Mrs. Sandberg cared but little for society, it was said, but entertained out of regard for her husband's professional standing.

Of those that came to her house naturally was this woman friend. Mrs Sandberg made much of her. Soon there was talk of a divorce. Mrs. Sandberg refused to give up her friend, though there were repeated rumors of trouble making in the Sandberg home The divorce came and Mrs. Sandberg returned to her father's house.

Goes to Madison.

Mrs. Sandberg went to Madison and took up her musical work in the University of Wisconsin, where she still remains. When she same home to Chicago it was to find her father gone. There was a distinct breach formed between her and her former friend.

Dr. Sandberg now is 61 years old. He has continued his practice in Chicago and holds a conspicuous position in Scandinavian circles. Mrs. Peterson has been a nurse for several years and has been assistant to Dr. Sandberg in his office.

Dr. Sandberg refused to say anything about his marriage last night. "We are very happy," he said.

They will live at 2850 Ogden boulevard.

SUICIDE IN HEALTHATORIUM.

Howard M. Jackson, 24 years old, a bookkeeper, who formerly lived in Colorado Springs, Colo., committed suicide in the Bernarr McFadden healthatorium yesterday by placing a piece of cotton saturated with chloroform at his nostrils and placing a rubber cap over his head and face. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health.

NO GAME—RAIN

The Tears of Cupid Fall When the Divorce Court Wields the Sword of Justice.

JOHN E. McCORMICK skipped and took his young son with him. Then he wrote a jesting letter about the detectives who were seeking him. Mrs. McCormick showed the letter to Judge Thomson and got a divorce.

Every time Mrs. Nellie Raymond refused to give Charlie some money he kicked her. They were married four days. Now she is free again.

Mrs. Eleanor Bloom Thacker, second wife of Edwin Lynn Thacker, exconvict and alleged embezzler, filed suit for divorce. The first Mrs. Thacker was freed on April 25.

Mrs. Anna Savage of Maywood couldn't get along with her stepdaughter. Mrs. Sarah G. Kelly brought her accommodating husband to court to testify that he had "another woman." Two more decrees.

Mrs. Mamie Kitzmiller used to beat up Roy, her husband, so he got a divorce.

THIS LIZARD FAILS TO GET INTO CITY'S DRINKING WATER

Moorhouse Shows Eleven Inch Reptile Kept Out of Pumps by New Screens.

An eleven inch lizard which might have appeared in tiny bits in water glasses on dinner tables appeared on the desk of Commissioner of Public Works William R. Moorhouse pickled in alcohol yesterday. Several such reptiles got into the pumps in the Sixty-eighth street station several months ago and were ground to pieced.

At that time small mesh screens were installed at the station, as the larger screens at the intakes had failed to prevent the entrance of fish and lizards. The lizard on Mr. Moorhouse's desk is one which was caught on this new inner screen.

"We got several large perch, this lizard, and about 2,000 minnows out of the screen in about five days," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen. "Chicago's water at present is almost as clear and clean as filtered water."

CHILD OF 6 KILLED BY AUTO.

Luciano Losuchian, 6 years old, 840 Jefferson street, was struck and fatally hurt by an automobile truck when near his home yesterday. The boy was playing in the street when struck. He died an hour later at his home of a fractured skull. George Beachy, 1633 West Grand avenue, the chauffeur, is being held by the police.

Held for Annoying Girl at Movie.

Gustav Beck of 4233 South Wabash avenue was arrested by policemen last night after he is alleged to have attempted to take liberties with a 10 year old girl in the Kozy theater, 40 South Clark street.

'U' INSTRUCTOR WRECKED HOME, AVERS HUSBAND

Clark Hallam, Son of Lawyer and Nephew of Minnesota Justice, Is Sued.

Clark Hallam, son of Joseph W. Hallam, Chicago lawyer, and nephew of Justice Oscar Hallam of the Minnesota Supreme court, was pictured as a magnetic home wrecker yesterday in Judge Thomson's court, where Daniel A. Farrell of 6234 South Paulina street was asking for a divorce.

Farrell also has brought suit for $25,000 charging alienation of affections against Hallam. He told the court he became suspicious of his wife last January when on several occasions he said he returned to his house and found she had left their 7 year old daughter to play in the streets.

Gas Turned On.

"One night she refused to go out with me," Farrell testified. "About midnight I found her in the bathroom. She had turned on the gas. A doctor revived her. The next day she refused to eat or drink until I called Hallam. When he arrived at the house my wife asked me to leave the room so that she could be alone with him.

"Later I found them sitting on a bed, hugging and kissing. Some time afterward Hallam sent his trunk to the house. My wife put her belongings in it and left. I filed a suit against Hallam for $25,000 in Sioux City, Ia., where he went to live, charging that he alienated her affections.

Now Lives at Hotel.

"My wife has since lived at a hotel. I called to see her once and found Hallam's picture on a dresser.

"She said 'I've got all the money I want now. Hallam is going to make a society leader out of me and give me a musical education.'"

Hallam is said to be an instructor in Spanish in the University of Chicago. It was explained in court that he is a member of the First Illinois cavalry and will not be mustered out until Nov. 10. Hence the hearing was continued until Nov. 11.

B'NAI BRITH TO GIVE LOEB'S PROTEGE A JOB.

Story of Youthful Ex-Convict's Struggle Against Odds Attracts Society's Big Brother Official.

Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, head of the B'nai Brith big brother movement, will get a job for the youthful ex-convict in Denver, Colo., who was discharged from his last position after a Joliet prison guard walked into the store where he was working. Dr. Coffee telephoned to Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board of education, who sent the boy to Denver after he had contracted tuberculosis, and told him that the youth would be cared for.

"It happened that Abe Cowan, who is head of the big brother committee in Denver, was in Chicago," said Dr Coffee. "Both of us read the story in THE TRIBUNE and decided that if we could be of any service we would offer our help. We got the boy's address from Mr. Loeb. Mr. Cowan is going back to Denver tomorrow and he will see that the youth is cared for."

Mr. Cowan is a brother of Israel Cowan of Chicago.

One Hundred Dollars Advance in Price on Roadster and Touring Models
COLE 8
Months ago our dealers were notified that an advance in the list price of Cole Eight Cars would become effective on deliveries after January 1.
It is now known that the advance on the touring and roadster models will be $100 per car. On or before January 1 we will announce the advance in the prices of other models.
In line with our announced policy at the beginning of the season, present models will be continued during next season without change.
Present prices will prevail on all cars delivered before January 1, 1917. All cars ordered for delivery after that date will be at the new prices.
The same high-grade material will be used throughout in Cole construction with refinements in minor details from time to time as is our custom.

AMERICAN SLAIN BY VILLA FORCES, WHO SEIZE TOWN?

Outlaws and Carranza Men in Fight Close to South Base of Pershing's Army.

Chihuahua City, Nov. 4.—Dr. Fisher, an American physician living at Santa Rosalia, was killed by the Villa bandits under Gen. Baudelio Uribe, according to the statement of a Mexican refugee who arrived here from Santa Rosalia today. Dr. Fisher was one of the few Americans known to have been in Santa Rosalia at the time the Villa bandits captured the town.

Jimenez, the junction point on the Mexican Central railroad of the Parral line, has been evacuated by Carranza forces under Gen. Fortunato Maycotte, who has fallen back upon Escalon, about eighty miles south of Jimenez, a semi-official report states.

At Escalon it is expected that junction will be effected with Gen. Murgia's division of 6,000 troops and the forces of Gen. Domingo Arrieta and those of Gen. Herrera.

A detachment of Carranza troops has been sent north from Chihuahua City after the bandit band of Juan Murgia and the Quevedo brothers, who held up and robbed the Mexican Central train at Laguna station Monday evening.

Fight Near American Base.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Seventy Villa bandits were killed and nineteen taken prisoners and executed in an engagement between 250 Constitutionalist troops and 300 bandits yesterday near Namiquipa, Chihuahua, thirty miles south of the extreme American army outpost, according to an official report received tonight by Gen. Francisco Gonzales in Juarez. Government losses were twenty killed and five missing.

The routed bandits were reported to have fled east. They were apparently making their way toward the American lines when engaged by the Constitutionalist force.

A report from field headquarters of Gen. Pershing's expedition tonight reported another engagement between Villa and Carranza forces as having occurred yesterday at Santa Ana, seventy-five miles south of El Valle, in which out of a force of fifty Villistas several were killed and eleven taken prisoners.

Tells of Villa Cruelty.

A semi-official dispatch from Chihuahua City tonight described the mutilation of Carranza troops taken prisoner at Santa Rosalia by Villa, together with the murder of a number of Chinese and Arabs. A Carranza soldier pleaded with Villa for his life.

"I am the only support of my aged mother," he begged.

"Where is your mother?" Villa asked.

"Over in the Plaza," said the soldier.

"Bring her to me, that I may know you are telling the truth."

The prisoner returned shortly with an aged woman.

"Here's my mother," he said.

Villa raised his pistol and shot her.

"Now," said the bandit chief, "you have no one dependent upon you and no reason why you should not be killed."

The soldier's body was left lying in the street beside that of his mother.

Confirm Fall of Parral.

Confirmation of the report that Villa has captured the important town of Parral was received today by United States army department officials and transmitted to Washington

The fate of ten Americans who were known to be in Parral at the time Villa's army took possession is not known and much fear is expressed for their safety.

Representatives of American mining companies who are acquainted with the surroundings at Parral believe the Americans escaped to the mountains when the de facto garrison evacuated.

Col. Rosario Garcia, Villista leader, and two of his followers were executed at daybreak at Juarez today.

Evanston Girl for Whose Wedding Nov. 18 Invitations Are Out.

Miss Edna Ellsworth Betts

I. D. TOLOFF PHOTO

Invitations have been issued for the the wedding of Miss Edna Ellsworth Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Betts of Evanston, to Winthrop Marquard Trask, Nov. 18. The ceremony will be performed at the Betts home, 2219 Central street, Evanston. Miss Betts is a graduate of Northwestern university and a member of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

MORELY JURY STILL OUT; ASKS ABOUT PUNISHMENT.

Whether John Morely, accused of the slaying of Daniel D. Fitzgerald, will serve time for murder or manslaughter seemed to be the contention that held a jury in Judge Pam's court for more than twenty-five hours.

Morely said he shot in defense at Fitzgerald, who was a member of the Gordon Athletic club. There was a heated rivalry between the clubs.

"He came at me with his hand in his pocket," Morely said, "and I shot him. He slid down the wall to the floor."

During the day the jury asked Judge Pam for instructions. The jurymen wanted to know whether they could fix the sentence if the verdict were manslaughter. They were answered negatively. They returned to their deliberations.

SUED BY WIFE, BUT SENDS KISS BY TELEPATHY

Louis Nehring, 73 Years Old, Writes Letters to "My Dear Minniekin."

Sued for annulment of his marriage and the recovery of his money, Louis Nehring, 73 years old, still wrote love letters to his wife, it is charged.

And Thursday, John J. Byrne, attorney for Mrs. Minnie Lange Peo Nehring, will present the letters in court, at the hearing of his petition to dismiss the suit for want of equity. He says he will show that Mr. Nehring doesn't want an annulment—that he is still in love with his wife.

Writes of God's Will.

"My Only Minniegin," began a missive dated Oct. 30, 1916. "I cannot realize it is possible we should have such great trouble when I intended everything well with you. It breaks my heart. Is it the will of God, or is the devil playing with us? This is good-by. You probably do not wish to know anything more of me until we see one another on the other side, if God wills. With God nothing is impossible, and he who trusts in Gad has not built on sand. I hope we can speak together yet once more. I cannot be angry with you."

"My Dear Minniekin."

Here are excerpts from the other letters:

"Sick and with worried and sorrowful heart, I wish you a happy and lucky New Year. I learned that —— and —— are trying to part us. If that is the case, then I am lost for eternity, my dear Minniekin.

"I am lost and abandoned without a home— I think the dear God will order that —— and —— will pay in hell for the wrong they have done me.

"But it does me no good here on earth. Your eternity loving husband. One greeting and a sweet kiss in thought. O, how heavy is my heart."

Nehring charges that he was ordered from his wife's home at 2430 Surrey court, because he had kissed a young woman in his wife's presence. He declares the whole thing—even the kiss—a "frameup" to get his money from him. At present he is in his Prairie du Chien, Wis., home waiting for the resumption of the trial.

Widow Dies Suddenly.

Mrs Fredericka Young, 1960 North Clark street, a widow, died suddenly in her home, supposedly of natural causes, yesterday. She is survived by two children, Charles Young and Mrs. Birdie Nienan.

LEASED WIRE OPERATORS FORM THEIR OWN UNION.

250 Men Object to "Sandbag" Methods of Dealing with Employers, Vice President Slade Says.

Leased wire telegraph operators in Chicago yesterday severed their connection with the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America and founded the Fraternity of Leased Wire Telegraphers. Its chief officers are: President, R. E. McCarthy; vice president, W. J. Slade; secretary, D. S. Clark.

Two hundred and fifty operators from the offices of brokers and newspapers were present at the Hotel La Salle, where the action was taken. The total number of leased wire operators in the United States is said to be about 3,000.

"The purpose of the new organization," said Mr. Slade, "is to get away from the word 'union' and union methods of dealing with our employers. We believe there are better ways than going around with a chip on our shoulders. We do not think it is essential to continually campaign with the idea of amassing power to sandbag our employers.

"One element which entered into the breaking away from the old union was that we objected to the invariable election of S. J. Konenkamp as international president."

THIS CHICAGO GIRL HAS $10,000,000 FOR A MINUTE.

8 Year Old Helen Graham Holds 'King's Ransom' in Bills in Hand While Visiting U. S. Treasury.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Eight year old Helen Graham of Chicago was the richest girl in the world yesterday, but only for a little while. She was visiting in Washington with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Graham, and accompanied them on a tour through the treasury department.

They saw the register of the treasury signing a number of $10,000 bills to be sent to the federal reserve bank of New York. The register suggested that little Miss Graham have the privilege of holding $1,000,000 in her hands, which she did, the package being about an inch thick. Then the register let her hold the entire stack of $10,000 bills in front of him, which amounted to $10,000,000 in value.

It is the common experience of tourists through the treasury department to be permitted to handle money, but $10,000,000—well, such sums usually are watched pretty closely.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

After deliberating for twenty-nine hours, a jury last night returned a verdict before Judge Pam findi g John Morely guilty of manslaughter.

The verdict carries with it a sentence of from one year to life imprisonment. Morely was charged with killing D. Fitzgerald in Finley's saloon, 4701 South Halsted street.

'DIP' NEAR DEATH REFUSES TO TELL WHO SHOT HIM

John Phillips Says He'll Recover Sufficiently to 'Get' His Assailant.

John Phillips, notorious pickpocket, is dying at the county hospital with two bullet wounds in his side, but the tight lipped law of the underworld protects the assassin who shot him from cover and fled.

"I won't tell who he is," gasped Phillips. "I'll get him myself when I get well."

"But you won't get well," the physicians told him. "You had better tell us who shot you."

"I'll get well enough to get him, don't worry," said Phillips.

Phillips, who also is known as Sam Crowley, was shot down as he stood drinking at the bar in John Generalla's saloon at 1500 West Harrison street.

The shots were fired from a back room, according to Generella, his bartender, and several customers who were questioned by the uolice. Generalla said the assailant wore a light hat and light clothes. He escaped through a side door.

An empty pocketbook was found on the floor of the saloon, and the police of the Lake street station believe Phillips and some co-worker of the dip fraternity quarreled over a division of the money.

HUSBAND ILL; WIFE ASKS JOB

Mrs. Leon Smith Appeals for Work —Seeks Place in the Country.

This woman is confident that work needs her as much as she needs work. She has stepped up to the firing line from which illness forced her husband to win a livelihood for herself and family and give him a chance for health in the country.

"I need work to care for my family," writes Mrs. Leon M. Smith of 2835 Washington boulevard. "If we could secure the commission to take care of some one's summer home we would be willing to do so for small remuneration, sufficient to live on. My husband and I both understand the care of horses, dogs, and stock. Mr. Smith is not bedridden, but his physician has advised that his best chance lies in the open country and light work."

Mrs. Smith's telephone is Van Buren 1207.

COME SEE NEXT YEAR'S HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Compare it with the car on which, to December 1st., you can save $175.00

There is little difference in these two cars. Just a few changes that at once show the advantage of buying a car of the present production now. The price increase of $175 is forced by enormous cost of materials.

The Hudson Company is just completing the current year's production. These are the last cars to be built from materials contracted a year ago. On December 1 the new production starts. The materials for the coming cars cost vastly more than the first cars cost. That is due to market conditions.

To show that the cars of the present production are not materially different from those of the coming production, the factory has brought through some samples that show just what changes are to be made.

We have urged you to save $175 by buying a car of the current production before December 1.

Now we invite you to come and compare the two cars. They are on our floor side by side. You will at once see the advantage in buying your next year's car now. And you will see why the price of any unsold car of present production will advance December 1.

Any unsold Hudson Super-Six will be sold next spring at new prices. Thrifty men will see the advantage of buying now. A Hudson Super-Six open model to December 1 will cost $1475 with freight added. After Dec. 1 the price will be $1650 plus freight.

1917 Costs Are Fixed 1917 Models Are Known

Automobile manufacturers must contract materials for one year in advance. That is necessary, else they can not meet their requirements. So every maker knows the cost of his next year's car and knows that prices cannot drop.

Eighteen makers have already announced price increases. And many have stated they will have no change in models.

Not all cars will advance, perhaps. Some makers may lower the grade of materials. Some whose profits are too high may cut them.

But all makers who use Hudson grade of materials must provide for this added cost.

Have You Noted These Proofs of Endurance

The Hudson Super-Six performance is well known.

Rivals no longer question that. The evidence attested for by the American Automobile Association is conclusive. In acceleration, speed, and hill climbing no car in the world holds such records. There are no stock car records that the Super-Six does not hold.

But there is a more important thing than that a stock chassis traveled at a speed of 102½ miles an hour. Or that a fully equipped 7-passenger stock car carrying 5 passengers and with top and windshield up should go 100 miles in 80 minutes. And the fact that a Hudson Super-Six made the record time up Pike's Peak in the world's greatest hill climb against 20 contestants does not count for so much.

But the matter of endurance is all important. How long will the car last—what punishment will it stand—are the things to know.

In this the Hudson Super-Six excels any record known. A stock chassis traveled 1,819 miles in 24 hours—337 miles farther than any traveling machine ever went in that space of time.

Twice Across America in Express Train Time

And a Hudson Super-Six 7-passenger Touring Car is the only automobile ever to attempt a round trip across America against time. In the going and return trip between San Francisco and New York it made better time than any other car ever made the ocean-to-ocean run.

These things prove supreme endurance. The patented Super-Six motor, to be had only in the Hudson, makes such feats possible. The Super-Six motor cannot be imitated. The owner of a Hudson Super-Six—and there are almost 25,000 owners now—knows that his car excels any car in the world in these things. The finish, beauty, comfort, luxury and quality match the motor.

But these are facts for later buyers. Today the question is whether you are going to save $175 by buying now.

With such a saving you could afford to buy your car and put it in storage until you want to take it out next spring.

The Fight For FRESH AIR

Mothers, Physicians, School Teachers, Business Men and others interested in the health of the community have long clamored for something that would permit fresh air through the windows, without admitting drafts, rain, dirt, burglars, etc. Uncle Sam's patent office is all littered up with futile, ineffective devices classed by their fond authors as "window ventilators." Yet, after failures innumerable, that which seemed impossible has finally been achieved, and "The Fight for Fresh Air" has been won by the

BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR

18 East Jackson Blvd. Phone Harrison 915

This marvelous device admits more fresh air than any other window ventilator; but, at the same time, it prevents drafts; excludes rain, dirt and snow; and locks the open window against burglars.

TENS of thousands of Berry Ventilators are now in use, giving satisfaction and saving lives in homes, offices, hospitals, schools, libraries, government institutions, shops, factories, etc. Hundreds of thousands of Berry Ventilators will soon be in use now that Dr. Berry has

ELIMINATED THE MIDDLEMAN'S PROFIT

Orr & Lockett, former exclusive sales agents, have gone out of business, and as a result the manufacturer now offers Berry Ventilators direct to the consumer at a big reduction in price, and gives a money-back guarantee of satisfaction. Any Berry Window Ventilator may be returned within two weeks and money will be refunded.

The Berry Window Ventilator is collapsible, operating like an accordion. It opens and closes with the window. It does not interfere with the operation of the window, and when not in use lies flat on the inside of the sill—out of the way. The amount of air admitted is easily regulated. One can attach it to the window or detach it within a single second.

CALL OR PHONE OR ORDER BY MAIL

To determine size of ventilator needed, close your window and measure from window stop to window stop on inside of sill close up to window. The "window stop" is the perpendicular strip that holds the window in place. Any size in this table will fit window openings any part of 3 inches wider than the length of the ventilator.

Germans Claim American Flag Was Used in Treacherous Attack on Submarine.

BERLIN, Nov. 4, by wireless to Sayville.—The German admiralty has furnished the Associated Press the details of what is characterized as a second Baralong case. A British patrol ship, flying American colors, it is declared, after destroying submarine U-41, ran down a rowboat with the only two survivors of the undersea boat in an endeavor to remove the only witnesses and has since prevented the intended victims from communicating the news to their own government.

The incident, according to the admiralty, occurred on Sept. 24, 1915, and has only just been learned of through an invalided prisoner transferred to Switzerland. The submarine, according to the admiralty account, had halted in the neighborhood of the Scilly Isles for examination of a steamer under the American flag, apparently an innocent merchantman.

Open Concealed Ports.

The steamer ostensibly prepared to lower a boat, but when the submarine had approached to within 200 yards the supposed merchantman suddenly opened concealed ports and began firing from two cannon and also with rifles, the American flag flying the whole time.

The submarine went under, but was able to come to the surface later for an instant. Lieut. Crompton severely wounded and Petty Officer Godau managing to crawl out through an open hatch before the submarine sank forever. They managed to swim to an empty boat. The steamer, according to the admiralty details, then headed full speed for the boat to ram it. The Germans sprang from the boat and clung to the wreckage until seized by the steamer's crew.

Refused Medical Attention.

The two were left without medical attention in a small cage on the steamer's deck until its arrival at Falmouth the following day, it is declared, although the lieutenant was seriously wounded. It was not until Sept. 29 that the lieutenant was transferred to a shore hospital, clad at the time only in his underclothing.

A British surgeon later proposed to transfer the wounded officer, as totally invalided, to Switzerland, and a Swiss commission of surgeons twice voted that he be thus sent, but the British surgeon general, it is declared, vetoed the plan. Lieut. Crompton repeatedly attempted to send his report through the American embassy in London, it is asserted, but no report from him reached Germany.

THREAT TO GREEK REBELS.

Royal Troops Under Orders to Force Evacuation of City by the Insurgents.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Greek government has sent reinforcements from Larissa to the garrison from Katerina which recently evacuated that place before the advance of insurgent forces, says a Reuter dispatch from Athens today. The regular army, adds the dispatch, has orders to summon the insurgents to evacuate Katerina under penalty of attack by the government forces.

Russians Crush Turkish Attacks.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4, via London.—Turkish offensives in two sectors of the Caucasus front have been suppressed by Russian troops, according to today's war office announcement regarding operations in this war area.

CONVOY FOR DEUTSCHLAND WOULD MAKE IT WARSHIP

German Embassy Says It Has No Knowledge of Such a Purpose, However.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—The German embassy today, declaring it has no knowledge of a purpose to furnish a fighting submarine convoy for the merchant submarine Deutschland on its return trip, agreed that such a convoy would take away the Deutschland's status as a peaceful merchantman.

This is a well recognized principle of international law, officials at the embassy said.

At the British embassy officials said if the Deutschland is met by a convoy outside the three mile limit it will undoubtedly supply that vessel with fuel, which, in their opinion, removes its peaceful character.

WAR INDUSTRIES ULTIMATE CAUSE OF COAL FAMINE

Shortage of Coal Cars and of Steel to Construct New Ones.

VAST EASTERN CONSUMPTION.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

The chief cause of the coal famine, which prevails with various degrees of intensity all over the country, is the scarcity of coal cars in which to move coal from the mines. Lacking sufficient cars to carry their full production, the mines are not working full time. Experts say that the average coal mine is not now producing more than 50 per cent of its capacity.

The chief reason why the railroads are not able to furnish a sufficient number of coal cars is the fact that an enormous number of such cars are now being used to haul steel products and other manufactured materials—very largely munitions of war—from Pittsburgh and eastern factories to the water shipping points.

At the sea ports there is a great shortage of ships into which to unload the manufactured goods sent east for export. Therefore the railroad cars are likely to be kept on switch tracks for weeks waiting for ships to be available.

C., B. & Q. Solution.

Determined to keep its coal cars at home, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company, for instance, is refusing to allow any of its cars to go east of Chicago. Its experience has been that once a coal car gets east of the city it is seized for use in handling steel or other products from the mills at Pittsburgh or some other great munition center and is not returned to its owner for months. Other railroads are having a similar experience.

Adverse railroad legislation and the fact that, until the war broke in Europe, railroads have been hard pressed to pay expenses are usually given as the chief reasons for a scarcity of railroad equipment all over the country. Yet the fact remains that for the first six months of this year the railroads somehow managed to handle 35 per cent more coal than was mined during the same six months last year.

Steel for Cars Scarce.

It is also true that when the railroads woke up some months ago to the fact that they could now afford to buy new equipment and tried to place their orders for steel coal cars they found that almost all the mills making steel products were tied up for months ahead with orders for munitions. "I was one of the first to place orders for new coal cars," says a western railroad president, "and I shall not be able to get the first delivered until next August. That will hardly help us in the present emergency."

The enormous surplus of coal produced during the first six months of this year was almost all consumed by July 1. Comparatively few plants have more than a couple of week's supply on hand.

War Industries' Consumption.

The cause of this vast consumption of steam coal is also chiefly to be found in the fact that hundreds of factories east of Chicago are working overtime on the manufacture of war munitions. Factories which two years ago were either closed or were working eight hours a day are now running two or three shifts of men and are using two or three times as much steam coal.

For instance, the Cambria Steel company in normal times burns 4,000 tons of steam coal a day. Its consumption now is more than 10,000 tons a day. Before the war the site of the great Du Pont explosives town of Hopewell, Va., was a barren field. Its furnaces are now burning 50,000 tons of coal a month. Such instances could be multiplied by a hundred.

West Furnishes Coal.

The result has been that all the eastern coal mining territory has not been able to produce enough steam coal to supply the abnormal demand in the east. Coal from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois has been diverted to the east, whereas normally coal moves from the east to the west. Within a week coal from central Illinois has been shipped as far east as Buffalo and even to central New York.

Furthermore, while the increase in the export of coal to the warring countries and to South America has not been enormous—amounting, however, to a good many million tons—it has been enough to increase the scarcity in the east and to hasten the approach of the present coal famine.

Finally, the coal mine operators complain bitterly of the scarcity of labor. They cannot get enough miners to keep their plants running full time. That also works back to the munition factories. The railroads cannot furnish cars enough to haul all the coal the mines can produce. Therefore the mines are closed down on an average of three days a week. In the munition factories miners can get work for six days a week at good wages. Who can blame them for going where the work is steady?

The Situation.

With the interstate commerce commission ready to hold a formal investigation, with the public utility commission of many states already at work, with railroads east and west of Chicago declaring embargoes against each other, with the coal mines of the country running only half time, it begins to be clear that Chicago and all the rest of the country faces a serious if not a disastrous coal famine—and that war time prosperity is chiefly responsible for it.

GRAND OPERA STAR WEDDED IN MAINE

OLIVE FREMSTAD.

Bridgton, Me., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Miss Olive Fremstad, the grand opera singer, was married today at her summer home to Harry Lewis Brainard of New York. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. T. Livingston, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city.

This is Miss Fremstad's second marriage. Her first husband was Edison W. Sutpen, formerly a lieutenant in the United States navy. They were divorced in 1911, the decree having been granted to Miss Fremstad by Justice Lehman in the New York Supreme court.

Although born in Stockholm, Sweden, Miss Fremstad has lived in the United States since she was 10 years old and is an American citizen.

MAY BOYCOTT STORAGE EGGS

Chicago Branch of Housewives' League Watches Market Closely.

Chicago housewives may be asked any day in the near future to follow the lead of New York matrons and again declare a boycott on cold storage eggs. All eggs not bought directly from farmers or poultry men would be included.

Yesterday the executive committee of the National Housewives' league at its headquarters in New York voted to urge the 700,000 members of the league scattered throughout the country to boycott the "egg trust" until prices went down to normal.

Reach 70 Cents in New York.

In New York the price of eggs ranged during the day between 60 and 70 cents a dozen. In Chicago the highest retail prices have not passed 50 cents. An average price at the better stores for first grade was 45 cents a dozen.

"The action of the national executive committee," said Mrs. James Bley, head of the Chicago branch, "is in no way binding on affiliated branches, although usually we follow suggestions which are practical.

"Just at present I do not believe it is necessary for the league to ask Chicago women to declare a boycott. From our boycott of two years ago the dealers know just about how far they can go in raising prices. Besides, I think the women know enough from their previous experience voluntarily to boycott the speculators without being instructed to do so.

"However, we will keep close watch on developments, and if prices continue to rise we will act."

Organize Co-op.

John Boulter of 2341 Park avenue yesterday announced the incorporation in Illinois of a coöperative society designed to combat the high cost of living. The society is called the National Mutual alliance. The alliance, according to Mr. Boulter, expects eventually to establish a string of stores and otherwise follow out the plan of the English coöperative systems.

AMERICAN FLYERS ARE SENT FROM VERDUN TO SOMME.

Aviation Squadron Is Transferred to New Scene of Fighting—Has Done Good Work.

GRAND HEADQUARTERS, FRENCH ARMIES, Nov. 4.—Following a month's hard fighting at Verdun, the American aviation squadron attached to the French army has been transferred to the Somme front, now the center of the greatest aerial activity.

The American fliers, after several days of comparative quiet on the Verdun front, took part in the reconnaissances that preceded the French victory at Verdun. They aided Gen. Nivelle in the bold dash that won back Fort Douaumont and Fort Vaux.

Their transfer to the Somme front at this time is considered the highest possible mark of France's confidence in the ability of the Americans.

GREEK ARMY MEETS REBELS IN FIGHT BEFORE KATERINA.

LONDON, Nov. 5, 3 a. m.—The Greek army arrived outside of Katerina and an engagement with the Venizelists began tonight, says a dispatch to the Sunday Observer from Athens dated Friday.

NEW ADVANCES BY ROUMANIANS IN TRANSYLVANIA

Bucharest Reports Successes Along Buzen and Jiul Rivers —Berlin Admits Defeat.

ALL IS QUIET IN DOBRUDJA.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 4.—The war office announced today that Roumanian troops have advanced to the west of Buzeu river and also at Table Butzi, on the Transylvanian front.

West of the Jiul the pursuit of the Austro-German forces continues. There has been a bombardment all along the Danube. The statement follows:

Northern and northwestern fronts —On the western Moldavian frontier the situation is unchanged.

West of the Buzeu stream we advanced and captured some war material.

At Table Butzi we advanced in a northerly direction in the valley of Teloajen and took three officers and 104 men prisoners and captured two machine guns.

Takes Captives in Prahova.

In the Prahova valley there has been an artillery bombardment. We took one officer and twenty-seven men prisoners.

In the region of Dragoslavele [northeast of Campulung] there was an artillery bombardment.

To the left of the Alt the fighting continues.

To the west of the Jiul we continued our pursuit of the enemy, taking four guns and more than twenty machine guns, together with 435 prisoners and a considerable quantity of war material, including much munitions.

Southern front—There has been a bombardment all along the Danube with light skirmishes in Dobrudja.

Russian War Report.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4.—The continued retreat of the Austro-German forces in the Jiul valley on the southern Transylvania front was announced today by the war office. Additional prisoners and four guns have been captured by the Roumanians. Following is the announcement:

In Transylvania attempts of the enemy to attack in the valley of the Alt were arrested by our artillery fire.

In the direction of the Jiul the enemy, owing to Roumanian pressure, continues to retire northward. In this region a number of prisoners, four guns, and other war booty were captured.

In Dobrudja only outpost activity is reported.

German War Report.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—[By Wireless to Sayville.]—Rosca height, southeast of Altschanz, on the Hungarian-Roumanian front, has been occupied by the Roumanians, the war office announces. In the region of Predeal Austro-German forces recaptured a position from the Roumanians. The announcement follows:

On the northern part of the Transylvania east front fighting was again more active, but thus far without important infantry engagements. On the south front an isolated Roumanian attack was repulsed. Rosca height, southeast of Altschanz, has been occupied by the enemy.

Southwest of Predeal we recaptured a Roumanian position which had been taken Nov. 2 but was lost again the following night. More than 250 prisoners fell into our hands.

There were no important events in Dobrudja.

The situation on the Macedonian front is unchanged.

Bulgarian War Report.

SOFIA, Nov. 3, via London, Nov. 4.—The Bulgarian war office in its official summary of conditions today says:

Macedonian front—A weak attack by the enemy at Lake Malik was repulsed. Our positions in the plain of Bitolia were bombarded fruitlessly. In the Struma valley there was ineffective artillery firing. The enemy abandoned the village of Kakarauka.

Roumanian front — Unchanged. Warships of the enemy shelled Constanza, but were driven off by our coast guns. Along the Danube there was a mild exchange of cannon and rifle fire.

Austrian War Report.

VIENNA, via London, Nov. 4.—Regarding operations on the Transylvanian front the official statement issued by Austro-Hungarian general headquarters today says:

Front of Archduke Charles—The enemy continued his attacks in northern Wallachia. With the exception of the recapture of Rosca, a frontier height in the region southeast of Kronstadt [Brasso], he achieved no success anywhere.

In fights around the height position southwest of Predeal, against which stubborn attacks were directed, 250 Roumanian prisoners were brought in. There was Roumanian artillery activity on the eastern Siebenbürgen [Transylvanian] front.

SCHOOL DENTISTS INQUIRY.

Dr. Robertson Names University School Dean and Others to Conduct Investigation.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, yesterday ordered an investigation of the charge that city dentists have been doing slipshod work in treating school children. Dr. Robertson appointed Dr. T. W. Brophy, dean of the Chicago Dental school; Dr. G. C. Poundstone of the Chicago Dental college, and Dr. John M. Gallie, professor in the University of Illinois Dental school, to conduct the inquiry.

Republican enthusiasm sometimes descends from father to daughters as well as to sons. Some of the girls most interested in the campaign of Mr. Hughes are those whose fathers have been prominent in political circles both in the Republican and the Progressive parties. Miss Margaret Torrison, daughter of Judge Oscar Torrison, has been one of the girls who has distributed literature at the street meetings, and is one of the promising young speakers. Miss Ellen Taylor of 118 East Twenty-fifth street is the daughter of one of the First ward Progressives, and Miss Ruth Brown of Evanston is a Northwestern university girl who has recently been added to the group of young women workers and enthusiasts for Hughes.

Superdreadnaught Sevastopol Crippled, According to Report Which Comes from Swedish Source.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Nov. 4.—The Russian superdreadnought Sevastopol, one of the greatest fighting ships of the czar's navy, ran upon a mine eight days ago and was badly damaged, according to a Stockholm dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende. A Swedish merchant, returning from a trip through Russia and Finland brought the news.

German Imperial Military Court Refuses to Grant New Trial to Socialist Leader.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—[Via London.]—It was officially announced today that the imperial military tribunal has rejected the appeal of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Socialist leader, from the sentence imposed upon him by the court martial at Berlin.

[Dr. Liebknecht was sentenced by a court-martial at Berlin to four years and one month's imprisonment for military treason. He appealed to the imperial military tribunal.]

NINETY-TWO DIE AFTER COLLISION IN THE IRISH SEA

Only Two Persons Escape Disaster to Steamers Connemara and Retriever.

STORM CAUSE OF ACCIDENT.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Ninety-two persons were drowned when the steamers Connemara and Retriever collided during a heavy storm in the Irish sea, off Carlingford Lough, last night.

Only two persons escaped. One of them was a passenger on the Connemara and the other was a member of the crew of the Retriever.

The two vessels lie, partly submerged, within sight of land. Heavy seas are breaking over them.

Among the bodies picked up between Kilkeel and Cranfield Point were those of Capt. G. H. Doeg of the Connemara and his son.

No American Victims.

The Connemara carried fifty-one passengers and a crew of thirty and had its lower decks filled with cattle. The Retriever carried a crew of thirteen and no passengers, as far as is known. It is believed that no American was on either ship.

Ten bodies were washed ashore at Cranfield Point, fifty miles north of Dublin. Near the same spot a number of cattle swam ashore from the Connemara. The bodies of many more were found along the coast, mingled with human corpses and wreckage of the two steamers.

Incoming ships reported the Connemara floating bottom up outside the bar.

Story of Lone Survivor.

William Boyle, a member of the crew of the Retriever and the only survivor of that ship, has given but a fragmentary account of the tragedy. The Retriever, he said, became unmanageable in the furious storm as it approached the narrow entrance to Carlingford Lough.

Through the darkness its captain suddenly sighted the outbound Connemara, fighting its way toward Holyhead on the crest of a wave. The Retriever tried vainly to change its course, but bore down on the Connemara, with a blow that lifted it completely out of the water and threw it over on the side. The Connemara apparently capsized before a boat could be launched. The Retriever sank in a few minutes.

WILL PROCLAIM POLAND INDEPENDENT STATE TODAY.

Germany and Austria Ready to Announce Hereditary Monarchy and Prepare for Its Army.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4, via London.—According to a Berlin dispatch received here, Gen. von Bresler, governor general of Warsaw, will issue a proclamation tomorrow saying that the German and Austrian emperors have agreed to establish an independent state of Poland with a hereditary monarchy and a constitution. A precise definition concerning the frontiers of Poland is reserved.

The proclamation will say that the glorious traditions of the Polish armies in the present and former wars will be perpetuated in a national army, whose organization and training will be regulated by mutual agreement.

"The great western neighbors of the kingdom of Poland," the proclamation will conclude, "will see with pleasure rearise and flourish at their eastern frontiers a free and happy state which rejoices in its national life."

PERMITS DUMBA TO RESIGN

Austrian Emperor Thanks Former Envoy to America for Services He Has Done.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—[By wireless to Sayville]—Emperor Francis Joseph has accepted the resignation of Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, the Austrian ambassador to the United States, says a Vienna dispatch to the Overseas News Agency. The emperor thanked Dr. Dumba for his "excellent services," says the dispatch.

Will Send New Envoy?

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—Acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Constantin Dumba as ambassador to the United States was taken by state department officials tonight as an indication that the Austrian government is about to name a new diplomatic representative to Washington.

Dr. Dumba returned to Austria after he was declared to be persona non grata by the United States government more than a year ago and that the fact that Austria has not sooner accepted his resignation from a post in which he could not serve was looked upon as showing that Emperor Francis Joseph desired to express displeasure with the United States in this fashion.

MADAME LE BRUN DIVORCED

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—J. Fitz Brind, a wealthy Denver manufacturer, was granted a divorce today from his second wife, Antoinette Le Brun Brind, former grand opera singer of Chicago, where she is said to have resided since the separation of the couple in Denver more than a year ago.

The divorce was granted on the ground of desertion. It is understood that Mrs. Brind will receive an amount close to $50,000 in settlement. The couple were married here six months after the death of Brind's first wife.

Mrs. Brind was known on the stage as Mme. Le Brun and is a descendant of Mme. Vigée Le Brun, a famous artist and beauty of Paris.

Rob Roy Ricketts, whose artistic temperament, commingling in financial matters, it was said, brought a $1,000,000 crash on the art house of Moulton & Ricketts in 1914, and who subsequently was divorced from his talented wife, was married at noon yesterday to Miss Gertrude Wagner of 534 Oakdale avenue. The ceremony was celebrated without the bustle and commotion occasioned by most of Mr. Ricketts' ecstatic moments.

Miss Wagner is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the granddaughter of Chicago pioneers. Her paternal grandfather was Ernest Wagner, founder of the first American Symphony orchestra at St. Paul.

Since his failure in 1914 Mr. Ricketts has reëstablished himself in business at the old stand, 71 East Van Buren street, and has come back strong financially. The couple will spend a few weeks in a country home at Delavan Lake.

ITALIANS SWEEP AUSTRIANS BACK

Gain Nearly Mile Toward Wippach River on the Triest Offensive.

ROME, Nov. 4.—Continuing their new offensive against the Austro-Hungarian forces in the Carso region on the road to Triest, the Italians yesterday advanced in the direction of the Wippach river for a distance of more than one kilometer. During the day the Italians took 553 prisoners.

New batteries placed by the Austrians maintained an intense barrage fire in the Goritz area throughout yesterday, says the official statement.

A strong Austrian position in the Travignolo-Avizio valley was captured by the Italians and afterward consolidated.

Italian War Report.

The text of today's statement reads:

In the Travignolo-Avizio valley our infantry carried by assault a strong position, the so-called observatory on the southern slopes of Cima Boeche, about 100 meters from the summit. In spite of a violent bombardment which was opened on the position our troops consolidated their occupation of it.

In the zone east of Goritz the enemy brought into action new batteries of all calibers, and during yesterday kept our positions under an intense barrage fire which was effectively answered by our artillery.

The offense on the Carso was prosecuted successfully. In the direction of the Vippaco valley we stormed the heights of the Mounte Volkovnjak, Point 126 and Point 123, a little east of San Grado. An advance of more than one kilometer eastward brought our troops to Point 291 and along the Oppachiasella-Castagnievizza road, to within 200 meters of the latter place.

A massed attack was directed against Point 208, but was broken by our concentrated fire, the enemy withdrawing in disorder and leaving numerous dead.

During the day we took 553 prisoners, including eleven officers and much loot.

Lose 39,000 Men in Two Days.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—In the first two days of the new Italian offensive the Austrians lost 39,000 men, according to a dispatch from Rome to the Wireless Press. The losses are said to have been distributed as follows: Killed, 10,000; wounded, 20,000; taken prisoner, 9,000.

Prisoners are reported to have said that Austrian battalions now do not contain more than 600 men, one-half of whom are from the new classes. The arrival on the battle front is reported of Kaiserjaeger regiments from the Tyrol and Hungarians from the Roumanian front.

FRENCH KEEP UP GAIN AT VERDUN

Advance Lines Several Hundred Yards Northeast of Fort Vaux.

PARIS, via London, Nov. 4.—Further progress for the French troops in the vicinity of Vaux, northeast of Verdun, is told of in the official communication issued tonight. The communication says:

North of the Somme the Germans this morning attempted to drive us from trenches we captured Wednesday in St. Pierre Vaast wood. The attack, which was preceded by a furious bombardment, was shattered by our curtain and machine gun fire. All the ground we had captured was maintained.

Our troops extended their progress in the Vaux region. We hold the western part of the village as far as the church. Northeast and east of the fort we have advanced several hundred yards from the work on the slopes which descend toward the Woevre. We again made prisoners.

British Official Report.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British war office tonight issued the following communication:

South of the Ancre the situation is unchanged. There was considerable hostile shelling around Les Boeufs and against Le Sars.

During the day we bombarded the enemy's line north of La Bassee canal and in the neighborhood of Bois Grenier and Messines. Enemy artillery and trench mortars were active north and south of Ypres.

A strong enemy party entered our trenches near Cuinchy last night, but was immediately expelled. An enemy counter attack east of Gueudecourt yesterday suffered heavy losses.

Germans Claim Repulse.

BERLIN, Nov. 4, by wireless to Sayville.—Attacks on German positions on the Somme front yesterday northwest of Courcelette and in the Gueudecourt-Les Boeufs sector were repulsed, the war office announced today. The statement follows:

Hostile attacks were preceded by a violent artillery duel. The attacks, however, carried out in only light fashion under our fire to the northwest of Courcelette and in the sector of Gueudecourt and Les Boeufs, were repulsed.

The hostile fire increased considerably against our positions on the heights east of the Meuse (Verdun front). French attacks between Douaumont and Vaux were without success.

More College Students to War.

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 4.—One hundred Stanford university men, undergraduates for the greater part, volunteered today for service in France with the American ambulance corps. Forty-eight signed up definitely for service. The other fifty-two have yet to obtain the consent of their parents.

HUGHES SHOWN LABOR'S FRIEND IN EVERY TEST

Mrs. Raymond Robins Sets Out Record of Republican Candidate.

ALWAYS BACKS THE TOILERS.

BY MARGARET DREIER ROBINS.

[Mrs. Raymond Robins, as one of the founders of the Women's Municipal League of New York and chairman of its legislative committee, and also as president of the New York Women's Trade Union league before beginning her notable service for working women in Chicago, has an intimate knowledge of Mr. Hughes' public service that is beneficial to labor.]—Reprinted from the Daily News of yesterday.

I am glad that my first presidential vote is to be cast for Charles Evans Hughes, for I am convinced that his record as governor of New York and as associate justice of the United States Supreme court demonstrates his knowledge and sympathetic understanding of some of the greatest needs of our country's life at the present time.

What is it that Mr. Hughes has done? In the first place, he gave the eight hour day to the working children of New York state; he gave protection to the boys on the streets and to the boys and girls in the factories and workshops. More than that, he showed that he understood the human values involved in our great industrial struggle by helping to get a law enacted which prohibited any girl under 16 years of age from working at any occupation which required standing during all the hours of the day's work.

Those of us who know the tremendous strain made necessary by the attempt to keep pace with the ever increasing speed of machinery know that by the tens of thousands our American young girls are jeopardizing at the machines all the hopes and possibilities of their wifehood and motherhood.

Backed 56 Labor Laws.

Mr. Hughes also saw to it that a law was enacted prohibiting young women under 21 years of age from engaging in night work. More than that, Mr. Hughes gave an eight hour day—and an honest one—to the railroad telegraphers and telephone operators of New York state. He shortened the work day for the street car men in cities of the second class and stood unequivocally for the six day week.

In all, under Mr. Hughes' administration as governor of New York fifty-six labor laws were enacted, one-third of all the labor laws ever enacted in New York state in the 133 years of its existence.

However, there is one other law to which I wish to call your attention, especially because its acceptance is significant of the character of Charles Evans Hughes. His attention was called to the many accidents in the industries of our country. He at once appointed a commission, the so-called Wainwright commission, to which testimony was brought regarding the accidents in the industries of the state; testimony was given by such men as John Mitchell, on the one hand, and women like Carola Woerishoffer on the other.

Obtains Liability Law.

Upon the recommendation of the Wainwright commission the first employers' liability and compensation law ever enacted in America was placed upon the statute books of New York state. Mr. Hughes was so far in advance of our time that the New York Court of Appeals declared that law unconstitutional.

Then Mr. Hughes did what he has always done when he felt the will of the people was being obstructed either through legislative or judicial action—he went to the people, gave them the facts, and gave them a chance for further action.

The men of New York called a constitutional convention, amended the state constitution, and with the amended state constitution placed another and a finer liability and compensation law upon the statute books of New York state.

Points to Death Toll.

What are these facts which Mr. Hughes so vividly presented to the people of New York state? In these days of peace we have an annual death toll of 250,000 man and woman workers in the industries of our country; in these days of peace we have annually 500,000 men, women, and children maimed, injured, and crippled in the industries of our country.

And yet, you and I know that the greatest assets of the nation's life and its most costly productions are not the great wheat fields, nor mountains rich in treasures of coal and iron, silver and gold, nor the great forests of our western coast, but the men and women of the nation, strong and free and virile enough to bring forth a great race.

The task before us is to see to it not that here and there one group of men or women rises upon the labor of others, but that straight through our national lives we give a fair chance to every boy and girl born in our land to rise to the point of manhood and womanhood.

Holds Labor Laws Valid.

Again as justice of the Supreme court of the United States, Mr. Hughes showed he understood the danger to the individual and the social cost to the community of long hours of work and low wages. It was Mr. Hughes who wrote the opinion declaring constitutional our Illinois child labor law.

And when the men of California wisely enacted an eight hour day for the working women in the factories, mills, and workshops of their state, it again was Charles Evans Hughes who wrote the opinion declaring constitutional the eight hour working day for the women workers in factories, mills, and workshops, including student nurses in hospitals and pharmacies in the state of California.

But Mr. Hughes has done more than that. The character of the man is seen in some of the minority opinions which he has given. The right of men and women to belong to a labor organization is frequently the most bitterly contested question in our industrial disputes.

Cites Kansas Union Labor Law.

In Kansas the state enacted a law protecting the workingman and working woman in their right to belong to such labor organizations. The question came before the United States Supreme court in the case of Coppage vs. Kansas, and in a minority opinion given by Mr. Hughes, with Justice Day and Justice Holmes, Mr. Hughes says:

"The right to join labor unions is undisputed, and has been the subject of frequent affirmation in judicial opinions. I think that the act now under consideration and kindred ones are intended to promote the general liberty of action for the employé such as the employer confessedly enjoys.

"The law should be as zealous to protect the constitutional liberty of the employé as it is to guard that of the employer. A principal object of the statute is to protect the liberty of the citizen to make such lawful affiliations as he may desire with organizations of his choice."

Again, Mr. Hughes held that the Iowa legislature had the right to prohibit contracts between employers and their workers limiting the latter's right to recover damages at common law for injuries in the course of employment. He joined repeatedly in upholding the constitutionality of state statutes abrogating or modifying the "fellow servant" doctrine, the outgrown concept that an injured employé was barred from recovery if the accident was due to the fault of a fellow employé.

Minimum Wage Legislation.

One of the most challenging facts of our times is the low wages paid to the working women in many of our industries. In a recent bulletin published by the United States public health service we are told that one-fifth of our women earn less than $4 a week—one-half less than $6 a week and two-thirds less than $8 a week for forty weeks in the year, as against the fifty-two weeks of the year.

These low wages arrest the attention of thinking men and women everywhere. Massachusetts on one hand and Oregon on the other have enacted minimum wage laws for the protection of our poorly paid woman workers and for the elimination of unfair competition with those employers who wish to be on the square with their workers. The question of the constitutionality of the minimum wage law has been carried from Oregon to the United States Supreme court and the decision has not yet been given to us.

Hughes Challenges Statement.

At its first hearing, however, Mr. Hughes was still a member of the court. When the counsel opposing the minimum wage law declared that the opinion of the court regarding hours of labor could not be applied to wages "because long hours break down women so that they become public charges; it is a condition growing out of employment; the amount of wages has no relation to health and morals," Justice Hughes challenged the statement, saying: "Supposing the court finds that one of the most menacing and overshadowing facts in our industrial life is the low wage paid the American working girl, what then would you have the court do?"

And with the question still before the court, Mr. Hughes was called from the United States Supreme court to be the next president of our country.

Stand on Suffrage Praised.

For years it has been my conviction that the disfranchisement of the working women is their great economic handicap, and I am equally convinced that the fine ability of American women can never reach its fullest development until we have side by side with the stimulus of opportunity for service the discipline of the obligations and responsibility of citizenship.

I therefore rejoice that Mr. Hughes came out unequivocally and courageously for the federal amendment to enfranchise the women of America, north and south, east and west, and I feel that it is significant that Mr. Hughes recognizes in the method of enfranchisement through the federal amendment one of the greatest issues before us. It is time for the people of the United States of America to conceive of themselves as one nation; for national action preceded by national thought is imperative to the high fulfillment of our country's ideals.

Recognizing in the industrial struggle and its just solution the greatest issue of our day and knowing that we must needs meet it, men and women together, shoulder to shoulder, I am for the election of Charles Evans Hughes as president, because I believe that his knowledge, courage, and integrity will help America play her part nobly in this human struggle for liberty and justice.

EGAN SEES 725,000 VOTE

Dennis J. Egan, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners, yesterday made the following forecast as to the vote which will be cast at the general election next Tuesday: Men, 475,000; women, 250,000; total, 725,000.

LABOR LEADERS PRAISE HUGHES; CITE RECORDS

Contrast Governor's Acts with Wilson's Bitter Words of a Few Years Ago.

Labor leaders of the United States yesterday issued an appeal to their fellow organized workers in all states to vote for Charles E. Hughes for president.

The labor record of Hughes when governor of New York, the need of a protective tariff, the bitter attitude of Woodrow Wilson toward union labor prior to his election to the presidency, and the friendly attitude of Hughes, the recent opposition of President Gompers and the American Federation of Labor to legislative regulation of wages and hours, and the Adamson law are the chief subjects discussed in the document.

Hughes' Labor Record.

"We earnestly urge every organized worker to cast his vote in the coming election for Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee, for president," the petition says. "Because of his demand for systematic and reasoned reform and his strict adherence to principle, our welfare would be safer in his hands. We may realize just how much the former governor of New York sought to accomplish for our benefit while in executive office when it is remembered that during his nearly four years at Albany he:

Asked for a commission to inquire into questions relating to employers' liability and compensation for workmen's injuries—the first step in that direction in America.

Reorganized and extended the powers of the labor department.

Restricted the hours of labor of children.

Promoted the health and safety of employés in mercantile establishments.

Appointed a commissisn to investigate the condition, welfare and industrial opportunities of aliens in the state.

Compelled the railroads to pay their men semi-monthly, instead of monthly.

Signed a law defining more clearly the application of the eight hour law to certain kinds of work.

Prevented abuses of persons out of work by employment agencies.

Sought to bring about a six day working week.

Based improvement in conditions upon full and fair inquiry into the facts before action.

Attitude on the Bench.

"Nor was he less sympathetic with our aims while a justice of the Supreme court of the United States. The hatters' case had already been decided in its essentials two years before his appointment. The opinion in which he took part merely was upon the technical point of whether the jury trial and assessment against the union had been made in proper form—questions of legal evidence and bookkeeping—which had nothing to do with the right or wrong of the contention that the hatters were subject to the Sherman anti-trust law.

"He has opposed the Adamson wage law, recently placed on the statute books by the present Democratic administration, because enacted without the thorough investigation which he has so consistently stood for and because of the relinquishment of the principle of arbitration which we cannot give up. That law does not limit the work of a day to eight hours. It provides the standard of compensation shall be eight hours instead of ten hours. It therefore merely increases the pay of the men 20 per cent.

Few Benefit from Law.

"Less than one-half of 1 per cent of the entire population benefits—about 400,000 in the brotherhoods. The 1,400,000 who work in the shops and freight houses and on the tracks receive no advantage.

"Without looking into the justice or necessity of the advance in wages at this time, which might have been ascertained by arbitration, the law was enacted at the expense of the clerks, small business men, farmers, and the entire remainder of the people. To refuse investigation and arbitration opens the way for such refusal in the future on the part of capital, which is better organized than labor.

Pulling the Records.

"The attitude of Mr. Hughes toward the Adamson law is consistent with that of the American Federation of Labor itself. In the convention at Philadelphia in 1914 the following resolution was adopted:

> The American Federation of Labor, as in the past, again declares that the question of the regulation of wages and hours of labor should be undertaken through trade union activity and not be made subjects of law through legislative enactment.

"Nor is the view of Mr. Hughes inconsistent with that of President Gompers. Speaking before the commmission on industrial relations of the constitutional convention of New York on May 26, 1915, Mr. Gompers thus expressed himself:

> I should say that I should not favor a proposition which would put power into the hands of the legislature to regulate the minimum wage for men in private employment or for the regulation of the hours of labor of men in private employment. Let me say this: That reading history as I have, I am chary of placing in the hands of any governmental agency power to regulate the conditions of employment of the workers of our country.

Hughes vs. Wilson.

"Of organized labor Gov. Hughes, in 1908, at the dedication of the Tuberculosis pavilion built by the Central Federation of Labor at Albany, said:

> My friends, there are some who regard organized labor as a source of strife and menace of difficulty. I regard it as a fine opportunity for the amelioration of the condition of men working with no other purpose than to make the most of themselves and to achieve something for their families. . . . Under wise leadership, with statesman-like guidance, with a sincere intention to promote the benefit of the country and to secure honorable progress, the mission of labor organizations is one of the finest that any association of men could guard.

"Contrast these words with those of Woodrow Wilson. In a letter written Jan. 12, 1905, he said: 'I am a fierce partisan of the open shop.' In 1905 he stated that 'labor unions drag the highest man to the level of the lowest.' In 1907 he declared: 'There is another equally formidable enemy to equality and betterment of opportunity, and that is the class formed by the labor organizations.' Again in 1909 he asserted: 'The usual standard of the employé in our day is to give as little as he may for his wages' and that 'labor is standardized by the trade unions.'

$1,380—11 CHILDREN

Mrs. Clarence F. Westney Tells How She Makes Ends Meet.

If the price of food is high, the cost of clothing and fuel is still low enough to enable Mrs. Clarence F. Westney to bring up her eleven children on $115 a month.

Each month she pays $90 for food and an $18 installment on her house.

"I make all the children's clothes," she explained, "that it is possible to make. I have about $7 a month left for clothing and fuel.

"The children are always neatly dressed. Their shoes are well repaired. But fuel—well, I had to buy coke this year. Hard coal was too expensive.

"The high prices of food would work a great hardship on us were it not that I am able to make it up when it comes to clothing the little ones. Each day I bake six loaves of bread, and sometimes this is not enough. Flour is $2.50 a sack. Every evening meal we use three pounds of meat."

TURKS DROP BOMBS ON SUEZ

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 3, via London, Nov. 4.—Turkish areoplanes have dropped a number of bombs on Suez and Port Tewfik and on the British railway east of the Suez canal, says the Turkish official announcement today.

TEUTONS PIERCE RUSS MAIN LINE BEFORE LEMBERG

Storm Strong Positions Along Narayuvka River—Repulse Counter Attacks.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Portions of the Russian main position on the Narayuvka river, southeast of Lemberg, were taken by storm yesterday by Austro-German troops, it is announced officially. The statement follows:

> Army Group of Prince Leopold—Our successes on the left bank of the Narayuvka were increased by the storming of additional portions of the Russian main positions southwest of Folv-Krasnolesne. They were maintained against hostile attempts to reconquer them.

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4.—Stubborn battles are raging in the neighborhood of Michishou and Lipnicadolno, in the Stokhod river region in Volhynia, says today's official statement by the war office. The announcement follows:

> On the southwestern front in the region north of Szclvov (Volhynia), after artillery preparation, the Germans attacked our position with a force of about a battalion. The attack was repulsed. We took a number of prisoners.
> In the neighborhood of the woods south of Michishou and east of Lipnicadolno, south of Brzezany, stubborn battles are raging. The enemy, after violent bombardment with heavy artillery, launched an attack with considerable forces. Our detachments counter attacked and drove back the enemy at some places. The battle continues.

Sound Contentment vs. Watchful Waiting

The crying question in the family of Thrift is "How shall we make the most interest out of our savings," and, as the Irishman would say, "still retain the savings."

The reasoner and the intuitional buyer turn at once to First Mortgage security. "A thing that can be seen, felt and proven is good," he argues. "I can rely on my own judgment."—but alas, only too often—

The tempter, with the assistance of a silver tongue and a good advertising man, points to yonder glistening rocks. "Gold—Automobiles! — Ammunition — Wheat—The short cut to the millionaire colony," he whispers, and, like Adam of old, the green speculator "falls" and loses even the little pittance he has saved.

Six per cent First Mortgage Bonds in $100, $200, $500 and $1,000 amounts secured by new apartment and business buildings in choice Chicago locations, have proven to be as sound as the land itself. There is no element of speculation about them.

The careful investor prefers 6% and sleep to 20% and promises and worry. He wants results now, not after he is dead and gone.

He also prefers a Chicago Title & Trust Co. guaranteed first mortgage to a beautifully engraved share in the sun's rays, which, reduced to the plebeian tongue, is "hot air."

If you would invest carefully, and with your eyes wide open—write for our folder No. 130 and also let us show you the security, let you lean against it—and you will always lean on it afterwards.

OWEN MAGNETIC

Stays Young and New

The Owen Magnetic stays young and new—because the magnetic principle eliminates those features which sound the early death knell of gear-shifting cars.

The Owen Magnetic principle eases all mechanical strain on its high grade six-cylinder engine, the car and occupants; there are no shocks, jerks, jolts or gear jamming, because the wondrous power is transmitted through an air-space cushion—not meshed gears.

This is more simple and easy to understand, when demonstrated, than any gas car principle of power application. You'll see.

In its perfect action the Owen Magnetic responds to every emergency, more like a living thing than a machine. It seems to lack only the human brain to do its part under all conditions.

A mere touch of the finger-lever on the steering wheel accomplishes more than most of the world's greatest automobile experts ever thought possible before this was proved to them.

Individual coach building, snappy lines, smart appearance, elegance of decoration, make the Owen Magnetic the ultra in ideal motor car development.

Limousine, Town Car and Landau Models from $4200 to $5000. Touring Cars and Roadsters from $3150 to $3750.

STYLE

Style is the keynote of the new Cadillac cars. Style and a matchless harmony of comfort, smooth action, dependability.

Style up to the minute without a hint of freakishness. Style that leads as clearly as Cadillac engineering leads.

Style that shows in every line and curve and color the master touch of ripened designers.

Style that is smartly distinctive yet artistically restrained — delightfully fresh yet subtly appealing.

Today, style is the Cadillac and the Cadillac is the style. The cars you turn to look at — low, graceful, quietly speedy—look at them closely and you recognize the new Cadillac.

The Cadillac of today is not the Cadillac of yesterday. It neither looks, nor rides, nor drives like former "Eights."

It has been ripened and refined astonishingly.

These new enclosed body types are quite suggestive. From them you sense the greater Cadillac which will be yours. Satisfying as no car has ever been till now.

Town Car, Limousine, Landaulet, Imperial—such superb bodies are not yet made for other cars. For Cadillac must lead, and does.

At $3600 to $4000 these richly fashioned coaches offer what twice their price will never buy—everything the name Cadillac now stands for.

At $2500 to $3000 are Victoria, Town and Country, Coupe and Brougham—style leaders, too, for the owner driver.

Four open types at $2105 give a breadth of choice to meet your taste. And each a Cadillac tells all you need to know.

NO EVIDENCE OF TERMINATION OF EUROPEAN WAR.

Germany for Peace with Honor but Allies Are Set on 'Breaking' Central Powers.

After more than four months spent in South America and Europe Roy W. Howard, president of the United Press, returned to New York today. While abroad Howard met and obtained from the leaders in England, France, and Germany their personal views on the war and the chances of peace. They furnish basis for the conclusions reached in the following article.

BY ROY W. HOWARD.

[President of the United Press.]

New York, Nov. 4.—Nowhere, either in England, France, or Germany, is there the slightest evidence yet of an approaching end of the war.

In no country is there any indication that the struggle can be terminated within the next two years. There are innumerable indications that the end is much farther off. Lord Northcliffe, who more often probably than any other man has correctly forecast the war's developments, is now urging the British to make no calculations based upon peace within five years.

Although pushing their offensive on the Somme with great vigor, the British land forces will not have attained full fighting strength before next summer.

The idea current in Germany that France is too nearly exhausted for further dangerous offensive is unwarranted optimism.

Germany Full of Fight.

Germany wants peace—admittedly wants it badly. The French and British public has misunderstood and misconstrued this. The fact is that Germany wants peace now, not because she believes herself defeated, but because she thinks she is nearer a military victory than she or any of the belligerents will again come.

Germans admit they are surfeited with war, but insist that France and Russia are equally so. They say that at the present rate of the Somme advance, in time and casualties, England's allies will be bankrupt before "the great push" can reach the Rhine. Germans ridicule the idea that any offensive can penetrate the Rhine defenses.

The last eighteen months have worked great changes in the belligerent capitals. Paris changed least during the interval—is brighter, gayer, and a shade nearer her normal, even though the war is still the all engrossing idea.

Berlin has become almost somber. A rather noisy and exaggerated confidence has given place to a determination truly grim. The food situation, if not working the havoc with stomachs that the allies would like to believe, is having its effect on nerves. The difficulty is not so much scarcity of food as soaring of prices and monotony of diet. Everywhere the question is asked: "When is peace coming?" But nowhere is there evidence of fear or voiced dissatisfaction with government or army.

Wants Peace, but with Honor.

When peace is talked of by the average German it is peace with full honor to Germany. It is a peace creditable to the Germany that has conquered Belgium, Poland, Serbia, and the richest districts of northern France; the Germany which is overrunning Roumania and which even in a war of attrition is still adding to its captured territory.

The peace openly striven for by Germany is a far different thing (involving as it does a restoration of the status quo ante as the limit of concessions) from the only peace mentioned in Paris or London—a peace to be dictated to Germany.

But it is London that has undergone the greatest transformation.

Today there is no business and no routine in England except the business and routine of making war. Peace as a topic of conversation is almost taboo. More men; more munitions; more money! Release the eligible for military service; perfect the organization behind the battle line, and keep the hands of the politicians off Gen. Sir Douglas Haig—these are the sole topics of the moment.

In War "Up to Neck."

The British nation, after two years of muddling, stumbling, and blundering, is finally in the war clear up to John Bull's eyebrows.

Involved in the situations developed in England and Germany are two powerful factors, which, combined, seemed to blight all possibilities of an early peace.

These factors are, first, England's determination to fight until the allies can dictate a peace which will not only eliminate the menace of German militarism, but which will also eliminate the menace of German commercialism; and, secondly, Germany's determination and apparent ability to maintain a successful defensive indefinitely, meanwhile hoping to alienate one or more of the allies or to see one or more of them break under the military or financial strain.

Germany Will Not Bend.

Germany will consider no peace now at any terms the allies would even mention, because what the allies want now is not peace, but Germany broken.

WANT TO BE ARMY FLYER? RESERVE CORPS WORK ON.

Lieut. Morrow to Give Lecture Wednesday Night to Candidates for Commissions.

Plans were completed yesterday for the organization of the aviation section, signal officers reserve corps, of the United States army, created under the national defense act, for Chicago and vicinity, by First Lieut. Joseph C. Morrow of the regular army aviation section.

The new company is to be made up of civilians who wish to take the course of instruction offered, and if they pass the examination a commission of first lieutenant, captain, major, or other rank will be conferred upon them, according to their capabilities.

Under the defense act the reserve officers have only to serve fifteen days a year during peace.

The first lecture will be on Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. on the thirteenth floor of the federal building. Lieut. Morrow will explain the requirements.

Struck by an Auto.

WOMEN RUSH RAIL YARDS TO WELCOME MILITIAMEN.

A Company, Engineers, and Field Hospital No. 2 Given Homecoming After Mustering Out.

Nearly 1,000 women rushed the Chicago and Alton yards south of Van Buren street yesterday to greet homecoming members of Company A, First battalion engineers, and field hospital No. 2, who were mustered out at Springfield.

The train arrived at 8:15 in the morning. The hospital corps, under command of Maj. G. M. Blech, marched immediately to its headquarters at 1617 South Michigan avenue, where the men checked in their equipment and went home. The engineers were marched first to King's restaurant, where they were served breakfast, and then to their armory at 2356 Lincoln avenue, where they were dismissed.

The two columns were cheered by street crowds as they marched to their armories.

OBITUARY.

MARQUIS DE BRETEUIL DEAD; FAMOUS IN PARIS SOCIETY.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The Marquis Henri Charles de Breteuil, a famous personage in Parisian society and intimate friend of the late King Edward of England, is dead.

Marquis de Breteuil married Miss Garner of New York twenty-five years ago. He enjoyed the friendship of many members of the royal family of England and frequently entertained them in France. He served with distinction in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, was a knight of the Legion of Honor, and twice was a member of the chamber of deputies.

ROCKWOOD W. HOSMER died yesterday at 1116 North La Salle street. Mr. Hosmer was born in Concord, Mass., and came to Chicago in 1865 to open a branch office for a Boston insurance firm. Two years later he entered the insurance business for himself. He was president of the Chicago board of underwriters from 1884 to 1908 and also first president in 1899 of the Illinois Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from Unity church, 657 Barry avenue.

GUY A. FEELEY, who served two terms in the Iowa legislature, one term as speaker of the house, died at Waterloo, Ia., yesterday, aged 41 years.

TO FORECLOSE ON C. & E. I.

New York Trust Company Would Wind Up Road's $3,150,000 Mortgage.

A suit to foreclose a $3,150,000 mortgage on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad by the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of New York was started in the United States court yesterday. The mortgage is held against the Evansville and Terre Haute branch of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois. The bank, according to the attorneys, holds several interest coupons which are overdue. Several other mortgage holders are named as defendants.

DENMO ONE & A QUARTER TON MOTOR TRUCK

ELECTRIC STARTER AND ELECTRIC LIGHTS,
SPOT LIGHT, SPEEDOMETER, WINDSHIELD, GOVERNOR,

The Most Complete Motor Truck on the Market $1,385

All previous standards of truck value have been upset by the Denmo. The price is remarkable, and it is doubly so when you have seen the specifications and the truck itself.

It includes electric starter, electric lights and 100 per cent of chassis equipment. No wasting of gasoline while the truck stands still—with the Denmo. The driver will stop the motor, for he can start it again in an instant.

The Truck You've Waited For

Chicago business men have been waiting for this truck. It's the right size. The quality is unquestionable.

Denmo sales are backed up by Denmo service.

The sale of a truck is only the beginning of our interest in your trucking. We provide in our sales contract that twice a month for a year our inspector will go over your truck, inspect and adjust the carburetor and magneto, fill the oil and grease cups, and report to you on the condition of the truck.

We make sure that your use of the truck will be successful.

A thoroughly equipped service station is maintained by us where the promptest attention can be given to your needs.

See These Unusual Features

WISCONSIN MOTOR—35 horsepower. Big and powerful enough for any hill in the country. Forced feed lubrication.

STARTING AND LIGHTING—Splitdorf-Apple, two unit electric starting and lighting system. A spot light on the dash for night deliveries. Spring cradled storage battery suspension—a Denmo invention which for the first time makes electric starting and lighting practical for trucks.

TORBENSON DRIVE AXLE—This axle is backed by a gold bond guarantee that it is absolutely efficient and that it will last during the life of the truck.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY—We can deliver Denmo chassis at once.

VAST RESOURCES OF NATION HINGE UPON ELECTION

Wilson Failed on Conservation, Says Pinchot—Huge Grabs Wait Democratic Victory.

The following article was prepared especiallly for "The Tribune" by Gifford Pinchot, who is known throughout America as a leading spirit in the conservation movement and a man of notably progressive tendencies.

BY GIFFORD PINCHOT.

The conservation movement began under Roosevelt. It was Roosevelt who for the first time made the American people see the immense stake they have not merely in preserving and protecting the natural resources, but in seeing that they are used for the benefit of all rather than monopolized for the profit of a few.

During Taft's administration the agitation for the conservation of our natural resources was continued, and real progress was made. The coal lands of Alaska were saved for the people, the system of national forests was extended, and the education of the public to the importance of conservation made rapid headway.

When Wilson became president everything was ready for a great forward start. Public sentiment had been created and was available. Our knowledge of the natural resources had increased and all that was required was leadership. For a time it seemed as if Wilson would supply that leadership. He had spoken well about conservation during the campaign and he gave it a conspicuous place in his inaugural address among the great questions to be dealt with during his administration, as he did again in a later message to congress.

Wilson Made Good Start.

The Wilson administration began well. The agitation for protecting the coal lands of Alaska, which started in 1906, was carried forward another step, and the Alaska coal bill, which assured public possession of the coal lands in Alaska, was passed. So was the Alaska railroad bill, agitation for which began while Taft was president. These two measures were good and the Wilson administration deserves the credit for their passage.

Unfortunately the rest of the Wilson record dealing with Alaska is less satisfactory. Attacks on the Alaskan national forests were fomented and encouraged by officials of the interior department, bills for their abolition were presented and pushed by administration senators in congress. Fortunately, these attacks were warded off.

Lane's First Attempt.

So was a far more serious one begun and most industriously advertised in a publicity campaign of great efficiency by Secretary Lane. This was the bill for putting the natural resources of Alaska in the charge of a political commission. If the bill had passed it would have gone far to wipe out at one blow all that had been gained in the fight against the interests to save Alaska for the people, and it would have made the natural resources of that territory the football of local politics.

But the friends of conservation were too strong for Lane and the other supporters of this bill. The attacks upon it showed up its character so clearly that it became dangerous to push it, and at the last session of congress nothing was heard of it. The killing of the administration's Alaska commission bill was a genuine victory for the public interest.

The Wilson administration must be given credit for the veto of the so-called summer homestead bill, the passage of which would have been dangerous to the national forests.

People's Guardian Fired.

One of the finest pieces of work ever done under the government has been achieved by the United States reclamation service under its recent director, Frederick H. Newell. This work was begun by President Roosevelt, and has already resulted in enriching the west, and therefore the nation by many hundreds of millions of dollars.

Newell had created a body of men that was ideal in its devotion to the public welfare and in the honesty and efficiency with which its work was done. This very fact, however, made Newell unpopular with the politicians, and he was forced out by Secretary Lane for that reason. In his place a commission was appointed, a majority of which consists of politicians, and the selection of the irrigation projects to be built was taken out of the hands of scientific government officials and transmutted into congressional pork by putting the choice in the hands of a committee of congress.

Water Power Preservation.

There are other matters which deserve attention, as for example the way in which the conservation policies, like the rest of the government business, have been affected by the general demoralization of the government service during the Wilson administration. This demoralization is partly due to sheer inefficiency in handling government business, partly to the fact that politics has become the first consideration, and partly to the way in which public office under Wilson has been treated as political spoils. I cannot, however, stop to discuss these general considerations, but must turn at once to the questions of water power and the navy's supply of oil.

When the policy of conserving public water powers for the public benefit was begun under Roosevelt three chief principles were laid down:

First, that the water powers of the country must be developed.

Second, that the private interests who were allowed to develop them must pay the public for value received.

Third, that these interests should not be given the public water powers forever, but only for a time long enough to justify the investment, a period which experience has fixed at fifty years.

Lobby Saw Its Chance.

Roosevelt was the first president to veto a bill which did not conform to these principles. Taft followed his example, and during these two administrations the water power interests made little progress in absorbing the property of the people.

When Wilson became president the water power lobby thought it saw its chance. In 1914, the Adamson bill—just the sort of bill which Taft and Roosevelt had vetoed—was introduced in the house of representatives. The Wilson adminisration gave it its approval. It was largely rewritten on the floor of the house, and made to conform to sound conservation principles. Then the administration reversed itself and approved the good bill as it had the bad.

The Adamson bill then went to the senate, where it was pigeonholed and the indefensible Shields bill was reported in its place. By another reversal the administration approved that. Then, when it was attacked for its approval, it withdrew it. Later, by another reversal, it approved the bill again, as is conclusively shown by the statements of adminstration senators.

Shields Grab Bill.

President Wilson was appealed to publicly to give his aid in defeating the bill. Yet, while administration senators asserted that the bill of the water power interests had his approval, he refused to take any stand on the side of the people when the mere intimation of his disapproval would have killed the bill.

The Shields bill not only gives away public property worth many hundreds of millions of dollars for nothing to the special interests but it does so under conditions devised with the highest skill to promote monopoly and prevent the people from ever taking back their own. In effect, it gives the water powers away forever while pretending to do so for only fifty years. As a matter of fact, the limitation of fifty years is not upon the extent of the grant, but upon the right of the people to take their water powers back. They can only do so upon paying the highest price, including all unearned increment for all the tangible property of the water power interests, and including also everything in any way dependent for its usefulness on the grant. Thus factories served by this power, street car lines, lighting systems, etc., would in many cases have to be purchased. The grant is in effect perpetual.

Small Fellows Shut Out.

Another interesting clause provides that in states which have public service laws no grants are to be made except to municipalities or public service corporations. Thus the great concentrations of capital, into the power of which the public service companies of the country are so rapidly falling, are given a monopoly of government water powers. Coöperative associations of farmers, for example, could not obtain a grant under the bill.

The Shields bill has been forced through both houses, fortunately in different forms, and is now in conference. It is so raw that the Democrats did not dare to pass it before election. That they will try to pass it immediately after is well shown by the fact that the conference committee which has it in charge has been called to meet in Washington Nov. 20 in order to lose no time in carrying through this raid on the property of all the people.

Most Brazen of Lobbies.

President Wilson in his speech of acceptance at Shadow Lawn spoke of breaking down the lobby as an achievement of the Democratic party. I can testify that no more numerous, grasping, or brazen lobby was ever in Washington within my experience than the water power lobby of the session just passed.

In the same speech President Wilson s of the Democrats: "We have barred monopoly." Yet here, under his eyes, and because he has refused to stand for the people against it, there is being created a monopoly in waterpower which will make all other monopolies look small by comparison.

It takes 30,000,000 horse power to move all the trains and trolley and factory wheels of the United States. What is at stake in the Shields bill is more than twice the power this country uses for all purposes—a stake so large that it is no wonder the water power men are willing to spend money to get it.

Twin Parkers.

The Shields bill applies to 60,000,000 horsepower on navigable streams; the Myers bill to 15,000,000 horsepower on the nonnavigable streams of the public domain. The Myers bill is the running mate of the Shields bill. Like the Shields bill, it had the approval of the administration when it protected the public rights, and by the customary reversal it has the approval of the administration now that it yields these rights to the water power interests. In both cases the last reversal leaves the administration squarely on the side of the interests and squarely against the people.

It is not pleasant to record the yielding of the Wilson administration to the pressure of the political lobby while it asserted that the lobby was broken down. But the facts are as I have stated.

Cabinet Man Silenced.

The most remarkable case of Wilson's failure to stand up for the public rights in conservation does not relate, however, to water power, but to the navy's supply of oil. In this instance the attorney general and the secretary of the navy are united to defeat the Phelan bill, which would turn over to a number of willful trespassers without legal rights the oil preserves set aside for the navy by presidential proclamation.

Secretary Lane and the oil lobby have been trying to get the bill passed. I made this charge against Secretary Lane last June. He denied it and invited me to reëxamine his record. I did so, and in August proved by his own statements that the charge was true, and proved it so completely that he has not ventured to make any answer whatsoever.

Wilson Declined to Act.

All modern navies burn oil. Yet the secretary of the navy has officially declared that the mere threat of the passage of this bill—which would mean the loss of its oil reserves—has caused the navy to consider seriously the abandonment of the policy of building the only type of ships that can give us a modern navy.

With the interests of the people at stake and the issue clearly drawn, Wilson has declined to come out on the side of the people and stand for the public rights. The bill to take away the navy's oil is No. 1 on the senate calendar. Whether it passes or fails will be largely determined by whether the people elect or defeat the president, who refuses to take the side of the public welfare and the national defense.

Why Drinking Man Swears Off—Then Attempts Suicide?

In a recent news item relating to a drinking carpenter, The Chicago Tribune recently said:

"Yesterday he went before a priest and took the pledge for five years. An hour later he slashed his own throat."

Modern Medical Science and the bitter experience of mankind for thousands of years PROVES that swear-offs, pledges, good resolutions and moral suasion are all equally powerless to overcome that diseased condition resulting from the poison of alcohol "stored-up" in the system, which causes continued indulgence.

The secret of the great international success of the "NEAL WAY" is that it quickly antidotes and eliminates the virulent poison from the system—thereby removing the CAUSE of continued indulgence. It creates a loathing for the "stuff" and by its wonderful TONIC treatment soon RESTORES the natural appetite for food, ability to sleep and NORMAL conditions.

PLANS NATION-WIDE INQUIRY ON FREIGHT CAR SHORTAGE.

Interstate Commerce Commission Announces Step After Getting Complaints from All Sections.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—The nation-wide shortage of freight cars, the most acute for many years, will be the subject of a general formal investigation covering every part of the United States, the interstate commerce commission announced today. The commission announced the investigation would go into questions of supply, exchange, and return of freight cars, "with the view of issuing such orders as the commission may deem appropriate."

A copy of the order was served upon representatives of all interstate carriers, and the first hearing was fixed for next Wednesday at Louisville before Commissioner McChord, who is already there conducting an informal conference on car shortage. Such further hearings as the commissioner may determine necessary will be subsequently announced.

The action in extending the informal conference at Louisville into a sweeping general investigation of a formal character, with hearings probably in such shipping centers as New York, Chicago, Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City, and others, is the result of complaints filed with the commission from all sections recording serious conditions as the result of the car famine.

ROCKEFELLER AID RESIGNS.

Jerome D. Greene, Secretary of Foundation and with It Since 1910, Gives Up Post.

New York, Nov. 4.—Jerome D. Greene has resigned as secretary of the Rockefeller foundation, it was reported here today. He has been associated with the organization since 1910. At his office today it was said that Mr. Greene is in Washington and that no statement in reference to the report would be given out at this time.

"Liver and eggs is a bum combination," interposed Joe.

"But we made up—he must have bacon with eggs after this," said Mrs. Wesley.

"What do you know about this case?" the judge asked Patrolman John Breen, who arrested Wesley.

"I thought it was a scramble," replied John.

"All right; discharged," said the judge.

"ZUMMIE" IS WILLING, TOO.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—What, it is said, amounts to a request to grant her petition was filed with the county clerk today by Arnold Zumstein, in answer to a plea on the part of Ruth Day McLean of Detroit, filed several days ago, asking annulment of their marriage in Terre Haute, Ind., a few weeks ago.

Mr. Zumstein says he acted in good faith and he believes she was acting in good faith and did not know that she had not been freed from a former marriage in which the annulment papers had not been acted on by the court.

NOT MISSION TEA ROOM.

Because of a similarity of names it was erroneously stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday morning that the new clubhouse of the Edgewater Athletic association is the old Mission tea room at 4526 Sheridan road. It should have been the old Dixie tea room. The Mission tea room is still located at 4046 Sheridan road.

Wilson and Peace with Honor?

or

Hughes with Roosevelt and War?

Roosevelt says we should hang our heads in shame because we are not at war with Germany in behalf of Belgium!

Roosevelt says that following the sinking of the Lusitania he would have foregone diplomacy and seized every ship in our ports flying the German flag. That would have meant war!

Hughes Says He and Roosevelt are in Complete Accord!

Senator Fall, who has vast interests in Mexico, and is Candidate Hughes' adviser as to Mexican Affairs, declares "a Hughes war would be preferable to a Wilson peace."

Read the published list of Heavy Subscribers to the Republican campaign fund, then look up the list of Americans with enormous interests in Mexico and learn why those who place the almighty dollar ahead of human life would not hesitate to plunge this country into an ignoble war of conquest—would not stop at sacrificing thousands and thousands of American lives in their greed for oil and gold.

Look again at this list. Then you will see why the "Old Guard" appeals frantically for a protective tariff—

That breeder of strikes, of starvation wages, and of every panic that ever cursed this country—

And which made billions for organized wealth by putting honest competition out of business.

You will see why in sheer desperation and bereft of all decency the Republican "Old Guard" is capitalizing the lamentable incidents in Mexico and trying to discredit your President for sparing you the horrors that would come with intervention.

Read the list still again. Note the names of men heavily intrenched financially in the protective tariff system and in vicious special privilege.

Read and see why millions are being spent to re-enact the Payne-Aldrich tariff—to wipe out the Federal Reserve System—to repeal the Eight Hour law and other progressive laws—to undo the Wilson Record of unparalleled achievement.

Then understand why Candidate Hughes said in his Milwaukee speech: "The whole Democratic accomplishment must be wiped off the books for the good of the country."

The Lesson is Plain!

If You Want WAR
Vote for HUGHES!

If You Want Peace With Honor and Continued Prosperity

VOTE FOR WILSON!

Clergymen, Lawyers and Doctors Indorse Harry B. Miller For State's Attorney

The following excerpts are but a few of many such indorsements by leading clergymen, lawyers, physicians, business men and social workers:

The Rev. Johnston Myers
Pastor Immanuel Baptist Church, says:

"You may be assured of my cordial support. . . . I join in wishing you a wonderful victory."

The Rev. Thomas F. Dornblaser
Pastor Grace English Lutheran Church, says:

"I am glad that you have consented to become a candidate for State's Attorney. We need men of your high honor and unimpeachable integrity. I pledge to you my hearty support, and will do all I can to influence my friends to vote for you."

The Rev. William L. Clapp
Pastor Central Park Avenue M. E. Church, says:

"After giving the matter thorough consideration, I wish to support you for State's Attorney. You are, I believe, a good, clean-cut, honest citizen, and best qualified of all the candidates, and will make the best State's Attorney Cook County ever had."

Major General Edward Fielding
Vice President the Volunteers of America, says:

"I have been personally acquainted with you for over twenty years, during which time we have had personal business dealings together. I have always found you a capable lawyer, a true gentleman, conscientious in your life and work, and I believe that, if elected, you will not disappoint those who desire a man of high moral character, strict integrity and sincerity."

The Rev. George A. Kilbey
Presbyterian Minister and General Manager of the Chicago Christian Industrial League:

"I have known you for many years, and have had special opportunities for meeting you in your home life and public service. I consider yours the kind of strong, clean, upright, manly ability for which the public service of our country and state calls."

Wirt W. Hallam
Secretary of the Illinois Vigilance Association and Former Member Chicago Vice Commission, says:

"As a member of the executive committee of four of the leading organizations which are interested in suppressing those influences which tear down the moral well-being of society and especially the young people, I am heartily interested in having a courageous and honest man for State's Attorney. I have inquired into your record and find that your life has been clean and upright. I am therefore confident that you will continue to live such a life, and as one who is vitally interested in the upbuilding of a better moral conscience in the community, I hope you will be elected the next State's Attorney of Cook County."

The Rev. William Burgess
Congregational Minister and Author "The World's Social Evil," says:

"I believe it would be to the best interest of the citizens of Cook County to have you elected State's Attorney."

The Rev. Frank W. Duha
Pastor John Huss Bohemian M. E. Church, says:

"I know you to be an honest and upright gentleman. Your honesty and executive ability abundantly qualify you for the place."

Rabbi Sam Rosenblum
Congregation Anshe Motela, says:

"I believe you to be clean, capable, courageous, upright and God-fearing. I believe you will give all the people of this county, regardless of race, creed or social station, an absolutely square deal as State's Attorney."

Captain Henry Channon
President of H. Channon Co., says:

"I am glad to testify to the honesty and ability of Harry B. Miller as a man and a lawyer. I have known him for a long time. For several years he handled much of my legal business, always ably and conscientiously."

Attorney Henry R. Rathbone
President the Hamilton Club, says:

"The most important qualification for public office is honesty. Harry B. Miller is not only honest, but, in my opinion, he has the legal ability, administrative capacity and strength of character which will make him, if elected, one of the best State's Attorneys in the history of Cook County."

Fred L. Rossbach
President the Washington Shirt Co., says:

"Character is perhaps the most valuable thing in the world. Harry B. Miller is a man of character, clean, honest, capable and independent. His election will reflect credit upon his party and upon the voters of the county."

Attorney John L. Fogle
Of the Chicago Bar Association says:

"As City Prosecuting Attorney Harry B. Miller has demonstrated his administrative capacity, courage, and fidelity to duty. He has earned promotion to the similar but more important office of State's Attorney."

Jay H. Emerson
General Agent New York Life Insurance Co., says:

"As a plain business man, I wish to support and commend you and your campaign for the position of State's Attorney, for I believe you to be clean, honest and able. I know that you will conduct the office in such a manner that Cook County will again have a State's Attorney who is not only an honor to the county, but to himself."

Attorney Chancellor L. Jenks says:

"I am much impressed with the dignified manner in which you are conducting your campaign for the State's Attorneyship. It is lawyer-like, clean, and free from vilification or the spirit of petty retaliation. This, with your known ability as a member of the bar, your personal integrity and your fairness, commends your candidacy to the voters of Cook County. I shall be glad to vote for you and to urge my friends to do the same."

Harry B. Miller

For State's Attorney

A PATRIOTIC APPEAL

To the Independent Voters

The office of State's Attorney is rightfully non-political and should be filled by a man who will render service to the whole people and not use it as an adjunct to a political machine. The life, liberty and property rights of American citizens and the security of their homes and families are privileges too sacred to be trampled upon by political blusterers or tricksters, drunk with power.

We who issue this appeal and the thousands who have signed indorsements of Harry B. Miller for State's Attorney believe that he will conduct that office on the high and impartial plane that the law contemplates.

The real opposition to Harry B. Miller's candidacy arises from selfish, sinister interests which seek to control the prosecuting power of this county to serve their own ends, and whose hold on this power would bring about the same disgraceful results already witnessed in this community—American rights trampled upon, constitution and laws set aside, and riots, raids and ruffianism rampant in the city.

Harry B. Miller is free from every sinister interest. He stands on his own merits. He has no master to serve. He will not barter away the people's liberties. He has no friends among criminals or hypocrites or polished enemies of society.

Taxpayers and citizens of Cook County, regardless of party, race, creed or nationality, should rally to the support of Harry B. Miller, in the interest of the square deal, in the interest of law observance and law enforcement, and in the interest of the rights of American citizenship, guaranteed by our laws and our constitution.

We appeal to every one to vote for Harry B. Miller for State's Attorney.

INDEPENDENTS INDORSE MILLER

Following is the text of a part of the indorsement of City Prosecutor Harry B. Miller, signed by the number of business and professional men indicated:

"The office of State's Attorney of Cook County is closely identified with the welfare of the people and should be filled by a man of irreproachable character, scrupulous honor and strict fidelity to duty, and we know you possess these attributes in a high degree.

"The misuse of the prosecuting power for purposes of revenge or to annoy and disgrace innocent persons is just as wrong as to withhold indictment or neglect prosecution and thus favor the escape from justice of guilty criminals.

"Your faithful and continuous service as Prosecuting Attorney for the City of Chicago has especially fitted you for the higher trust of State's Attorney.

"We have faith in your ability, integrity, sincerity, experience and high sense of public duty, and in your willingness to devote your time and talents to aid the suppression of crime, to prosecute criminals, to preserve the rights and liberties of the masses of our people and give unfailing protection to the honest citizen.

"It is in the hope of this accomplishment and in recognition of your eminent qualifications that we heartily indorse your candidacy for the office of State's Attorney and pledge you our active support at the election to be held on Tuesday, November 7th, 1916, and we recommend a favorable consideration of your candidacy by the independent voters of Cook County."

1800 LAWYERS indorse Harry B. Miller for State's Attorney, because they know that his ability, integrity, general experience at the bar and special training as Prosecuting Attorney of the City of Chicago have exceptionally qualified him for the duties of that office.

435 CLERGYMEN of Cook County, of every sect, creed and denomination, indorse Harry B. Miller for State's Attorney, because they know he is clean and conscientious, and that he is honest, upright and high principled, as exemplified in his life as a citizen and head of a family.

2250 PHYSICIANS and other medical men indorse Harry B. Miller and are earnestly working for his election, because they recognize and appreciate his faultless record as City Prosecutor and desire to reward his fair and fearless discharge of official duty by promoting him to a higher field.

1200 BUSINESS MEN and more than 217,000 wage earners have signed pledges for and heartily indorse Harry B. Mliler for State's Attorney, because they are fully awake to the seriousness of this contest. They want the rights of citizenship preserved, the law observed, crime prosecuted, and their homes and business places secured against raids and seizures by reckless officials and lawless elements.

PLEDGE

I pledge myself to support the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Illinois, and to preserve and perpetuate the ideals of American government handed down by our forefathers. I will use every means at my command to safeguard the home, the family and the legal rights of every citizen, high or humble; to prosecute crime; to protect the innocent; to carry out the law; to observe it myself; and to properly and economically expend the public funds appropriated for the State's Attorney's office. I shall be absolutely satisfied with, and will accept only, the salary of the office of State's Attorney as provided by law. I will not accept nor endeavor to collect any fees, emoluments, perquisites or profits of any kind or character in addition to the salary fixed by law.

TOMMY ATKINS A BUSY BOY ON LONDON VISIT

Soldiers from Provinces See All the Sights and Get Glad Hand from Every One.

BY MAUDE RADFORD WARREN.

(Mrs. Warren, who is a Chicagoan and a gifted and well known novelist, went abroad a few weeks ago, and the following is the second of a series of letters giving her impressions of England and Ireland in war time.)

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Tommie Atkins in London is casual and fluid; he comes from Canada and Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland, from the English provinces and the military camps and depots, sees the sights of London and then goes to the front.

Perhaps he comes from the front, and he has no thought for the sights, poor lad, if he is one of those languid figures lying in tiers in the ambulances, white face on white pillow, inert feet covered by a dark army blanket; he is unable to look at the tearful eyes, the waving hands, or to feel the rose a flower seller casts upon his stretcher.

If he can sit up in an automobile, touch his cap, and grin cheerfully in response to the subdued "bravos" (for silence is ordered of the spectators) he will be certain presently to walk about and take what London offers him.

Cards and Reading Only Pastime.

The Tommy in hospital at first has to depend for amusement on cards, games, and reading until, in his madonna blue or gray clothes, symbol of his hospital residence, he is allowed to go for walks and drives. Once in a long while he forgets to come back—gets lost, he always says.

A Juno-like Australian nurse told me that yesterday as she went her early rounds at 4 o'clock, she beheld a gunner slipping into bed under the sardonic glances of two or three of the wakeful wounded. Not wishing to rouse the sleeping men of the ward, she said in subdued tones:

"I'm sorry you've broken rules in this way, Davis. Now I'll have to give you an A. W. L. paper (absent without leave) and you'll go before a tribunal and get C. B. for two weeks (confined to barracks). I suppose you got lost and woke up in a coal yard?"

"It wasn't a coal yard; it was a lumber yard. And it's not as if I was a common gunner," he whispered fiercely. "I'm a corporal gunner and I just unofficially drifted!"

Amenable to Discipline.

But usually the soldiers in the hospitals are thoroughly amenable to discipline, limiting their outings to the time prescribed, and looking forward to the day when they can put off their gray or blue hospital uniforms and once more put on khaki with the gold stripe on the sleeve that stands for an honorable wound.

The sight that all the Tommies are most anxious to see just now is the captured Zepp, L-33, and many of the lads from the front have sent money home to buy Zepp souvenirs, soon to be on sale. A few soldiers about to be married have managed to get enough of the aluminum to have wedding rings made. Press parties have already gone down to see it where it lies a few miles from Colchester [famed for its oysters].

Big Slim Boned Skeleton.

One can see the Zepp from a long way off, and it looks like the huge slim-boned skeleton of some long-dead monster, bleached to silver under the sea winds and the sun. Before its officers brought it down to safety and themselves to imprisonment they went across to the island of Mersey; then they sank into the front yard, so to speak, of an Essex farmer, dwarfing his little house. A few feet to one side and they would have obliterated it.

As is well known the German captain tried to destroy the ship; it is not generally known that he forgot to burn up his log-book, which gives much interesting information.

Marvel at Dimensions.

When the Tommies are allowed to see the Zepp, they will marvel at its dimensions of 680 feet in length, seventy-five in width; its weight, which with men and machines totaled fifty tons; its total cost of anything from a million and a quarter of dollars to two millions and a half.

The four gondolas held six Mercedes engines each of 240 horse power; there were 2,000 gallons of petrol, five propellers, and sixty bomb throwers. The envelope was filled with two million cubic feet of gas.

A cat walk or narrow platform runs the length of the ship; forward is the captains's cabin with three controlling wheels, and nearby the wireless room once covered with cotton. A huge thing, but in effect it is as light as some trellised summer house. The engineers and draftsmen now working on the ship [and well aware of the use of everything about it] will be gone by the time the Tommies are generally allowed to see it—and gone, too, the few extra souvenirs hidden in the grass and discovered by enterprising searchers. [My two young nephews please write!]

Fight Battles Over Again.

When the Tommies from the provinces come to London many of them ask at once to be shown the place where Crippen murdered his wife. After that they are ready for Trafalgar square and the other sights.

Very popular is Mme. Tussaud's. She—or whoever she stands for—has a very neat system of trenches on the scale of an inch to a mile, which the Tommies explain to their mothers and young ladies, who say in reply:

"Yes, I see; but now show me exactly where you were."

What better proof than this could any soldier have that he is winning this war?

There are, of course, wax figures of all the prominent navy and military officers. It is said that Mme. Tussaud dug down into her cellar for all sorts of abandoned arms and legs and bodies, so that Admiral Jellicoe and Gen. Sir Douglas Haig may have some old Napoleonic hero's trunk for their good looking modern faces.

The advertisements most prominent on the pale red brick walls of the museum invite the passer-by to enter and see the effigies of Lord Kitchener and Roger Casement.

Want to See the Old Things.

The Canadians and other overseas colonials want to see old things; they ask for the most mossy churches there are. A few days since a battalion of Canadian infantry marched to Westminster abbey with the colors of the Ontario regiment, which were put, with other flags, near the Wolfe monument, there to stay till the men come back from the front to claim them.

Ever since Canadians have been going to see this monument—a colossally tall one, picturing Wolfe dying miserably of his wounds. It is scarcely a cheerful sight, however inspiring, to young colonials going fresh to the trenches, particularly in view of the fact that every Canadian schoolboy learns by heart the poem associated with Wolfe containing that solemn line,

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

I suppose I have heard twenty Canadian lads quote that in the last two days.

Guide for the Canadians.

There is a dear old man, who has evidently constituted himself an unofficial guide to the Canadians and Australians who enter Westminster abbey. He has especially selected for his objectives the tombs that are protected by sandbags, and he leads the Tommies to where Edward II. lies and his gentle consort, and tells the story of how when the burgers were brought before him with ropes round their necks she fell to her knees and would not rise till he had promised to spare their lives.

Whether intentionally or not, the old man does not say they were burgers of Calais, and I am afraid most of the soldiers think the burgers must have been Germans.

Then he takes them to the tomb of Mary, Queen of Scots, whom, naturally, he calls "the unhappy queen," editing for them the tale of her romances, so that she sounds like a schoolgirl being blushingly asked to go to a Sunday school picnic.

Tells Queen Anne's History.

Then he takes them to Queen Anne's tomb, poor soul, and tells of her children who died, each of them killing a great hope. The dear old person sometimes forgets the number; he varies from thirteen to nineteen. I believe the right number was somthing like fifteen.

Sad Anne; just because she was stupid and not beautiful posterity sees no thrilling pathos in her career; as for Mary, she may have been unhappy, but she never could have been dull.

Nor does the guide forget to show the double monument of the sisters, Elizabeth and Mary, remarking, of course, that though they were bitter enemies in life in death they are not divided. Last of all, he likes to show the pavement slab, telling in rich lettering the exploits of a soldier who died something over a hundred years ago, receiving no end of orders and medals and a knighthood. And the listening soldiers, attentive, trample all over the slab just beside it, not seeing the four deep cut words engraved there: "O rare Ben Jonson."

Gets Anything He Wants.

Outside cathedrals and museums, the world beckons vehemently to Tommie. He can crowd a great deal into a few days' leave—and he can have anything he wants. No one would refuse a soldier.

The bishop of London and Sir H. Smith-Dorrien are of the opinion that the world at home is not taking sufficient though for the real welfare of Tommy, and many people agree with them. There is too much "treating," too much general relaxation.

People seem to feel almost as if they were living under the ribs of death, and so what does it matter what any one does? Both the bishop and the general object to the tone of the music halls. In one way it is inspiring to go to them, for there is much singing of patriotic songs and trench sketches and cinema pictures of famous soldiers of achievement, from great generals to the last private who has won the V. C.

Flock to Music Halls.

The music hall is the place par excellence where one feels the enthusiasm of the average London citizen for the soldiers. But the two great men are right—there is scarcely a hall in London where one would care to sit through the performance.

Chicago would never put up with the amount of stage indecency which London at present permits. The bishop of London has a good many people ready to follow him in the national mission he is constituting. He holds that it is a patriotic as well as a religious mission at home for the people to fight for higher goodness and purity, just as the men fight in the trenches.

There are millions in London who try to help Tommy rather than use him for their own profit. Even for those who are trying to please Tommy in wrong ways this must be said: it is their wisdom that is at fault rather than their good feeling. They are letting the specious side of patriotism run away with them.

For of the general self-sacrifice and splendor of endeavor of the English there can be no doubt; bad people and good alike are at their highest level in these days of war.

COLLEGE AID ON INCREASE.

Dr. W. W. Boyd Tells of Advance in Endowments Before the Chicago Alumnæ.

Dr. W. W. Boyd, president of the Western College for Women, of Oxford, O., illustrated the recent remarkable growth of endowments among American colleges in an address yesterday before the Chicago branch of Western college alumnæ in the Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom. He declared that the total endowment of all colleges in the United States was but $150,000,000 in 1900, while in 1916 it amounted to $370,000,000. Of Yale's $15,000,000 endowment, $10,000,000 has been added since 1900. In 1900 only twenty colleges had over $1,000,000 endowment. Now seventy-one have endowments in excess of that figure.

BOYS PLAY IN SUBMARINE

The undersea boat Holland, the first craft of its kind made for the United States navy, is lying ashore at Philadelphia awaiting transfer to New York. Meanwhile boys are making the most of its possibilities as a sure-enough war plaything. One boy is shown in the picture looking from the single torpedo tube.

Progressives

Though deserted by our leader, we still have minds, memories and votes

Can Hughes and Roosevelt sugar-coat the bitter pill of James R. Mann?

He voted in favor of the resolution to warn Americans that if they exercised their rights at sea the government would not protect them—

Remember: And

commenting on President Wilson's submarine ultimatum which forced Germany to discontinue "frightfulness" in submarine warfare and pledge observance of international law, Mann said:

"It is a hypocritical speech. I said before that he (the President) wanted to get us into war with Germany and I say the same thing now. As a political campaign dodge he is trying to work up to a point where he can get into war with Germany during a presidential campaign."

Who was YELLOW then?

And if you hope to return to the Republican party, will you elect Lowden governor, so he can help Lundin and Thompson rule the party with a Lowden-Lundin-Thompson combination, recalling the old Lorimer-Hertz-Jamieson days?

Think It Over Before November 7.

JOHN C. VAUGHAN

Progressive Nominee for Congress, Second District, in 1914.

ONE AMERICAN WHO WAS NOT KEPT OUT of WAR

If this were your son lying dead on the Mexican desert you would not think that we had been "Kept Out of War."

Hundreds of mothers' sons have died in Mexico—and American women have been violated. American soldiers have been ambushed and murdered in cold blood.

The American flag has been insulted and stamped in the mire. More American soldiers have been killed during President Wilson's administration than during the entire Spanish-American war.

No sane person wants war. We all know what the horrors of war are. But to threat and bluster, and then cringe and crawl, invites war. No one knows what tomorrow may bring us. It may be peace—or war—and America is unprepared.

DOUBLE PLATOON COST $700,000, O'CONNOR SAYS

Official figures of Fire Marshal O'Connor, it was disclosed yesterday, show that the so-called double platoon ordinance will cost the city close to $700,000 a year.

As a result an effort probably will be made in the city council to repeal or nullify the ordinance on the ground that Chief O'Connor's estimate was misrepresented when the measure was under discussion.

A Slight Difference.

At that time Ald. T. J. Lynch and Ald. John C. Kennedy quoted the chief as saying only 283 additional firemen would be needed at a cost of less than $300,000. The chief's authentic figures, as contained in a statement transmitted to members of the finance committee by Chairman Richert, place the required number of additional men at 640.

Chief O'Connor declared yesterday he regarded this as the absolute minimum necessary to put the new system in force. He also expressed a lack of sympathy for the double platoon plan.

His Correct Figures.

"I never did say 283 men would be sufficient," the chief asserted. "Six hundred and forty men will be absolutely needed. Of course, if I have to run the department with a force reduced below the point of efficiency, I suppose I'll have to do it.

"However, we're satisfied with things as they are and I think most of the men are. I know they'd much rather have part of this money spent for increased pay than to get the double platoon."

The new ordinance, which becomes effective April 1, 1917, gives the firemen twenty-four hours off duty for every twenty-four hours at the station.

STARTS DUBIA FIRE INQUIRY.

Murray Assigns Detective to Investigate Report of "Touchoff" by Depositors.

Fire Attorney Joseph Murray yesterday assigned Detective Sergt. James Doody to investigate the fire which partly destroyed the plant of the Chicago Dry Kiln company, 2031 South Morgan street, on Friday night. The plant was an asset of the Industrial Savings bank, of which Harry Dubia was the head. The insurance is $250,000, and the loss is estimated at $40,000. Capt. William Cashman, acting battalion fire chief, said he had heard rumors of a revenge plot by disappointed depositors of Dubia's bank.

TANNEHILL ROW OVER CHILDREN TO FORE AGAIN

Mother Gets Them on Adoption Decree and Father Sues to Set It Aside.

About the lives of little Phyllis and Philip Tannehill fate continues to weave a web of strange circumstances. Four times they have figured in semi-authorized kidnaping raids instigated by one or the other of their parents.

The last was early yesterday, when their mother, Mrs. Olive Handley-Tannehill-Fink, obtained possession of them with the aid of two detectives. Their father, Claude Tannehill, 810 Leland avenue, at once brought suit to have an adoption decree obtained by the mother of the children set aside.

Eagerly Sought for Adoption.

The children, who have figured prominently in the estrangement of their parents since June, were recently offered for adoption, and hundreds of persons all over the country sought to obtain them. It was alleged by the mother that their father refused to support them. She swore out a warrent for his arrest in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Then Tannehill retaliated with a divorce suit in which he averred the mother was not a proper person to have custody of the children.

Legal Marriage Denied.

In answer to her husband's suit Mrs. Tannehill alleged that they had never been legally marired.

Tannehill said he was led to believe that he had been legally married. He asserted his wife obtained the license and that a marriage ceremony was gone through before a justice of the peace.

Three weeks ago he obtained possession of the children. A week later, to show her belief that she was not the lawful wife of Tannehill Mrs. Tannehill married David Fink, a drug clerk. They filed a petition for adoption of the children, and the court made the legal order.

Detectives yesterday arrested Daniel A. Farrell, 272 Pearl street, Brooklyn, as one of the three robbers who killed James R. Hatfield and wounded John Tiefenthaler Tuesday night in a holdup of Tiefenthaler's saloon, 222 Lomax place. Farrell was walking past the Y. M. C. A. hotel in Wabash avenue when Detectives Kane and Stewart arrested him. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where Tiefenthaler, shot through the abdomen, identified him. Farrell is said to have taken the money from the saloon cash box while the others did the shooting.

Here's That Reo One-Rod Control

EASE OF OPERATION is one of the cardinal qualities of Reo the Fifth—"The Incomparable Four."

THAT QUALITY, perhaps more than any other, commends this car to women.

YOU SEE THE PROOF of this in the overwhelming percentage of women who drive Reo cars as compared with those who drive others.

BUT THAT SAME quality—ease of operation—is responsible for many other things that only owners of Reo the Fifth cars fully appreciate.

FOR, NO MATTER how expert you may be in handling a car—in clutch control and gear shifting—nevertheless you do miss once in a while, you know.

AND THE DAMAGE to your pride and your nerves is only a small part of the real damage—that which has resulted from the clashing of gear teeth and shock to bearings and other parts will show up later in the repair shop and the maintenance bill.

THAT REO CONTROL—the original "one rod" control; the original "center control"—is the biggest money saver the Reo engineers have ever been able to offer Reo buyers.

THE VERY FACT that instead of two hand levers, there is only one in Reo the Fifth, is important—one hand on the wheel, the other on the control, gives you confidence and vastly simplifies the operation.

WE'LL TELL YOU in the next ad, how the two feet control both brakes and the clutch—thus making these Reos the simplest cars to operate and control ever known.

BUT THERE'S ANOTHER fact that is not so apparent on the surface; one that all engineers appreciate and most owners; but one the buyer does not always grasp beforehand.

LIKE MANY OTHER BIG FACTS about Reo the Fifth, this is fully appreciated only after a few months of ownership.

THAT IS THE CO-RELATION of all the parts in that Reo clutch and transmission.

PERHAPS THE MOST DIFFICULT as well as the nicest engineering problem in the design of a motor car is working out that relation between the various elements of a transmission—the gear ratios, relative weights, speeds and "retarding influences" that result in silent (which means harmless) gear shifting.

THE REO ENGINEERS have done all your gear shifting for you in designing Reo the Fifth. It is scarcely necessary for you to think—just move the single lever to the position indicated on the index plate and without a sound, the right pair of gears slip in place.

SILENCE MEANS absence of shock to the gears; absence of undue strain to shafts; absence of injury to bearings.

ALL THESE YOU GET in Reo the Fifth "The Incomparable Four"—known the world over as "the simplest car to control."

AND AS WE'VE shown, the same engineering that has produced that result that you can see, also produces another that you don't find out till later (unless you talk with an owner of Reo the Fifth), namely, that this is also the cheapest car of its size in the world to operate and maintain.

THE PRICE IS STILL $875 f. o. b. factory, Lansing, Michigan, despite the present higher cost of both labor and materials.

IF WE FOLLOWED the policy of others, and took advantage of the overdemand for this popular model, the price would be at least $200 more—or the quality that much less.

BUT THAT ISN'T THE REO WAY. We still incorporate Reo quality; we still put "50 per cent oversize in all vital parts"—and as long as we can do so, will absorb the difference in cost, rather than increase the price.

BUT THAT ISN'T to be taken as a promise that the price of this "Incomparable Four" will always remain at $875. It may be absolutely necessary to raise it.

BUT MEANTIME, if your order is in you will get your Reo the Fifth at the present price—and just now we can give you a fairly prompt delivery.

"Yes!" or "No!" Mr. Hughes?

What would you do?

TO MR. HUGHES: As business men we are concerned about the future. We can meet almost any conditions, provided we know in advance to a reasonable extent what we may expect.

THE CORNERSTONE OF OUR BUSINESS STRUCTURE IS DOMESTIC CONFIDENCE AND INDUSTRIAL STRENGTH AT HOME. Trade in war supplies is but an incident of it.

Unless this development is interfered with by shortsighted legislation or unwise, impatient diplomacy which may drag us into war there is every indication that the prosperity which has come to us under President Wilson will continue, irrespective of the end of the war. Even the most experienced leaders of business and finance in your own party admit this.

As against these conditions we need, and we feel we have a right to know, what YOU are for. What will YOU do to conserve and further advance the legitimate business interests of the country?

You are reported in the daily newspapers as declaring in your recent speech in Milwaukee "that the whole Democratic legislative accomplishment must be wiped off the books for the good of the country." In view of that statement, we insist that definite answers be given to the following questions:

1. Would you repeal the Federal Reserve Act, with its insurance against panic and the facilities it has given us for making credit accessible to the deserving smaller business men, as it hitherto has been available to the largest business men?

2. Would you repeal the Underwood Tariff Law, with its income tax, and abolish the non-partisan Tariff Commission? Would you restore the system of tariff tinkering and political trading which has always caused business disturbance and invited European retaliation, or would you await the public presentation of the facts by the new Tariff Commission as a basis for scientific changes whenever changes may be necessary because of new conditions?

3. Would you discontinue the Federal Trade Commission, which is helping us to establish just relations between business and government and aiding the development of thousands of smaller enterprises, giving them practical information of the highest value? Would you go back to the old condition under which a single Commissioner of Corporations, a political appointee changing with each Administration, would again be entrusted with the enormous power of regulating the entire business of the country?

4. Would you repeal the Rural Credits Law, which for the first time has made proper credit as free to the American farmer as it has been to the business man and has put him on a business footing and given to our agriculture the stability to ensure its further development as the necessary basis of our domestic prosperity?

5. Would you repeal the Child Labor Law, which for the first time nationally protects helpless childhood and establishes some equality of working conditions between competing manufacturers of different States and at the same time makes for efficiency and progress in our relations with our employes?

6. Would you repeal the Federal Shipping Bill, which lays the foundation of a real Merchant Marine, of value to farmer and business man alike, and gives the Nation ships which can be used in times of war as auxiliaries to our Navy, for lack of which the Navy is now seriously handicapped?

7. Would you repeal the law providing for an honest test of the eight-hour day on railroads? The transportation companies being convinced that a strike was inevitable, as proven by their embargo on freight, would you have permitted the precipitation of that strike, with its millions of daily losses to business and its burden of human suffering, rather than favor the passage of the law enacted?

8. Would you intervene in Mexico, destroy the confidence of our Pan-American neighbors in the honesty of our intentions, and by making war on that Republic justify a menacing hatred of American enterprises for generations to come?

9. Finally, Mr. Hughes, would you substitute the threat of the mailed fist, with the terrible proof of what it has brought to Europe, for the processes of diplomacy, which have kept for us peace with honor?

WHERE 'WE WILL' THERE'S A WAY

Bread Lines Were the Feature of Mr. Wilson's Term Until War Came as Artificial Stimulant to Industry

A Look Back into Newspaper Files of 1913 and 1914 Recalls the Instant Effect of Democratic Tariff Tinkering

The headlines and items reproduced on this page are not new to readers of the newspapers. Nor did they first appear so long ago that they cannot easily be recalled.

They were clipped from Chicago papers of the winter and spring of 1913-14—the winter and spring in which Woodrow Wilson was closing his first year as president of the United States. One clipping is from a late 1914 paper.

"Wilson brought us prosperity; let's let well enough alone," the Democratic campaign orators have been urging of late. "An era of unexampled prosperity," muses the president as he sums up in retrospect the years of his administration.

Prosperity is here today. But was it Wilson? Or was it the war?

A sovereign people's memory is sometimes short. "Lest we forget," there is reprinted herewith a reminder or two of those months of Democratic rule when the world was at peace. There was no politics stirring then. A number of the clippings are culled from the files of newspapers now ardently supporting Woodrow Wilson for re-election.

It will be recalled that business was good in 1912 and in the early months of 1913. Then the Democratic administration "took hold" and something happened. The Democrats started tinkering with a number of things—the tariff, for example—and business wabbled. In the summer of 1913 the Underwood tariff bill was passed and shortly afterward became a law, and business paused.

Then industry slumped. Factories closed. Men and women were thrown out of employment. Bread lines appeared, and they were long ones. Commissions were appointed to tackle the problem of the jobless. In Chicago alone, in the spring of 1914 the municipal commission estimated that 189,866 persons were out of work. In New York the papers reported as many as 300,000 idle. On the Pacific coast there were similar reports. Matters were more serious than they had been since the middle '90s.

The condition that produced these things still exists, except for the war, and the war is going to end. What of the future?

Another candidate for the presidency, Charles Evans Hughes by name, says:

"We want a prosperity produced not by a European war but by sound American principles."

Unemployment, chief causative factor in poverty during 1914, shows an increase of 36 per cent over 1913, according to statistics compiled by the United Charities.

One hundred thousand persons of the city's permanent population are out of work, according to the report of Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, head of the department of public welfare. The announcement follows a thorough investigation of employment conditions covering a canvass of homes and communication with employers.

Of the permanent citizens 86,035 males and 13,975 females are unemployed. Fourteen firms showed increased pay rolls over last year. The federal census gives the number of workers in the city as 847,182 males and 272,223 females.

The majority of those out of work are between 20 years of age. Four hundred and fifty men and 150 teams were put to work by the city today to remove the snow from the streets in the First ward. W. J. Sheriff Zimmer, Building Commissioner Ericsson and Other Officials Call McCormick Scheme Impracticable

Pursuant to his proposal to turn the ninth floor and corridors of the county building into a refuge from the cold for unfortunate and homeless men unable to obtain accommodation in the cheaper municipal lodging houses, President A. A. McCormick ordered drawn up today a resolution, addressed to the county board, rendering the use of the courthouse to the city for this purpose.

While he was taking this action information reached him that members of the county board would oppose the plan and that Sheriff Michael Zimmer also regarded it with disfavor.

Ericsson Against Proposal

Building Commissioner Henry Ericsson also threw some cold water on the proposal.

"It will have to comply with the lodging house regulations, and I don't believe we could issue such a permit for the building as it is constructed," he said. "It hasn't enough exits, and was never intended to be used for sleeping quarters. I don't think it is a practicable plan."

Little Response to Fit Up

In reply to the suggestion of objectors that a vacant building in the downtown district be rented and fitted up for the purpose, President McCormick said: "What's the use of doing that? Here we have this building already, and for a little expense the ninth floor and corridors could be fitted up for the purpose."

"...boys" were crowded to capacity by men who had and could pay 5 cents for a warm spot.

The cold wave added to the anxiety of the park superintendents. The unusual warm weather preceding the cold snap caused the plants and bushes in the parks to put forth untimely buds.

"Bud" Inquiry to Be Made

This was at first hailed with delight, but the drop in temperature, however, has frozen the buds and deep concern is felt as to the effect this arrested growth will have on the plants in the spring. Botanical authorities were consulted and a investigation will be made into the condition of the park plant life at once.

PURPLE LANDS VICTORY OVER HOOSIERS, 7 TO 0

Brightmire Goes Over for Winning Score in the Opening Period.

LOSERS LACK PUNCH.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Northwestern blasted Indiana's hopes by a 7 to 0 victory over the Hoosier aggregation today and continued its own march toward the conference title in a stubbornly fought contest played in the presence of 8,000 people.

The Purple made its only score in the initial period. Brightmire crossed the Hoosier goal line and the Purple quarter back was really one of the bright stars for his men. Capt. Driscoll and Koehler also had much to do with the gains made by the visitors. It was the first time Indiana had been beaten by Northwestern in years.

Hoosiers Rally in Third Quarter.

The Evanston crew played with more ginger than Indiana in the first two periods, but in the third quarter the Hoosier eleven excelled. In that period Stiehm's men had the ball nearly all the time and reeled off several beautiful forward passes which netted good gains. The Hoosier passes did not work so smoothly in the last quarter, as the visitors intercepted most of them.

Indiana had the ball dangerously close to the Purple goal line in the last period, but lacked the punch to put it over. Brightmire's work at grabbing passes was one of the features of the game.

No Passes Tried by Purple.

Northwestern did not try a single pass, but relied principally on line plunges and end runs. Indiana did not show the fight displayed in the Tufts game until the third quarter. Then it was too late, as Erehart, the star Hoosier half back, was knocked out and replaced by a substitute.

Stiehm's men did not tackle as hard as they did in the eastern clash, and this was the reason the coach tried so many substitutes. Northwestern showed a better fighting spirit, and on the merits of the game deserved to win. Murphy's men had Erehart marked from the start and often stopped his plays before they were started.

The Purple rooters leaped off their seats when the final whistle sounded and, headed by their band, staged a snake dance, which was continued on the downtown streets of the city. Their special train left for Evanston at 6 o'clock this evening.

Coach Murphy Satisfied.

After the game Coach Murphy said:

"Of course, we are pleased that we won. We realized before we came down here that Indiana would give us a hard game and that Stiehm's men were much stronger than when they met Chicago. While we won by a small score, we are perfectly satisfied, and I want to praise the mental attitude shown by the Indiana team, which was lacking at the Maroon game.

"All Indiana needs to do is to keep its head up. It can give the best teams in the conference a hard fight any time."

First Period.

W. Hess booted the ball to the Purple fifteen yard line, and Brightmire returned six yards. Northwestern tried line plunging plays, which were stopped, and Capt. Driscoll booted the ball to Erehart, who returned to the center of the field. A pass, Erehart to W. Hess, was intercepted by Brightmire, who returned it forty-five yards. A purple player fumbled the ball on the Indiana twenty yard line and a Hoosier recovered. Hess then punted to the center of the field. Capt. Driscoll's men worked the ball to the Indiana fifteen yard line, then Quarter Back Brightmire made the first touchdown around right end. Putnam kicked goal. Score—Northwestern, 7; Indiana, 0.

Second Period.

Northwestern had the ball on Indiana's twenty-five yard line, but lost it on downs and Hess punted back to the Purple twenty-five yard mark. There was an exchange of punts, with honors about evenly divided between Hess and Driscoll. Ellingwood went around right end for a thirty yard sprint. Driscoll attempted a drop kick from the twenty-five yard line which barely missed.

W. Hess kicked to Driscoll on the Purple twenty yard line, and he returned ten yards. Northwestern received a fifteen yard penalty for unnecessary roughness. Indiana tried two passes which failed, then punted. Brightmire gained fifteen yards around the Indiana right end, but the Purple lost it for holding in the line on the next play.

Driscoll was forced to kick. On two passes Indiana gained twenty yards. A third one was intercepted by Koehler, who returned it twenty yards. The half ended with the ball in Northwestern's possession on the Hoosiers' thirty yard line.

Third Period.

Driscoll kicked to Hathaway, who returned ten yards. Erehart tore off ten yards on a forward pass end around left end, then lost a yard. The Purple broke up the next two passes and Erehart, Indiana's star half, took time out for an injury to his knee. Hess punted to the ten yard line. Driscoll carried the ball twice for good gains, but was forced to kick and his men received un-

BUCKEYES BEAT BADGERS, 14-13; BID FOR TITLE

Harley, Chicago Boy, Wins for Ohio State by 65 Yard Run.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Charles (Chick) Harley, who weighs only 153 pounds and who learned to play football on Chicago's prairies, was the all important factor in today's struggle between Wisconsin and Ohio State which resulted in a 14 to 13 victory for the Buckeyes and turned western conference dope upside down.

Harley scored all the Ohio State points and he is about the best piece of football machinery seen in the country this year. He scored a touchdown in the second period after a thirty yard run and another in the third period, when he caught a punt and wormed his way through the entire Wisconsin team for a sixty-five yard run. He kicked both goals, which gave Ohio fourteen points.

New Mark on Grid Map.

It was a great game, one which unquestionably has put Ohio State on the football map to such a degree that the Buckeyes must command the respect and admiration of critics in all sections of the country. Coach Wilce's team entered the struggle the underdog, but after the first quarter, which was all in Wisconsin's favor, the Columbus aggregation found itself and played the Badgers to a standstill in every department of the game.

Wisconsin started like a sure winner. Capt. Myers called the turn of the coin and elected to receive the initial kickoff. The Badgers, by use of concentrated attacks off and on the tackles and line plunges, carried the oval well into the home team's territory. For a short time the battle was fought on Ohio State's thirty yard line. The Badgers then secured possession of the ball in midfield and by concentrated attacks carried it to the Buckeyes' five yard line.

At this point Ohio State put up a remarkable defense and kept Wisconsin from what appeared a certain score. The remainder of play in this period was mostly in Ohio territory and the team must be given credit for displaying a defense which brought rounds of applause from impartial fans.

Badgers Get the Jump.

In the second period Ohio State, realizing it could check Wisconsin's best attempts to gain ground, and, moreover, could make ground through the Badger forward wall, settled down to the hardest kind of work. In the early stages of the period the battle was fought in midfield, but Wisconsin finally got possession of the ball on the Buckeyes' forty yard line. Line plunges by Olson and Simpson netted twenty yards, then Taylor made a forward pass to Capt. Myers, who caught the oval in the end zone for the first score of the game. Simpson added another point by kicking goal.

Ohio was not discouraged by this unlooked-for break. The Buckeyes came back with dogged determination, finally obtained possession of the ball on the Badger forty yard line, and then carried it ten yards near the goal line by drives through the line and split interference plays.

With the ball resting on Wisconsin's thirty yard line Harley's signal for an end run was given. The fleet little back dropped back in punt formation, the right end shifted to Ohio's left side, then Harley skirted the Badgers' right end for a thirty yard run and a touchdown. He added the knotting point by kicking goal.

Break Comes in Final Period.

Neither team threatened to register in the third period, but the fourth quarter was featured by plenty of football thrills. After an exchange of punts Wisconsin received the ball on its forty yard line. The Badgers could not make consistent headway, and Taylor punted to Harley. The little Buckeye back tucked the ball under his arm, and, aided by perfect interference, ran sixty-five yards for a touchdown. He kicked the goal and the spectators went wild. Hats, canes, cushions—anything the fans could lay hands on—were thrown into the air.

Wisconsin, however, came back with the old fighting Badger spirit. After receiving the ball in midfield the Badgers made a successful march to the goal. In this advance they were aided by a fifteen yard penalty for illegal interference on the part of an Ohio player when Wisconsin tried a forward pass. The Badger backs then pounded their way through the line for the touchdown, which was made at one side of the field. Taylor missed the punt out, which deprived Wisconsin of the right to kick goal, and the game ended shortly afterward with Ohio State on the long end of a 14 to 13 score.

Buckeyes in Line for Title.

The victory places the Buckeyes in a position to claim the conference championship, provided they win their two remaining games from Indiana and Northwestern.

That Wisconsin was sure of winning the game was shown by the fact that Head Coach Withington did not accompany the team. Instead he went to Minneapolis to see the Illinois-Minnesota clash to get a line on the Gophers, whom the Badgers will meet on Nov. 18 at Minneapolis, and the Illinois eleven, which will battle the Badgers at Madison on Nov. [illegible] Dr. Withington's ab-

ELI TOUCHDOWN IN LAST PERIOD BEATS COLGATE

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Yale defeated Colgate, 7 to 3, after the New Yorkers had held 3 to 0 till the final period. During the first half Colgate had the advantage, Yale making only a single first down, while Colgate gained 150 yards.

Colgate rushed the ball eighty yards to the Yale one yard line, then was stopped, and West missed two placement goals during the first period. After five minutes of the second had elapsed Colgate rushed the ball fifty yards to the Eli twenty yard line, a forty yard end run by Hubbell being the feature. Here the Yale line held and on fourth down West lifted a placement goal from the Yale twenty-five yard line.

Legore's Field Attempt Fails.

Before the period closed Colgate twice reached the Yale ten yard line, once being set back twenty-five yards on a penalty. The second time Yale took the ball on downs. Yale took the aggressive in the third period, smashing to Colgate's thirty yard line, where Legore's attempted drop kick was blocked.

Yale had again rushed the ball to the Colgate ten yard line when the period closed.

A forward pass, Neville to Legore, took the ball over for Yale's only touchdown on the second scrimmage of the final period.

Elis Threaten at Finish.

Yale twice rushed the ball to Colgate's twenty yard line during the last five minutes of the game, and Braden lifted two drop kicks, which bounded back, one from the uprights and the other from the cross bar.

CORNELL TRIMS CARNEGIE TECH.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Cornell defeated Carnegie Tech this afternoon, 15 to 7, showing a few flashes of form but still being backward and lacking the pep that ought to characterize a football team. The Ithacans handled the ball better than last week, but their tackling was far from effective and the end play, though improved, was still vulnerable. In the last period Shiverick went into the Cornell back field and the Ithacans braced up. They rushed fifty yards for a touchdown, Mueller scoring, and were on their opponents' five yard line when time was called. The game was played in a drizzling rain.

Stagg Digs Into Maroons and Beats Purdue, 16 to 7

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

After being outplayed in the first half, Coach Stagg's University of Chicago eleven experienced a mental and physical uplift between halves and crushed its old time rival, Purdue, in the last half of the battle yesterday at Stagg field, the final count being 16 to 7.

When the combat was half over the count was 7 to 6 in favor of the Boilermakers from Lafayette, but during the intermission "Old Man" Stagg apparently remade his team. At least it was a different outfit that rushed the Hoosiers in the third period. An entirely new system of offense was introduced, complicated formations and shift plays taking the place of the straight forward and simple attack previously employed, and Purdue was bewildered and beaten before the third quarter was half over.

Stagg Forced to Show Hand.

It may be that the "Old Man" felt compelled to uncover a lot of fancy stuff which was prepared for important combats in the future. At least it looked as if he tried to beat Purdue with the same brand of football which had failed to stop Northwestern and Wisconsin, and seeing it wouldn't work, decided to use everything on hand and beat Purdue regardless of the future.

The Maroon eleven of the first half was a weak and wabbly machine, which was able to score only because of a brilliant individual play by Pershing. The Maroon team of the third and fourth periods was a high geared 1916 model machine, which ripped and smashed its way through the heavy Hoosier defense with admirable superiority.

A Tribute to a Coach.

After the new machine had plowed its way to a touchdown in the third quarter and in the fourth had rushed the ball within striking distance, from where Walter Schafer booted a field goal from the thirty-four yard line, the Midway fellows were content to play a defensive game for the balance of the fight, and never were in danger, though Purdue did rally. The Hoosiers were stopped once on the four yard line.

Stagg's men, after their uplift, looked fit to battle any of the big teams. The new plays were executed with speed and accuracy. There were shifts and spreads and fake passes and short forward passes which seldom failed.

Agar and Graham Star.

Agar and Graham did some sparkling running around the ends. At times they started as if to run the ends, then, after getting their opponents on the move in that direction, cut straight through the middle at right angles, seldom failing to make big gains by that method. The Purdue players were perplexed. The Purdue coaches rushed substitutes into the fray with instructions for changes in the defense to stop the new Maroon attack, but it wasn't stopped until the Midway boys had clinched the victory.

With perfect weather and a close battle in sight there were more than 12,000 football enthusiasts gathered for the game. At least 2,000 of that number were students from Purdue who had accompanied the team confident that this was the year they would win.

Maroons Get Jump.

Chicago surprised everyone at the start by scoring a touchdown almost before the yell had been given. Purdue kicked off to Pershing, who fumbled, but recovered and ran to Chicago's twenty-five yard line. Then there was an exchange of punts, Purdue's being partially blocked, which gave Chicago the ball on its forty-five yard line. Pershing ordered a couple of old fashioned line smashes and the ball was advanced just two yards, then he tried carrying it himself.

In some unexpected manner Pershing darted and dodged through the middle of the line and found a clear field except for Abrell, who was away back. By a swerve to one side Pershing was able to shake off Abrell and keep going until he had covered fifty-three yards and planted the ball for a touchdown in the southeast corner. Agar punted out and then missed goal.

Right after that brilliant run Mr. Pershing was taken out and Graham substituted. No one seemed to know why. Soon after the kickoff, Chicago was held for downs on its own forty yard line because it couldn't make a foot on a fourth down. This gave the Boilermakers their opening, and they rushed the ball to the goal, splendid plunging by Huffine being largely responsible. Beucknor kicked goal and Purdue led by one point.

New Plays Rout Purdue.

From then until the new Maroons appeared in the third quarter the play favored Purdue. When Stagg opened up his new stuff the Midway team excelled in everything. Purdue made a first down just after the kickoff, but soon had to punt. Then the new machine started. In three more minutes the game was decided, for the Maroons had carried the ball from their own thirty-five yard line to Purdue's goal, and didn't need the three points added later by Mr. Schafer's boot.

STEVENS POINT PLAYER BREAKS NECK ON GRIDIRON.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 4.—Lawrence college defeated Stevens Point, 26 to 0. Pope, right tackle for Stevens Point, was seriously injured, a vertebra in his neck being broken. Murphy of the same team also was badly injured.

AUBURN PLAYER BREAKS LEG

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 4.—Left Tackle Wynne of the Auburn football team broke his leg in the second period of the Georgia-Auburn football game here today.

MICHIGAN AGGIES TIE SOUTH DAKOTA, 3 TO 3.

Vermillion, S. D., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—South Dakota threw a scare into Michigan Aggies today when McKinnon made a beautiful drop kick from the thirty yard line in the second quarter. It looked like a South Dakota victory until the last three minutes of play, when, with the Coyotes fighting desperately, Huebel dropped back and with a well placed drop kick tied the score, 3 to 3. It was one of the best battles ever seen on the home field. The Aggies were unable to gain consistently. The Coyotes showed superiority in the forward pass game.

SOLDIERS SCORE 30 TO 10 TRIUMPH OVER NOTRE DAME

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The Army repelled an invasion of western football warriors this afternoon, taking a game from Notre Dame, 30 to 10, by a charging, smashing finish.

Starting the final quarter the Army led by a scant three points. Then Uncle Sam's pets broke loose in earnest and piled up seventeen more points in the last fifteen minutes of the battle.

Notre Dame Scores First.

Notre Dame scored in the first period after carrying the ball from the kickoff. Cofall and Bergmann featured, the former booting a pretty placement goal from the forty-five yard line. The Army at the end of this period had the ball on Notre Dame's eighteen yard line.

The Army scored twice via the aerial route in the second period. Oliphant booted one placement goal from the twenty yard line early in the quarter, and just before the half ended Vidal, after a beautiful thirty yard forward pass, Oliphant to House, stood on Notre Dame's forty-five yard line and booted another goal.

In its third quarter four Notre Dame rushed, carried the ball to the Army's five yard line, and Bergmann went through tackle on the next play for a score. Cofall kicked goal. The Army came right back and by beautiful forward passing scored a touchdown. Vidal went over and Oliphant kicked goal.

Soldiers Rout Invaders.

The Cadets ripped things wide open in the last quarter and smothered the Hoosiers with seventeen more points, made on two touchdowns, with the two goals and a field goal from placement by Oliphant. Lineup:

WHOOP 'ER UP AT ILLINOIS WHEN MAYOR SAYS IT'S O. K.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—With the permission of Mayor E. S. Swigart to "go to it," nearly 3,000 students of the University of Illinois held the business section of Champaign at a standstill for an hour tonight. The students formed in line directly after the flash reached Illinois field telling of the defeat of Minnesota.

Marching to the center of town, the crowd seized Mayor Swigart and hoisted him to the top of a street car where, in a short talk, he said:

"Go to it! Such a victory is worthy of any amount of celebration. The city is yours!"

COAST AUTO RACES O. K.'D.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 4.—Permission to hold the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races at Santa Monica Nov. 16 and 18 on a course running through territory recently annexed to Los Angeles was regranted today by the board of public works when waivers were filed releasing the city from liability from accidents. The original permit was revoked Oct. 19 when it was feared members of the board might be personally responsible.

PURPLE AND BUCKEYES SURVIVE IN 'BIG NINE'

As the result of yesterday's football games Northwestern and Ohio State are the only unbeaten teams in the Big Nine conference. If Northwestern wins its remaining games from Iowa and Purdue and Ohio State wins from Indiana next Saturday these two teams will meet at Columbus Nov. 25 for the Big Nine title. No matter whether some other eleven appears to the critics to be stronger on paper, the records will show that Ohio State beat Illinois and Wisconsin, while the Illini put Minnesota out of the running.

WOLVERINE MACHINE RUNS UP 66-7 SCORE AGAINST WASHINGTON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Michigan had a lively sixty minutes' scrimmage this afternoon with Washington university, the clash ending up with a victory of 66 to 7 for the Wolverines. The piker score came as a big surprise in the second period, when Kling, the visiting left flanker, found Zeiger juggling an attempt to pass and grabbed the oval, taking it fifty-five yards to the Michigan goal.

Maulbetsch Leads Scoring.

Capt. Maulbetsch led the scoring procession by taking the ball across five times and goaling four more. The Wolverines were only able to count once in the first division, but they soon found the Washington weak spots, and nine more tallies followed so rapidly that it was no small task to keep count of them.

Zeiger did fine work at the pilot position, directing the squad with good sense and repeating his two touchdown performance of last Saturday. Michigan's subs were numerous, and two of them, Hanish and Brazell, managed to get across the line for a touchdown apiece in the final period.

St. Louis Players Plucky.

There was no good reason why Yost's men should not have put the count well up into the century neighborhood. Repeated penalties for holding and an epidemic of fumbling by the back field lost them countless yards and in one case permitted a hostile score. The Pikers were a plucky lot. Schwartzenback, their 125 pound left half back, stayed in for the entire game and had the job of carrying the ball a large part of the time. Lineup:

EASY FOR MILLIKEN, 57 TO 0

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 4.—Millikin's eleven continued its winning streak today by defeating Shurtleff college, 57 to 0. Forty-seven points were made in the first half. Millikin meets Illinois college here next Saturday in the game which will decide the championship of the Illinois minor college conference.

Minnesota Makes Lone Bid in the Third Quarter of Strenuous Battle.

ILLINI WIN AT START.

BY A. P. KEEFE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Illinois university turned one of the biggest upsets of the western football season by defeating Minnesota today, 14 to 9.

The Gophers were outplayed, except in the third quarter. They lost the game through Wyman's poor judgment in attempting a pass after being surrounded by Illinois tacklers. He heaved the oval six feet, squarely into Kraft's arms, and the stellar end of the Illini raced fifty-five yards for a touchdown. That was the second Illinois score. The first came after a forward pass and plays through the Gophers' left side.

Illinois Line Stops Gophers.

All during the first half the Gophers were dazed by the unexpected strength of the Orange and Blue line. Even the smashing Sprafka made only a few gains. Minnesota made some costly fumbles, but even in the third quarter, when the Gophers were twice within striking distance of the goal, the Illinois defense tightened and Minnesota lost the ball on downs.

Capt. Macomber of Illinois played a brilliant game. His only misplay was the choice of a place kick, which was blocked and nearly cost the Illini the game. Sternaman saved it by tackling Baston from behind when the Gopher captain had a clear field after blocking the kick.

Macomber outpunted Wyman, carried the bulk of line smashing play, was a bear on defense, and executed his forward passes with coolness and precision.

Victors Solve Long Pass.

The Illinis used the short pass to good advantage, while the Gophers attempted long ones. The Illinois defense for long passes was excellent, Knopp saving his team from being scored on when he blocked Baston in receiving the ball near the Illinois goal.

Kraft was another star for the Zuppke team. He was good at receiving forward passes and covered punts well, also. He sifted through the interference several times to nail runners. Then there was R. Petty at right tackle. Petty outplayed the giant Townley, who was shifted to tackle in place of Mayer, the latter playing right guard.

The Illinois tacklers would reach out over the interference to get Gopher runners and many times retarded them. They would break through and crowd around Wyman before he had a chance to make a forward pass. Rundquist got the worst of it playing against Right Tackle Hauser. The big Gopher was through the line time after time, spilling Illinois formations. Neither team could gain much ground through center, though the Gophers had the best of it in that spot.

Zuppkes Show Better Interference.

The Illini excelled in interference, though Baston and Hauser smashed through many times to throw Macomber and Sternaman for considerable losses. The second half saw a big brace in the Gopher line. The forwards charged better, and the Illini did not have a chance except in open plays, and after one or two downs Macomber invariably kicked. The punts did not gain much ground, and the Gopher march for the Illinois goal would look ominous, but the Northmen could not summon the necessary drive.

Finally Sprafka and Hansen were replaced by Anderson and Carlson, but it was too late. The ball was in Illinois territory practically all of the second half, Macomber's punts being offset by forward passes and tackle plays.

Hauser Star for Losers.

Hauser stood out as the big Gopher star. He played a smashing game throughout, and plays at his side of the line were heaped up. Mayer braced him considerably, though still suffering from his knee injury.

Capt Baston was more effective on defense than in advancing the ball. The excellent Illinois defense prevented him from catching forward passes, but he threw Macomber for many losses behind the line. Long did not return punts as well as usual, the Illinois ends always being down under the ball, but he showed good judgment in running the team. He played an open game entirely in the last few minutes, but the opposing ends and backs were too shifty to let them by. He was, however, outgeneraled by Macomber.

Minnesota Stars Fail.

Sprafka and Hansen, backs, did not play up to form. They blocked listlessly and failed to pick generous holes in the line. They gave evidence of having grown stale. There is no contention in Gopher circles that they were overconfident. They were merely a trifle stale. The breaks in luck, too, went against the Gophers.

A bare handful of Illinois rooters went wild as the game ended. The Minnesota crowd was too stunned to do anything but leave the grandstand. The Illinois substitutes hoisted Coach Zuppke on their shoulders and carried him from the field, and Halas, the disabled half back, forgot to use his crutches and hopped on one foot to the gymnasium, dragging his bum leg and crutches behind him.

Now for Some Alibis.

The Gophers were not in prime condition. Mayer's knee was a bother. Sinclair had a charleyhorse, and Wyman has had the grip for a week.

Coach Paul Withington of Wisconsin came here to scout on the Gophers and decided to scout on the Illini, too. Afterward he said he had learned one thing. Besides hearing of Wisconsins' defeat, he had discovered Wisconsin had two regular teams to play yet this season, instead of one.

For Which We Give Them Credit.

New Bugaboo for Badgers.

CAMP MAY PICK BART MACOMBER

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Walter Camp came to look over the Gopher stars and looked over the Illinois stars. He found one, Macomber, who E. C. Patterson, Collier's all western critic, who watched the game with Camp, says is scheduled for all American honors. He found Wyman, Camp admits, excellent at punting forward passes, although the Gopher line did not hold well enough to execute them successfully. He also saw Hauser, tackle, in a favorable light.

Part of Camp's comment on the game follows:

"The forward pass when it works is a fine pass, but it is sometimes a boomerang. Wyman is first class in his ability to get off the forward pass, even the long ones. When Illinois linemen got through and were hurrying him he scored a first down with this ability in the last period when he had been tackled and almost swung off his feet.

"Macomber nearly gave the game to Minnesota when he tried to kick from placement. I told Patterson before the play that the kick was going to be blocked and that if he didn't have a man playing behind him Minnesota might get a touchdown. As it was when the kick was blocked and a Minnesota man got the ball with a clear field but was caught from behind before he could get going. It seemed a poor play at the time with the score as it was.

"And in making the forward pass, as did Wyman, it is much better to suffer a loss by not throwing the ball than taking a risk in throwing it when he isn't sure of his man catching it. It cost the game for Minnesota.

"Both lines played excellent defensive. The eastern teams show up better on punting, especially Driggs of Princeton. I would say that the eastern teams are faster, due to the fact that the western teams do a lot of shifting, and that delays the game. The western teams' defensive, however, is very good. It is simply their offense that is slower than that of the east."

W. AND J. GAME CALLED OFF.

Washington, Pa., Nov. 4.—This afternoon's football game between Washington and Jefferson and Muskingum was called off because of the death today of Dr. James Moffat, president of W. and J.

THREE DAY AUTO RACE ENDS.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 3.—The auto race from Winnipeg to Galveston, over the Meridian road, which began at 11 o'clock last Wednesday, ended at 12:32 this afternoon when the first automobile reached this city. Other cars went to Austin and Laredo.

Weiss All-Stars vs. Union Giants.

Joe Weiss' All Stars will play Union Giants this afternoon at Logan square. The picked team gathered by the former "Tribune" amateur find, last year first baseman for Chicago Whales, will be represented on the points by Buchits and Nichols. Kelly and Coleman will be the Giants' battery.

Speed Boys to Face Merrimacs.

Former Northwestern, Notre Dame, and Villa Nova players will be seen in action at Garden City park today when Washington Park Speed Boys of Evanston play the Merrimacs in the latter eleven's first home game of the season. As a curtain raiser, the Merrimac reserves will battle the Century A. C., starting at 1 o'clock. The Evanston lineup includes three old Purple warriors.

HARVARD SUBS ROUT VIRGINIA BY 51-0 SCORE

Second String Men Pile Up the Biggest Total of Season for Crimson.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Harvard rolled up its largest score of the season today in defeating the University of Virginia, 51 to 0. The Crimson played substitutes almost exclusively, but even the second back field was irresistible. Whatever advantages Virginia obtained from Thurman's spectacular punting were dissipated by the open field running of the Harvard men.

While Coach Haughton kept most of his regulars on the side lines, thirty substitutes took turns at running riot through Virginia.

Minot Makes Sixty Yard Run.

Minot was Harvard's star in the first half. His long runs off tackle and around end gained scores of yards for the Crimson. Late in the first half he intercepted a Virginia forward pass and ran sixty yards for a touchdown. Bond, who returned to the game after an injury, was hard to stop on his line plunges.

In the second half Harvard's third string backs went to work with the same success. Willcox, the fleet back, raced all over the field on long runs. His best spurt was for fifty yards after he had intercepted a forward pass.

Harvard used the forward pass frequently and with good success. One of the touchdowns was scored when Felton made a perfect pass to H. Coolidge behind the Virginia goal line.

Virginia Makes One Spurt.

Virginia once penetrated Harvard's territory by using three consecutive forward passes, but the ball was intercepted on the fourth trial.

Thurman's punting was the feature of the southerners' play. He booted the ball 525 yards in twelve kicks, averaging better than forty-four yards per kick. Lineup:

GRINNELL DEFEATS DRAKE.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Grinnell downed Drake, its ancient rival, in a bitterly fought game, 21 to 0. Augustine, the big Grinnell full back, was the star. His punting kept the Bulldogs from the danger line, and his attacks through the line were responsible for most of Grinnell's gains. He scored the first touchdown on a wide end run for fifty yards in the first quarter. In the next quarter Shulz and Watt scored touchdowns after marches down the field. Drake braced in the next two periods and held Grinnell even. Lineup:

DE PAUL U. BESTS WHEATON.

De Paul university gridders scored their initial local success yesterday, defeating Wheaton college, 6 to 0, at De Paul field. Finley made the victory possible by getting away with a sixty yard run on a forward pass in the first period. Two first downs followed, then he hit center for the six points. Wheaton put up a bold front twice, working the ball to the three yard line, but each time De Paul held.

TUFTS WALKS HOME, 28-0.

Medford, Mass., Nov. 4.—Tufts' football team swamped the Massachusetts Agricultural college eleven, 28 to 0. Tufts' forward passing worked with machinelike precision, the team making 130 yards in ten attempts. At no time did the farmers threaten the Tufts goal. The visitors made only two first downs.

KICK WINS FOR NEBRASKA, 3-0

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 4.—Fumbles by both teams marred the Nebraska-Ames game today, but the Cornhuskers finally pulled out a close victory over the scrappy Iowa State players, 3 to 0. By its victory Nebraska retains the championship of the Missouri valley conference. A field goal by Chaplin Corey in the third period earned the game for the local varsity. The goal was executed from the Iowa fifty yard line, and came in the third quarter at a time when Nebraska's hopes were all but shattered.

The advantage was with Ames throughout the first half, but twice with the ball on the Nebraska ten yard line slips cost the Iowans apparently sure scores. Lineup:

TIGERS SWAMP BUCKNELL, 42-0, IN SLOW GAME

Princeton Shows Poor Form and Little "Pep"—Foe's Condition Worse.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Bucknell, which replaced Williams on the Princeton schedule, was defeated this afternoon in Palmer stadium, 42 to 0, in one of the most uninteresting games ever seen on the new grounds. The visitors showed nothing in the way of defense, and with the exception of a few well placed forward passes had an exceptionally poor offense.

The Tiger team seemed to lack any concerted team play and the individual work of Moore, who played for the first time this year, was the only hope that Princeton might have a chance against Harvard next Saturday.

Princeton Scores Early.

Eddy scored the first touchdown for Princeton in the first three minutes of play after the ball had been advanced to the seven yard line by end runs and off tackle plays. Tibbott kicked goal and the first period ended with the ball on Bucknell's forty-one yard line. Score: Princeton, 7; Bucknell, 0.

Tibbott and Eddy each contributed in the second period, with little opposition from Bucknell. The half ended: Princeton, 21; Bucknell, 0.

Disallow 98 Yard Run.

In the third period, with the ball within two feet of Bucknell's goal, Eddy called for an end run by Brown, who fumbled. The fumble was recovered by Hopper, who ran ninety-eight yards for a touchdown, only to be called back by Referee Cosgrove, who had called downs. Comey replaced Eddy and immediately went through center for a touchdown. Tibbott kicked goal.

Billy Moore scored fourteen points more for Princeton in the last period by long end runs and kicking goals.

FOUR FOOTED CADDY ON GOLF LINKS

The name of this fox terrier is Rex and he is owned by William Cashbaugh, 3525 Flournoy street. On west side golf courses Rex is known as the dog caddy. Of course he cannot carry a bag of clubs, but he can find a lost ball so much quicker than a two legged caddy he accompanies his master every time the latter plays the game.

Rex is so well trained he will pay no attention to a ball on the fair greens, but confines his work to the tall grass and bushes. Last year he recovered 187 balls which were lost beyond recovery by the usual means, and this year he has retrieved over 200.

sence undoubtedly had a psychological effect on the Wisconsin players. They were overconfident.

The weather was ideal for football, and 12,000 fans, the largest gathering that ever attended a game in Ohio, was on hand. After the battle the spectators certainly shouted and sang the praises of Coach Wilce and the Buckeye eleven, which is in a position to be rated as one of the strongest aggregations in the west and which also must be considered when the national title is determined. OLYMPIA CLUB TO INSPECT NEW COURSES TODAY

Members Invited to Look Over Links Laid Out by Bendelow and Watson.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

When the Olympia Fields Country announced its intention of construct four or even five golf courses the idea was looked upon as visionary by many. Plugging steadily along, the promoters gathered strength, and last summer were able to give the members golf over a course laid out by Harry Collis. It was not the finished article, but was quite equal to conditions which other pioneers of the game around Chicago have had to face. This course will be altered and lengthened by next season.

Today the board of governors has invited the members out to inspect two additional courses, one laid out by Tom Bendelow of Chicago and the other by William Watson of Los Angeles.

New Courses About 6,500 Yards.

For two weeks these architects have been at work on their plans, and today they will be on hand to explain them. Both these courses will range around 6,500 yards in length. The standing of the architects insures the work will be along modern lines, and the character of the land gives them ample opportunity to display their versatility.

When the three courses are completed the members will have a greater variety of good golf than any club in the country. Secretary Beach announces that all golfers are welcome to inspect the property today.

Edgewater.

H. H. Embry won the Old Boys' cup at Edgewater, defeating J. L. Flannery, 3 and 1. George Nelson, 91—19—72, won the handicap in class A, and G. E. Marshall, 98—2—71, won in class B. Prizes were donated by Bert Krogstad. Winners in the ball sweepstakes were, G. Nelson, E. H. Bagley, F. T. Starck, E. A. McGinnis, G. L. Payne, T. J. Hallinan, A. D. White, W. G. Young, W. J. Klingenberg, L. E. Gosselin, J. W. Moulding and G. L. Bradshaw.

Oak Park.

A big crowd played at the Oak Park Country club, many competing in a four ball foursome handicap. This was won by T. A. Swiries, C. Howe, C. Henderson, and T. E. Jones, who had a total of 367—38—329.

Dental Golf Club Prospers.

That the Chicago Dental Golf club has enjoyed the most successful year since its inception was the report read to the members of the organization at the annual meeting held at the Hotel Sherman. All the officers of last year were reelected. Dr. E. A. Schmuck remains as president, H. E. Barber is vice president, William Devlin secretary, and C. L. Frame treasurer.

Of the eleven cups competed for A. J. Anderson won three. E. A. Schmuck was second on the winners' list, taking two cups.

Calumet.

W. H. Taylor won the scratch blind bogey handicap at Calumet with a card of 82. Five players tied on the net event, A. L. Davis getting 98—16—82; R. D. Jenkins, 122—40—82; D. J. Higgins, 114—32—82; J. E. Cashin, 99—17—82; E. B. Boyed, 103—

DO YOU KNOW WHEN YOUR DOG HAS WORMS?

Most dog owners know something about the danger of worms and the risk involved if they are not detected and removed at once.

But the most experienced breeders will tell you that it is often difficult to be sure whether the animal has worms or not.

This has led to the very general use of the famous Vermilax Worm Remedy, which always serves as a valuable tonic, and is a positive, humane expellent of round, tape or any other type of stomach or intestinal worms in dogs. Follow the lead of the men who know. Administer Vermilax Worm Remedy every ten days or two weeks as they do, and you will have a better looking, more healthy dog.

We can supply you with Vermilax Worm Remedy or any of the other of the celebrated Vermilax Remedies for dogs.

The Year 'Round Car

We cordially invite you to visit our salesrooms and inspect the new Paige "Six-38" Touring Sedan. This car, we sincerely believe, is one of the most striking examples of fine coach work that can be found in America.

The design is refreshingly new, and the appointments are in exquisite taste. By merely removing the glass windows, the closed Sedan is instantly converted into an ultra smart touring car. Thus, the Sedan is the most practical of all cars for year 'round use.

But come in and see it for yourself. At that time we shall be glad to tell you about all the other Paige closed models on the "Six-46" chassis—the handsomest line of motor cars that the market affords.

'CHIC' HARLEY, OHIO STATE HERO

No son of Ohio State university celebrating in Columbus last night the Cherry's arrival at gridiron distinction after years of waiting was prouder of the 14-13 victory over Wisconsin than Charles W. Harley Sr. of THE TRIBUNE composing room, father of the half back hero of the contest. Harley also was responsible for the defeat of Illinois, 7 to 6.

Charles W. Jr. [Chick] learned his early football on the Chicago prairies. The 21 year old half back who accomplished the downfall of the Badgers by his run through the entire field played football at East High school of Columbus for four years, entering Ohio State in 1914. He weighs 158 pounds. Chick also is a track athlete of no mean note. He worked his way through his final two years of high school and is supporting himself at college by working in a clothing store. His Chicago address is 3239 Palmer street.

SYRACUSE TEAM DROPS BATTLE TO DARTMOUTH

Big Green Eleven Victor After Bitterly Fought Contest by a Count of 15 to 10.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Before a crowd estimated at 15,000 Dartmouth justified the advance judgment of football followers by defeating the strong Syracuse team, 15 to 10. It was thrilling throughout, and there was not a moment during the entire contest when the speed and general fierceness of the play suffered a lull.

The Syracuse team appeared every bit as strong as the Green team—there was little difference between the two back fields, the line on both sides was made up of seasoned veterans who were ready to fight to a finish, and both elevens early in the game gave evidence of the strength which was displayed in a great battle. Lineup:

REMEMBER CARLETON? 79-0.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Carleton played both old and new style football and trampled over Beloit, 79 to 0. The Beloit play was erratic and the visitors made first down only three times. Farrell, who replaced Capt. Allison, the star of the Chicago game, who was recently declared ineligible, played a wonderful game for Carleton. At one stage he intercepted a forward pass and ran eighty-two yards for a touchdown. Dunphy, for the winners, made four touchdowns.

PLAY FOR COLUMBIAN FLAG

An attempt will be made today to settle the pennant race of the Columbian Circle Baseball league when the Olympians, champions of the north division, meet the Onwards, pennant winners of the west division, at Rex Tigers' park, Forty-second street and Chicago avenues. The teams met two weeks ago and played an eleven inning tie game, but since then they could not get together and agree on terms for the playoff. Today's game will be called at 10:30 a. m.

PURPLE TRIMS HOOSIERS, 7-0

other fifteen yard penalty for roughness Indiana then received the same penalty for holding. Two passes failed and Hess punted to Driscoll on the Purple five yard line. The captain punted to Erehart, who returned ten yards. Erehart, suffering from his injured leg, was led off the field and Hiatt was sent in. Indiana started a march down the field and carried the ball to the Purple thirty yard line. There Hathaway attempted a place kick which failed. Driscoll kicked to Hess, who returned to the Purple fifteen yard line. Hathaway just missed a pass as he fell over the goal line.

Koehler fumbled the ball and Buschman recovered it on Northwestern's twenty yard line. Hathaway attempted a place kick from the twenty yard line which was blocked by Putnam and an Indiana man fell on the ball. Hathaway on a line plunge put the pigskin on the Purple ten yard line. Indiana lost the ball on downs on the five yard line. The quarter ended with the ball in Indiana's possession in the middle of the field. Score: Northwestern, 7; Indiana, 0.

Fourth Period.

Driscoll punted to W. Hess, who received the ball on the Purple fifteen yard line and returned six yards. A pass, W. Hess to Pope, made forty yards. The Purple line seemed to weaken on the next two plays, when plunges netted six yards. Pope received a pass on the Northwestern five yard line, but fumbled it and Driscoll punted out of danger.

Another pass to Pope netted twenty-five yards. Capt. Driscoll was withdrawn from the lineup and Underhill sent in. Another Indiana pass was intercepted by Ellingwood. Norman punted to W. Hess, who was downed in his tracks on the fifteen yard line. The first attempted pass was again intercepted by Ellingwood. Brightmire went around right end for six yards. Murphy's men lost the ball on downs on Indiana's six yard line.

MAT BOUT ENDS AT STANDSTILL AT CLUB SHOW

Tough and interesting matches featured the opening show of the wrestling season at the Chicago Athletic association last night. The feature between Paul Martinson and John Freburg had to go as an unfinished match in order to let the spectators get home and have a little sleep before their Sunday morning breakfast.

Freburg took the first fall in 36:06 with a body scissors and wristlock, and when the men returned to the mat they proceeded to commit about everything but murder. They roughed each other continually, with the result that both became so tired that a fall seemed impossible. So Referee Ed Smith, after allowing the bout to run nearly forty minutes, declared the match unfinished, and Martinson and Freburg will fight it out at the next Cherry Circle show.

William Demetral failed to show up and his place was taken by Young Beel, who succumbed to Ernest Kartje in straight falls. Waino Ketonen won from Young Santell in straight falls, while Herman Koch won from Vic Soldat. Soldat hurt his knee in the first fall, but remained on the mat for seven minutes, at the end of which time he had to give up. He returned for the second fall, which, owing to his injury, he conceded to Koch in 20:15.

BRENNAN WINS OVER SMITH.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—Bill Brennan of Chicago, billed as the new heavyweight sensation, lived up to all of his reputation when he easily defeated Homer Smith of Paw Paw, Mich., in six fast rounds of the final bout at the National A. C. tonight. It is not the usual thing for a heavyweight to be fast, but the meeting was all of that and more besides. Brennan staggered Smith in the third session and twice in the final round had the Michigan mauler rocky on his pins. In the semi-windup Billy Kramer of Minneapolis beat Walter Laurette of New York.

BILLIARD NOTES.

Welker Cochran defeated Henderson, 300 to 132, in their 18-2 match at Mussey's last night, going out in fourteen innings and getting high run of 194.

Two games were staged in the English billiard tournament at Mussey's, Foard defeating McGrilien [225], 150 to 204 and Filding defeating Pryor [200], 150 to 196.

RECOVERS $5,000 SUM ON OLD CUB CONTRACT.

John H. Lee was given a verdict for $5,000 against the old Chicago National League Baseball club yesterday by a jury in Judge Gibbons' court. He brought suit to recover on a contract he held with Charles W. Murphy, then president of the club, for the installation and renting of special folding bleacher seats at the west side Cub park.

The seats were rented for 10 cents each game, a certain per cent of the proceeds going to Mr. Lee. The seats were used during the seasons of 1906 and 1907 and were then removed when alterations were made in the grand stand.

Mr. Lee alleged that the club management removed the seats and retained them and that he lost his share of their earnings and also certain profits he expected to receive from the sale of advertising space upon them.

Vilas vs. Flournoy A. C.

The Vilas A. A. indoor nine will meet the Flournoy A. C. at Eckhart park this afternoon.

PENN BEATS LAFAYETTE IN FAST CONTEST, 19-0

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Lafayette, 19 to 0. The game was full of brilliant plays by Penn, although the Easton visitors in the first half put up a defense which held the Red and Blue scoreless.

Fake kicks and forward passes in the second half enabled Penn to break through the defense of their opponents and the Quakers made three touchdowns, two of them in the final period. Out of three chances Penn missed two opportunities to kick goal.

John Weldon, Lafayette's star full back, was injured in the first period and had to leave the game, while Diamond broke his collar bone in the third period and probably will be out the remainder of the season.

FINALS FOR "PREP" SOCCERS

At a meeting of the faculty representatives and managers of the teams in the finals of the Chicago High school soccer series, held last night, the schedule for the heavyweight teams was arranged. Play will start at the Bricklayers' field, Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue, at 1:30 p. m. next Saturday, Englewood meeting Hyde Park. At 2:30 Lane will meet Schurz. These teams will play a round robin and the team getting most points will win the title. As the lightweight series is not completed, the schedule for the finals will be arranged after next Saturday's games.

COMMY AND BAN PLAN TRIP.

Presidents Johnson of the American league and Comiskey of the White Sox are planning to leave on Tuesday for a week or ten days' trip to Wyoming, which will combine business with pleasure. They are going partly in search of some of the big game that is supposed to be lurking in the woods of that state and partly to look over a cattle ranch of considerable dimensions, in which they are contemplating taking a "flier."

Mercersburg, 9; Conway Hall, 0.

Mercersburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Mercersburg academy defeated Conway Hall of Carlisle, Pa., 9 to 0, today. Mercersburg scrubs tied Gettysburg scrubs, 0 to 0.

Save Half the Investment in Your Car

WINTER with its sleet and snow is on the way threatening to put the good old car out of commission, but don't exile the companion of your fair weather days.

A Great Loss and a Greater Gain

This business has rounded out twenty-two months of existence by distributing to owners more than one hundred thousand cars.

Price-concessions on this car are rarely asked, and never given with Dodge Brothers consent or to their knowledge.

You can therefore figure accurately the amount invested by the public in Dodge Brothers cars, by multiplying the output by the retail selling price.

One hundred thousand cars at $785 per car means a sales-total in less than two years' time of $78,500,000—or, with freight-cost added, considerably more than $80,000,000.

There have been no bursts of speed in the up-building of this great business.

At no time has there been even an attempt at stimulation of sales or of production.

Never for a single day has production been speeded up for the sake of attaining a total.

On the contrary, it has been held down every day within the limits of close, careful, conscientious manufacturing.

Both production and sales have been stable, steady and spontaneous—scrupulous care in the one, producing huge volume in the other.

At this moment, as at every other period, although producing a large volume every day, Dodge Brothers are "losing business" by their policy of keeping production within the bounds of continuous betterment.

In that sense they have doubtless suffered a great loss in the past and will endure a great loss in the future.

But over against this great loss is an infinitely greater gain.

The people of the United States have implicit faith in the integrity of Dodge Brothers manufacturing methods.

One hundred thousand owners—or rather, one hundred thousand families—are practically of one mind concerning the car and the men who make it.

This business and its product are blessed with a friendship probably without parallel in the history of American manufacturing.

Fresh from the factory, or sold at second-hand, from one end of the nation to the other, the car has special value and a special reputation, because of the name it bears.

Because of the name it bears, you may be sure that the principle behind the car will never be changed a hair's breadth.

Dodge Brothers have only one idea in the upbuilding of their business.

That idea is to build so soundly and so well that the good will which they have won will grow and endure forever.

The gasoline consumption is unusually low.
The tire mileage is unusually high.

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Evanston High school plunged its way through the Oak Park line for a touchdown in the first quarter, and when the ball went over Hellstrom also carried the Suburban league championship with it. Oak Park, rival for the honor, was the victim in a pre-luncheon combat, 6 to 0, at Northwestern field. Had the westerners the necessary punch on any one of three occasions the result might have been different.

Coach Riddel's youngsters made sure of the result in the opening session when Hellstrom smashed his way over the line through center from the ten yard line after he and his teammates had carried the ball down the field thirty yards. Thereafter Evanston didn't threaten Oak Park's goal seriously, although Hellstrom's punting put the oval in the visitors' territory frequently.

Oak Park Near Goal Three Times.

Three times Oak Park worked the ball to the ten yard mark, but found Evanston's line too powerful for the attack of the light backfield. Once Thistlethwaite's team tried a forward pass from the ten yard mark, but the play was incomplete behind the posts. Twice Evanston held for downs, then punted to safety. Lineup:

Proviso, 18; U. High, 7.

University High, last year's Suburban champion, lost its last chance for this year's title by dropping an 18 to 7 game to Proviso at Maywood. Quarterback Graham of the Chicagoans went over for the first score, in the opening period, but in the second half McGinn crossed the line twice, once after Knopf sprinted sixty yards and once after Drake had made twenty-five yards on a forward pass. In the third period Knopf wigwagged thirty yards through the University High center for the final score. Lineup:

ST. VIATORS PREPS ON TOP.

St. Viator's High school of Kankakee kept its season's record unsullied by beating St. Ignatius High boys, 6 to 0, in a hard battle at White Giants' field. The Kankakee lads hit the line for a steady advance in the final period, and in a great climax Full Back Freebury bucked three yards for the touchdown on fourth down, with one minute to play. After the score the crowd surged on the field and game was ended before St. Viators had a chance to try for goal kick. Kelley and Ragan starred for losers. Lineup:

YOST FRESHMEN BEAT EVANSTON BY 27-10 COUNT

BY PREP.

University of Michigan freshmen, using steam roller methods in the opening half, crushed Evanston academy, 27 to 10, at Northwestern field yesterday before a crowd composed largely of Chicago alumni of Coach Yost's school. The game was decidedly an Ann Arbor affair, being an echo of the halcyon days of football when Michigan was a member of the Western conference.

The famous "U. of M." locomotive yell was given with as much strenuosity as in the days of Heston, Weeks, and Redden; the cheering was as vociferous, but naturally with not as much volume as at the memorable 2 to 0 combat in 1905. But the Michiganders showed the same fighting spirit of the old timers, playing the same old line smashing game of the olden, golden days.

Three freshmen touchdowns crossed the goal in the opening quarter, but in the third quarter Evanston showed signs of life, and in the final period Coach Holsinger's boys played championship ball.

Wolverines Get Fast Start.

After receiving the kickoff the Ann Arbor students marched down the field, making their downs without interruption, until Hitchcock went over. Two attempted punts, one in the opening period and another in the second session, were messed up by the visitors, and from these the Wolverines had only a short distance to go to the goal posts. The final score for Yost's yearlings happened in the third quarter, when West made the six points.

The Northwestern preps became active in the final quarter, after Kirkbride had sprinted with an intercepted pass from near his own goal line to the Michigan fifteen yard line. The visitors checked the locals on the one yard line, but the punt was heeled on the twenty-five yard mark, from where Ulrich kicked a goal from placement a moment later.

Gebhart Scores Touchdown.

Gebhart grabbed a forward pass and raced forty yards for the Evanston touchdown just before the final whistle.

Waukegan, 14; Latin, 7.

Waukegan made two touchdowns and Chicago Latin only one in their game at Waukegan yesterday. All goals were kicked, giving Waukegan a 14-7 victory. Capt. Hales played the best game for the visitors.

North Ends in Detroit Today.

North Ends of Evanston made their annual trip to Detroit last night and will arrive this morning to tackle the Heralds of that city. The team came through the last game in fine shape and will present their best eleven of the season.

HARRISON EARNS TIE FOR LEAD BY 27 TO 0 VICTORY

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Harrison now shares first honors with Englewood in the southern division of the Chicago High School Football league as the result of its 27 to 0 victory over Morgan Park High on the latter's field yesterday. Each team has been credited with three victories, while Hyde Park took a drop when Principal Loomis suspended Tackle Wilder during the last week for violation of the age limit rule and forfeited two games. Harrison and Englewood will battle for the championship next week.

Calta picked up a blocked punt in the opening quarter and raced for a touchdown. In the third quarter Vaughan went over after Hejl carried the ball thirty yards to the three yard line after a forward pass. Besta followed with another marker and Vaughan finished the scoring in the last period. Lineup:

Hyde Park, 23; Phillips, 3.

Hyde Park majors found Wendell Phillips stubborn opposition for a time in a morning game at Stagg field, but succeeded in gaining the verdict, 23 to 3. At half time Hyde Park was in front by two touchdowns. In the third quarter Stewart kicked a drop from the twenty yard line and Harper followed by a dandy goal kick near the side line from thirty yards. Later Ludwig went across for the last touchdown. Schurz, 0; Lane, 0.

Schurz and Lane minors battled without a score in their game at Garden City park. Lane lacked the needed punch for a touchdown when it had the ball a few yards from the goal in the first half after working it down the field with forward passes. Rynning featured Schurz's attack with his punting. Lineup:

Senn, 41; Lake View, 0.

Senn lightweights defeated Lake View, 41 to 0, on De Paul field, but the game was tame compared to the fistic battle staged by the rooters between the halves. Thirty students fought for several minutes. Lake View held Senn until the end of the first quarter, but then the "wrist watch boys" piled up the score, making three touchdowns on forward passes. AGE OF PREPS BALKS GAME.

Lewis institute and Lake Forest academy were ready to battle at Lake Forest yesterday when Coach Siler of the home team pointed out that two members of the Chicago eleven were over 21 years old. The men, Shiley, former Oak Park star, and Huber, former Lane player, acknowledged they were old enough to vote, but the Lewis captain insisted on playing them. Lake Forest balked on Shiley, although willing to play against Huber. Failing to reach an agreement the game was called off.

HAYES REPLIES TO CRITICISMS OF HIS REGIME

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, replied last night to charges made against him by J. Frank Meyer and George F. Kelly, club directors leading a fight against the club administration. Mr. Hayes read the story of the attack in an early edition of THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Meyer is said to be the leader of the fight on Mr. Hayes.

"From the time that I became president of the club," said Mr. Hayes, "the minutes show a unanimous vote of the directors on every question except two until the club printing was taken away from Meyer. He refused to bid on the printing of Motor News, our magazine, but he prevailed upon me through the guise of friendship and interest in the club to give him the work. He received from $7,000 to $9,000 a year from the club. I found that he had been overcharging 100 to 150 per cent and told him he could have no more printing unless he secured it through competitive bids, which he refused to do.

"He Didn't Ask."

"Meyer said I refused to let the directors inspect the books. He never asked me to look at them, but once when I was out of town he came into the office and demanded in a rough manner to be shown the books. A clerk refused to turn them over. He told me about it when I returned and I said there would have been no harm in showing Meyer the books so long as he was not permitted to mark them up.

"He said I traded advertising in the Motor News for automobiles. The club voted $2,000 worth of advertising for an automobile for my use. It has been used only in the interests of the club. He charges me with making the quarterly meeting of the club a Democratic love feast. The only speaker invited to the club was Lewis G. Stevenson. He spoke in his capacity of secretary of state and not as a candidate for office. Two Democratic judges, who are members of the club, were called on for informal remarks.

The Insurance Charge.

"I am charged with running the interinsurance scheme for personal gain. That is absolutely untrue. Legally it has to be run independent of the club, but every cent of gain has been turned back to the policy holders except $100, which went today for an adding machine for the interinsurance accounts.

"The directors voted the scheme to prevent loss of members at the close of the year. It has brought many new men into the club, which has grown from 872, with a debt of $2,800, when I became president, to 3,600, with $3,500 in the bank. That is my reply to the statement that it is a one man organization.

"The only reason that nine of the twenty-one articles in the last issue of the magazine are signed by me or with my initials, as Meyer charges, is because he was peddling the tale that everything in the magazine was clipped from other publications. Meyer asserts that he has no axes to grind and is not a candidate for office. He has told some of my personal friends that he intends to run for office, and he has told me that he wants the printing."

SWEET-ANDERSON FOOL 'EM.

Sweet and Anderson, La Grange High school boys, running as hares in the fourth weekly race of Illinois A. C. and La Grange distance men, outdistanced the "hounds" over a four mile trail of woodland near La Grange yesterday. They had seven minutes' start on the hounds and the trail contained many blinds and was hard to follow. A run in to the starting place at the Lyons Township High school covered about three-quarters of a mile, with the men finishing as follows: Cameron, I. A. C., first; Miller, I. A. C., second; Bickler, I. A. C., third; Nott, I. A. C., fourth; Hein, I. A. C., fifth.

In the Wake of the News

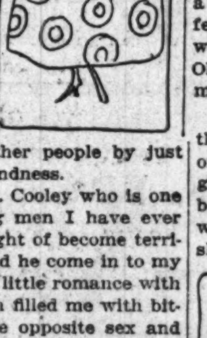
by RING W. LARDNER

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

OCT. 31.

DIARY, I beleive we are going to like our new boarding house very much. Most of my fellow boarders treat me very kind and I beleive they have guessed from my looks that I have had a secret sorrow thought I try to be cheerful and not let it appear in my face.

Besides myself and Mrs. Grant the landlady there are seven other young people in the house. First there is a young married couple named Davis that seems to be very devoted to one another though what he can see in her is a mystery. She is perfectly huge and dresses the funniest I ever saw. A girl can not help from feeling sorry for her and I have caught her several times looking at me like she thought nature had showed too much favoritism. I have been as nice to her as possible and will try and make her get over her uncomfortable feelings in my presence. A girl can do so much for other people by just showing a little kindness.



Then there is Mr. Cooley who is one of the best looking men I have ever seen and who I might of become terribly interested in had he come in to my life before my poor little romance with Dick Sargent which filled me with bitterness towards the opposite sex and drove all thoughts of happiness from my heart forever. I guess there is one person who is glad that I am no longer in the "field" as a possible rival, and that is another of the boarders, a girl named Miss Walters, who is making desperate efforts to get Mr. Cooley interested in her. Poor thing it is really pitiful to see how wild she is about him and how she tries to monopolize him. He acts like she bored him almost to death though he is too polite to treat anybody rudely and is as nice to her a man possibly could be. She is not the kind of a girl that would be liable to attract a man like he, but unfortunately a lot of girls overestimates their charms and can see shortcomings in everybody only themselves.

The other three boarders are two brothers named Arnold that are perfectly dear boys so simple and unaffected. One of them, the youngest, about 19 years of age, seems like he could not keep his eyes off of me at meals and it just worries me to death thinking that maybe he will allow his feelings to get the best of him. I must try and not do anything or say anything that would give him any encouragement.

MISS WALTERS

Then there is a man about thirty that is a widower and hardly ever smiles. I feel terribly sorry for him and wish there was something I could do to make him forget. A person with a wound in their own heart I think feels all the more sympathy for others who have suffered. His name is Mr. Olson and he has dark hair and dark mustache.

Most everybody has been trying their best to keep me from brooding over the sorrow which they must of guessed is in my heart. The Arnold boys have both asked me to go out with them in the evening to picture shows and last night Mr. Cooley started the victrola and asked me would I dance with him. Miss Walters was right in the room at the time and even had I been in the mood to dance I would of refused rather than wound her, poor thing.

"I am afraid I have not the heart to dance, Mr. Cooley," I said, smiling faintly. "Perhaps another time I will feel more like it."

I wished then he would invite Miss Walters, but he did not, though she would of been in the seventh heaven if he had of. I had a notion to suggest it to him, but felt like it might embarrass him and raise false hopes in her.

Mrs. Grant just knocked on my door and asked me would I come down to the living room and play pedro with she and Mr. and Mrs. Davis. I accepted as I did not want to break up their game and all the others have gone out for the evening though it will be difficult for me to keep my mind on the game when there are so many sad thoughts and regrets that I cannot keep out of my head.

YALE X-COUNTRY MEN BEAT TIGERS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—Yale won the annual cross-country run with Princeton today, John Overton, Yale's captain, being the first to finish. His time was 36:26 1-5 for the course of a little over six miles. B. R. Shotwell, the Tiger captain, was second. The team score was: Yale, 20; Princeton, 35. Conditions for the run were good.

Triangular Run to Syracuse.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 4.—Syracuse won the triangular cross-country run today, beating the Dartmouth and Pennsylvania teams. Syracuse totaled 34 points and Dartmouth made it a close race, getting only 36 points. Penn runners were unable to stand the climate and finished a poor third with 54. Watson of Syracuse reached the tape first in 31:46. The course was about five miles.

Cornell Outraces Harvard.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Cornell won the annual cross-country run with Harvard today by a score of 34 to 75.

CADET ALUMNI AT LUNCHEON

The Chicago chapter of the Old Boys' Association of St. John's Military academy, Delafield, Wis., and the Chicago club of Shattuck Military academy, Faribault, Minn. will have a joint luncheon at the Morrison hotel on Thursday. The luncheon is a preliminary to the St. John's-Shattuck football game, to be played at Delafield next Saturday. Chicago alumni of both academies have arranged for special parlor cars to take them to the game.

Institute, 38; La Rabidas, 1.

Chicago Hebrew institute 125 pounders swamped La Rabidas, 38 to 1, at the institute last night. Brenner starred with seven goals.

NAPERVILLE COLLEGIANS BEAT LAKE FOREST, 28-0

Scoring four touchdowns in the opening half, Northwestern college of Naperville defeated Lake Forest college, 28 to 0, at Lake Forest yesterday. In the second half the visitors played defensive football and in the entire game the home team didn't gain first down more than six times. Kluckholm, G. Stenger, and Kienholz featured for Coach Osborne's victors, and Markley and McFerron starred for Lake Forest. Lineup:

Cornell-Hamburgs Play Belgians.

Cornell-Hamburgs will play their sixth football game of the season this afternoon by playing the Belgian A. C. of St. Charles, Ill., at Schorling's ball park. This is the only Belgian athletic club in the United States, and to date has won four of five games. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

FANS WILL SEE REAL ACTION IN ST. PAUL BOUT

Dillon-Gibbons Fray Next Friday to Be Contest of Fistic Stars.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

There's going to be some scrap next Friday night in the ring to be placed in the big auditorium at St. Paul, Minn. When it is called some scrap that is just what is meant, for no one who knows anything at all about glove walloping can see anything else in a match between Jack Dillon of Indianapolis and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul. It is such a match that the bookie who makes prices will find himself up against just about as difficult a task as is possible.

Either Dillon or Gibbons could be made favorite without the odds maker being considered a fit subject for a head examination. The reason for this is plain, for it is to be a battle between a light heavyweight star and a middleweight who is conceded to be head and shoulders above the rest of the talent in his class. In order that the fans may be able to see this bout it is necessary for the St. Paul Phantom to make concessions in the matter of weight, and when he allows the Hoosier battler to weigh in at 163 pounds he certainly is taking big chances of finishing on the losing end.

Gibbons Concedes Weight.

But this man Gibbons believes in himself so strongly that he does not fear the advantage Dillon will have in weight. When Harry Sherman, the St. Paul promoter who is going to stage the mill, first started negotiations Gibbons wanted the weight figure set at 160 pounds. That didn't go even for a minute with Dillon, who declared he wouldn't reduce to that notch for the Phantom. Next Gibbons was willing to make it 161½ pounds, but once more the Indianapolis scrapper balked. This nearly knocked the bout off the boards and the match never would have been closed had not Gibbons allowed Dillon to name the weight.

The lowest figure that Jack would make for the contest was 163 pounds, and he made that so plain to the promoter that it was up to Sherman either to get Gibbons to agree to these terms or call off all negotiations. But instead of finding Mike a balky one, he discovered the Phantom had so much confidence in his ability to beat Jack at this weight that he didn't hesitate about signing the articles.

Thrill in Every Round.

But the weight angle is getting us away from telling why this contest should be a "ding dong" affair. Many a match in the past has looked like a corker in advance of actual hostilities only to turn out mediocre; but unless the dope goes wrong on this contest—and no one expects it will—there should be a thrill for the fans in every round of the ten scheduled, if the bout goes that far.

On one hand we have Dillon, a light heavyweight of the aggressive type who never stops boring in and a fellow who can land a knockout wallop with either hand. And Dillon also is possessed of a fair amount of cleverness and is a ring general just about as good as is turned out. On the other hand we have Gibbons a middleweight, and a light one at that, for Mike doesn't have any great trouble scaling down to 153 [illegible] pounds without weakening. The Phantom is a master hand at cleverness and is one of those rare birds of the ring who combine cleverness and a good wallop. Mike is aggressive, too, for he carries one peach of a left hand which is his great point getter, and naturally to score points Mike is forced to do the leading.

Gibbons Carries Kayo Wallop.

In looking over the ring record of Mike Gibbons there is found a considerable number of knockout victories. He has fought big men before, but not tough birds like Jack Dillon. Nearly three years ago the Phantom allowed Bob McAllister of San Francisco, who at that time was making quite a splurge in the middleweight ranks, to weigh in at 165 pounds for a ten round bout in New York. At that time Mike could have made 150 pounds without the least bit of effort, and it has been said that that night he gave away nearly twenty pounds to the coast boxer.

In advance of the contest there were few who looked for the Phantom to rock McAllister to sleep with a wallop but that was just what he did. Most of his other knockouts were scored against real middleweights, his most recent being the clipping of Young Ahearn on the chin in a few rounds.

But, as has been said before, McAllister never had the class of Jack Dillon and the business of giving away weight will certainly be the one big handicap to Gibbons when he tackles the Hoosier. Dillon is not the kind of a fighter that is easy to put on the haunches. He is always set and coming in, and can take many a punch that would send most scrappers into the land of nod. He has a square jaw of iron, and if Gibbons finds he can't damage Jack with his hardest wallops it will be up to him to resort to his great cleverness to secure a point victory.

Jack Best Bet for Knockout.

If there is any knockout in this contest, the man who looks to have the better chance of landing it is Dillon, for, with his advantage in weight, it is only natural that he should pack the harder punch. And Jack will be persistently after Mike to put it over. But should the contest go the limit of ten rounds, Gibbons' chances of victory look best, for he is a master ring general as well as a clever scrapper.

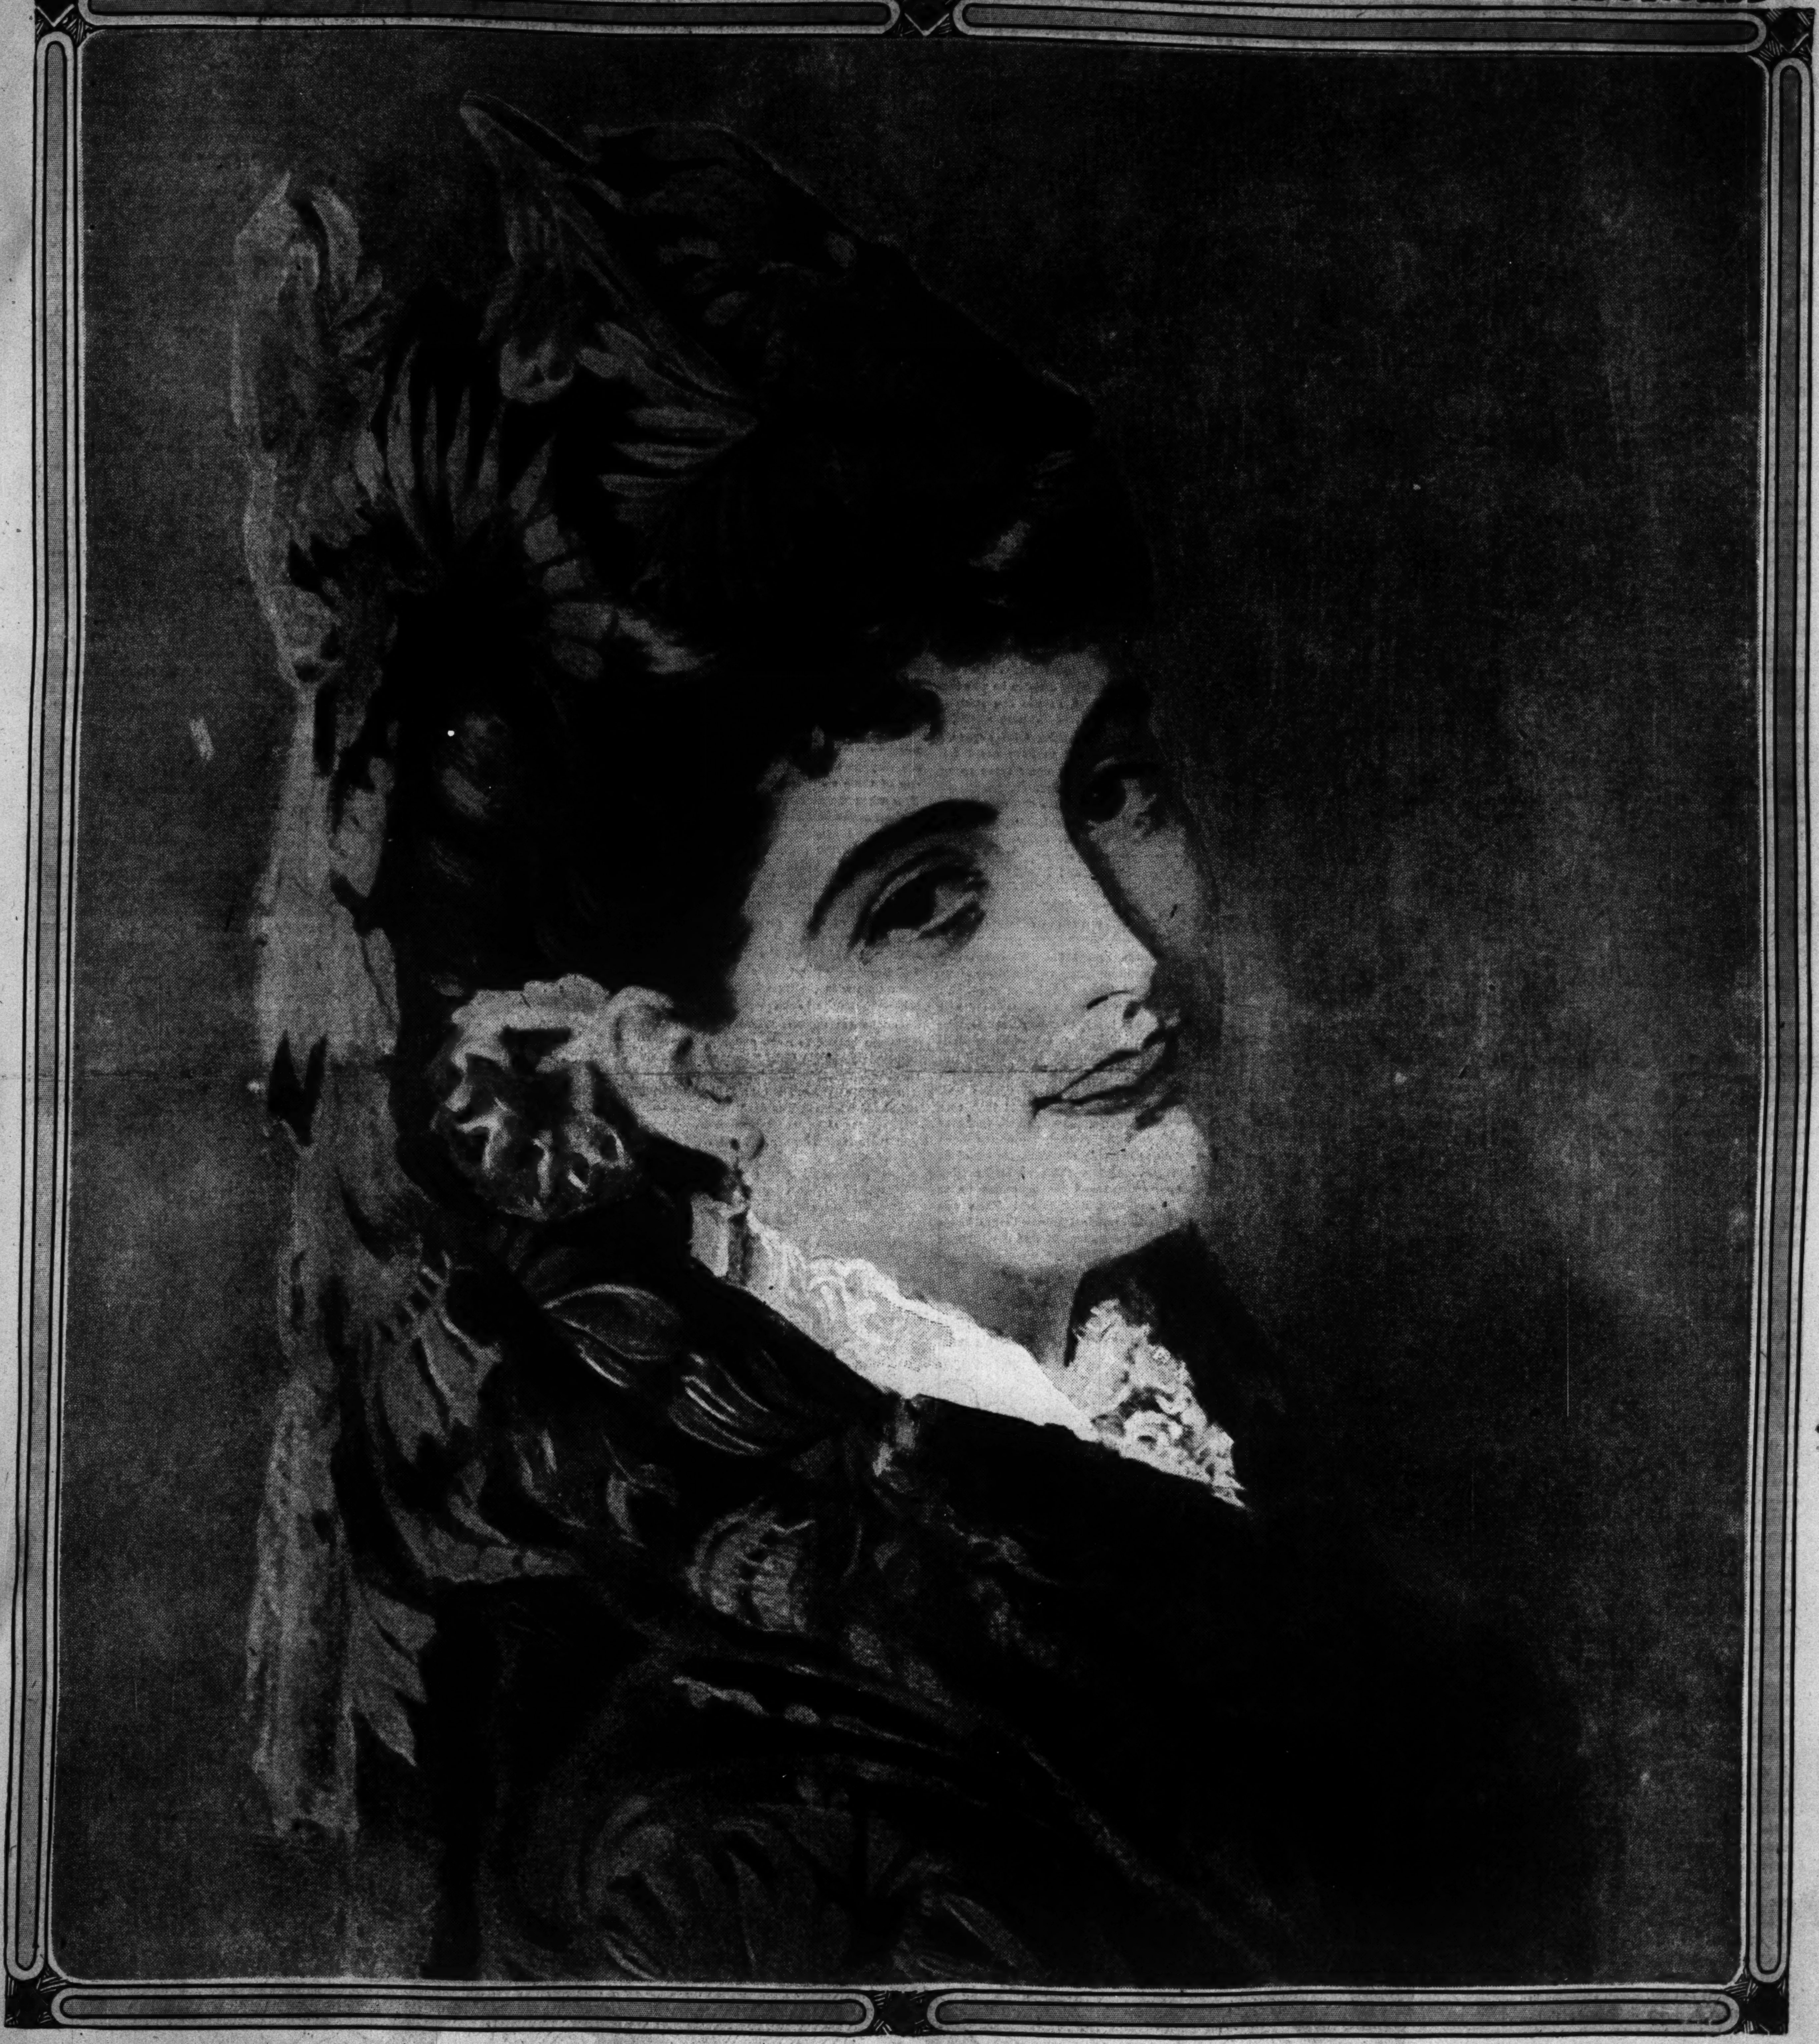
A SPANISH BEAUTY ◆ ◆ REPRODUCTION OF A PAINTING BY J.B.BURGESS ◆



"A Spanish Beauty," by J. B. Burgess, R. A., in the Wednesbury Art gallery. 10x8 inches. Bequeathed to the gallery by Edwin Richards, Esq., together with his entire collection of pictures (1830-1897).

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

THERE is a storied romance about the Spanish mantilla. From its soft, lacy folds there emanates the perfumed breath of coquetry and love. It is the essence of the spirit of charm. Nor do any other women know how to wear it quite se bewitchingly as the women of Spain nor flirt behind its elusive traceries with quite such consummate skill.

But alas for the catastrophical domestic happenings which have resulted from its treacherous wiles! Indeed, at one time so pernicious was its effect considered by the masculine contingent that royal edict forbade women to appear on the street with their mantilla dropped over their face. They might wear it draped back ever so charmingly, but they could not veil their features. In this way every husband, father, or brother could easily recognize the feminine members of his family and no daring philanderer carry on a flirtation behind its mask.

The face in this painting is typically Spanish, as Burgess was Latin in temperament and sympathy. For besides being emotionally akin to the southern land, Burgess spent a considerable part of his life under its warm skies. His paintings are impregnated with the languid vein of their semi-sensuous indolence, although at the same time he is decidedly British in his firmness of treatment and technique. The detail of the scarf is finely worked out and behind the sheer feminine beauty of the face there is strength and character.

Like his Scotch namesake, Burgess preferred the people of Spain to put on his canvases, but, unlike him, he avoided for the most part the bolero dancing, guitar twanging life of Seville and turned his attention to the simpler peasant folk. This aristocratic featured woman whom he calls his Spanish beauty is an exception to the general trend of his picture subjects.

Those people who are believers in heredity will find in Burgess an excellent argument on their side. His immediate ancestors were one and all followers of the brush and palette.

His great-great-grandfather, Thomas Burgess, presided over the school where Gainsborough received his art education. This man's son, William, was a distinguished portrait painter. His son, H. W. Burgess, held the post of landscape painter to William IV. And there were a large number of the other members of different branches of the family who were also artists.

Burgess was born at Chelsea in 1830. He died in 1897 with a record of seventy pictures shown at Burlington House. "In the Convent Garden" and "Stolen by the Gypsies" are two of his well known paintings.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

The Gree Gree Bush

by James B. Connolly

The Pleasant (for the Reader) Ending of Mr. Bowles.

QUEER how a man knocking around the world gets here a hint, there a hint, of a thing that has been puzzling him for years, and at last, all of a sudden usually, finds he has all the missing threads straight and untangled in his palm. I have in mind the case of Bowles. Bowles wasn't his right name at all, but we'll call him that, for it was under that name he enlisted in the navy, where they still speak of him as the "Gree Gree Man." But that enlistment occurred later.

Before he was out of college he had done a dozen things that another boy would havr been put away for. But one day he just had to jump out, and in a hurry; and, cut off from leaving the city by train or steamer, he sailed on a bark that was bound for the west coast of Africa.

Out there Bowles fell in with old Chief Thomson, who used to run things pretty much to suit himself over a country larger than many a European nation controlled.

Old Chief was at the head of half a dozen secret societies—at least half a dozen. Africa is rotted with secret societies, worse than any white country. Among white peoples, of course, those who want political office or a good grocery trade—that kind are the great "joiners"; but down there it was the ceremonies that attracted them as much as anything. One society, however, old Chief Thomson made little secret of—Africa for the Africans was what it meant.

Old Chief Thomson carried his hope of this last society so far that he had had his eldest son educated in England, so that he might be better fitted to carry on the great work for the race.

There was a sort of branch of the society that Old Chief would not talk so freely about; but the scheme, so 'twas said, was to take boys and girls, especially girls, when they were young, and train them, so that by and by they would be able to train the coming race, to lead them to better things. The girls brought up like that used to be hid in the jungle, where if any man was found he was put to death. Of this society, Old Chief was believed to be zoah, which meant grand knight, grand master, exalted ruler, great mogul, whatever anybody wants to call it, and clear on up to the one hundred and thirty-third degree.

Of course, though talky Negroes sometimes gave out hints, all this was mostly guesswork with the whites. There never was one who really knew anything about them. Unless it was this same Bowles. And that was one thing they all had against Bowles—he was making up with the blacks against his own; and later when he got tangled up, and they got after him, in the Berg mystery, it was as much because of his being on the side of the natives as for the belief that he had a hand in Berg's death. This Berg was a steamer captain running up and down the west coast.

This day he went up the river to meet old Chief, taking his daughter with him. Captain Berg intended only to run up to the lagoon and back; but he was a great gambler and he wound up by joining in a little game with Bowles and young Chief Thomson, who was now back from England. The game stretched out, ran into the evening—how late no real matter, though Captain Berg left at 9 o'clock, according to young Chief Thomson and Bowles. Next morning Captain Berg's body was found by his crew, floating in the lagoon. It was known he could not swim, and as Thomson and Bowles said he had been drinking during the game, it was not hard to believe that he had fallen into the lagoon while looking for his landing.

But his daughter? She had gone with her father, Bowles and Young Chief said, and of course she must have drowned with him. Well, they waited for her body to come up. But it didn't come, whereupon people began to talk. They could not reach Young Chief, Old Chief had too much power for that, but Bowles had to get out. Old Chief and Young Chief together could not save him. If he had not gone, some of Capt. Berg's crew—he had two or three desperate ones among them—would surely have killed him. So he hurried away, this time to Manila, where he enlisted in the navy.

And here is what I started to say in the beginning: It is odd how we get onto a man's trail and lose it, then pick it up again, and at last see him run down. Our ship was lying in Rio Janeiro. The bosun was overseeing the unshipping of the ship's wash line. His great friend, Mr. Glavin, and myself were watching him. Quite a man, too, the bosun. Only the day before a big coal passer had suddenly given a wild yell and leaped over the side. The bosun, without yelling, had gone over with him. It was a fine thing, really, but not as the bosun explained it.

"I ain't got the tonnage, though, to be pulling these big cart horses out o' the water regularly. The next one'll be liable to drown if he waits for me. Now if 'twas Glavin"—he pointed a finger to the chief machinist, who was leaning over the rail and gazing abstractedly toward the city, "if it was Glavin now, he'd 've just gone on treadin' water and tossed him onto the armor belt shelf all in one motion"—which was the most exaggerated praise, of course, but going to show that physically, at least, Glavin rated high in that ship.

As I took to sizing up Glavin, a young apprentice lad approached him.

The boy said something in a low tone. Glavin regarded him in mingled grief and surprise. "And only yesterday afternoon the master at arms tells me he saw you shooting craps atop of one of the cold boilers," he said.

"That's wry, sir," said the lad. "They cleaned me out."

"Now, look here," said Glavin, and gave him a fine dressing down, after which he handed a five dollar bill to the boy.

The bosun roared aloud. "Some easy—you! On the level, Glavin, did ever you refuse a man a dollar in your life?"

"Yes, I did—once," answered Glavin. Only that then, but later he told the whole story. And here it is as he told it, the story of the Gree Gree Man:

I was a chief water tender at this time on one of the heavy armored cruisers of the Asiatic squadron, and there was an ordinary seaman who was also a great tailor, and being willing to work early and late, he used to make, O, maybe, $200 a month over and above his pay. And being the best hearted fellow in the world, he generally gave it away again. Didn't matter who it was that asked Tailor Haley for money; he got it, if Haley had it. And, of course, Haley never saved a cent in spite of all he used to make.

Well, we were laying in Nagasaki one day when Haley broke his liberty and came aboard good and drunk. It happened to be right after some American bluejackets had taken charge of a souvenir store where they'd been paying seventeen prices for things and then not getting the real article, though not for anything like that did our fellows begin trouble. It was that some of them'd made the Chinese cruise before and so happened to know the money there, and when this yellow chap tried to short change them it was like sounding general quarters. There must have been, O, a dozen or fifteen shop people went out of commission before our people sounded off that day. Well, our ship's party was known to've been around about there at the time, and the Japanese merchant who'd lost some money and come aboard, he picked out Tailor Haley as the man that started the trouble in his place, and a Japanese policeman backed him up.

How did he know? Why, by Tailor's hatband, he said. He couldn't read a word of our print, mind you, nor could the policeman; but they both could read the name on the hatband. Well, all right.

Now Tailor knew, as we found out later, that it was a chief petty officer who'd come so near to putting this particular merchant out of commission, and Tailor knew, too, that that same chief water tender was drunk when he did it, so drunk that he didn't remember about it when he came to. Somebody had to go to the brig for it, and Tailor, with never a word, went; that is, no word except to say, to whiten a little the black mark against the service, "I was too drunk at the time to know what I was doing." As to the money part, everybody who knew Tailor laughed at that the same as Tailor did. "Lord," says Tailor, "you can put me down for most anything foolish, but when it comes to stealin'!"

Well, Tailor was dishonorably discharged, and there he was broke and blue, and ten thousand miles from home. So I beat the decks with a paper, one mess after the other, and they gave like sailors and bluejackets: chief petty officers five dollars, first class men four dollars, second class three, and so on down to the young apprentice boys, who gave a dollar each; and many would have given more, a month's pay some of them, if they'd been allowed. Everybody gave but one fellow—well, I won't disgrace any branch of the service by saying what division he was in; but this fellow—Bowles, as you can guess—instead of money gives me a lecture. Said Tailor shouldn't get anything from anybody. Deserved no pity—ought to have saved for a rainy day. "The sun don't shine every day," I remember him saying.

"A shipmate of yours as well as everybody else's here, and a good shipmate, and now he's down and out—what d'y'say?" I says, to give him once last chance. But nothing came of my pleading, and I said, "Well, the best thing I'll wish for you is that you'll never have to ask me for a dollar."

Well, after Tailor was put ashore, three or four of us friends of Tailor's, made up our minds that the first chance Bowles would give us we'd throw him. We'd already come to believe that 'twas him looted the Jap's cash box, and not in drink when he did it either. No, he wasn't that kind, nor was he the kind would do things out of sheer devilment because he couldn't hold himself in. So we rigged up a game one day to make the master at arms open up his diddy box and, sure enough, there was more gold than ever he drew from the paymaster. Well, that was no proof, one gold piece being pretty much like another; but only one thing did all of us here believe. And to think of him putting the Jap merchant and the policeman up to saying 'twas Tailor did that job! There was so much feeling against Bowles that all hands took to watching him night and day. Never mind at what. There are some things not pleasant to talk about—and at last he was put on the beach.

We all thought we'd seen the last of him then. But one day on our way home, in Callao a year or so later, we had a big international race—English, French, German, Italian, a dozen crews—I was stroke of our ship's crew. A good hard race, and forty thousand dollars comin' to us when we crossed the line.

After walking up from the jetty, that stone jetty with the big clock on the sort of a lighthouse, who should we meet but Bowles. There was every mark that he had gone to pieces. I saw him, but didn't let on to know him. But he signaled and I stopped.

He eyes me cornerwise. "Mr. Galvin, you haven't the price of a meal, have you?"

"Do you remember, Tailor Haley?" I goes on. He didn't say anything. "Well," I says, "before I give you a nickel you'll starve today, if it lays with me, for what you did to Tailor Haley."

. . . .

Well, I was home from the east on my furlough when I got word from Mr. Wilson saying that he was to be executive on one of the fast scout ships and she was started for the west coast, and would I go with him. A fine officer, Mr. Wilson—one of the best. After a man's been in a big cruiser and a battleship, a scout ship don't look so great, but because of Mr. Wilson I shipped in her. Good officers mean more, after all, than big tonnage.

So we ran over, putting into a little place, I never knew the native name for it, but a little place on a point making out from a black river. And there was a little lighthouse on black and white painted stilts and a lot of black sludge around it. Before we went ashore, Mr. Wilson called me to his room.

"Glavin," he says, "I may need you on this thing we got to look into. There was an American ship captain, Berg, and his daughter. He was drowned—or murdered—here, nearly two years now. The daughter was supposed to be drowned, too, but the relatives have heard rumors and they think she may be alive. They have an idea that one of these secret societies may've got her. Now when we go ashore, you leave me and cruise for yourself till I'm ready to return to the ship. I can get all the official information I want, but the natives'll never talk to an officer, you know. Off by yourself you may be able to learn something."

Mr. Wilson took the steam launch and half a dozen of us of the crew ashore with him. But the man he wanted to find was at a settlement inland—fifteen or twenty miles—so we steamed up this black river, dark even at noon time with the trees hanging away over, and soft, squishy banks.

On the way up, Mr. Wilson spoke of a Mr. Thomson he had to meet, and I was wondering could he be old Chief Thomson, the same, they said, that Bowles'd been mixed up with. I asked Mr. Wilson, but he said it couldn't be, as old Thomson was dead near a year.

From the river we steamed into a lagoon and there Mr. Wilson met his Mr. Thomson, who was as black as one of the black gang's black bags aboard ship, though dressed like a white English swell—a long coat, top hat, and patent leather shoes, and a cane, which he never forgot to swing. A big fellow when you got close to him, and could've been a Congo chief straight out of the jungle by his features, only he talked good English, with a topside accent. Mr. Wilson went off with Thomson to a sort of office building.

I got away from the village, nobody noticing me particularly, or so I thought, till I drifted up a narrow path that soon led into the dark forest. After a time I saw flying from a pole alongside the path a white cloth with a queer black design on it. A circle it was, outside of a man's hand holding what looked like a war club.

I followed the path till I came to a stockade, maybe ten feet high, made of thick trunks of what must've been palm trees. The spaces in between were plastered with mud or clay, and the sides being so smooth I had some trouble in climbing up.

There were three buildings, long and low—bungalows they would call them in the east—and so much better built and so different from any of the other buildings I'd seen since I landed, most others being only one story things of mud and leaves, that I knew right away that they must be for some unusual purpose. And while I was puzzling over just what they might be, I heard women's voices from inside repeating something, like as if it might be a prayer, after some leader. And then came singing, and then like somebody preaching or reciting, and then they all came filing out from the building farthest from where I was.

They wore only long white robes with a red sash around their waists, and they were all barefooted and bare armed and all black or brown—except one, who looked to be a white girl. Her I'd noticed from the first.

She was in the last row as they came up four by four, and I kept my eyes on her. I was hoping she'd look up. And she did. Just before she filed in the door of the building near my end she looked up, and her eyes—they doubled her loveliness. I don't know what made me—I never'd been given to speaking to strange women— "Look for me tonight," I called out, and whistled like a whip-poor-will and slid down from the wall.

"Ah-h—tonight!" said a voice from behind me. I turned. There was a white man with a revolver aimed at me.

"Well, what do you want?" I said. It was almost dusk, mind. He jumped back, with a queer noise in his throat, which made me take a sharper look. "What!" It was—but I could hardly believe it—Bowles!

I stuck the revolver in my jacket pocket, stood him up and said, "Look here—you know how I love you, don't you?"

He didn't say anything to that. "Well, look here," I said again, and gripped him by the throat. "Now tell me what I want to know." I eased up on his throat. "Who are these women—these girls?"

"They're sacred. It's death if you're caught looking in on them—death even to be here. Only the zoah and the council can visit here, and then they must all go together at some appointed time."

"And who's the zoah?"

"Mr. Thomson."

"Mr. Thomson? The big fellow in the swell clothes? And he sent you after me?"

"Yes, when Daiko came back to tell him you were headed up this path."

'And what if I stay around here tonight—somebody'll kill me, huh? And that somebody'll be Mr. Thomson, huh—or somebody he'll appoint?"

He didn't say anything. I couldn't see his face very well—it was dark by then; but I felt I had it right. It was easy enough to imagine him, the kind he was, to settle down among them, with three or four oily, black, fat wives hanging around him. "And look here!" I gave his throat a fresh squeeze, till he must've thought I really intended to choke him to death. "Who's that girl?"

"What girl?"

"You know what girl. Tell me right or"—I think I'd have choked him where he stood if he hadn't answered. At last I got it out of him. She was Captain Berg's daughter. She had been kidnaped.

I was going to let him go when I had an inspiration. "This zoah, this Thomson—he wants to get hold of this girl, don't he?"

He admitted it. It was against all the laws of the Bush society, but Thomson was planning to get her, nevertheless. He was even planning to kidnap her from this place—a sacrilegious thing.

After that I let go his throat. "You go back," I said, "and say nothing of me. If you hint of me I'll kill you before the ship leaves port. He backed away for half a dozen steps, then he hurried off in the darkness.

I climbed up on the stockade and for perhaps an hour I lay there, not moving or speaking. There were lights in the middle bungalow. After a time I whistled softly, three times together, the whippoor-will's call.

I could hardly make her out, even in her white robe, it was so dark. I made ready to drop down to her.

"No, no, no! You must not. They would kill you. But if you can come back—you are sailor and American, yes? My father was sailor and American also." She spoke good English, but slowly, as though out of practice at it. "I have been praying, prayers of my dead mother, for some great, strong, white man to come and take me."

I almost leaped down—I don't know now why I didn't. "I'll get you out of here. I'll come back with a ship's company and we won't rest till——"

"No, no, no! that would not do. You must come only yourself—secretly—at night. I will show you the way."

I got no further. A series of calls rang out from inside. "I must go back. It is for prayers before bed. If I am not there, I shall be missed. But after—I shall come back. Wait for me, but oh, take care!"

And crash! From light to dark was quick as that.

We Should Worry

by Berton Braley

A Romance of the Girl Who Was Tired of the Happy Ending.

LILLIAN threw her magazine aside with a little exclamation of disgust, and as my foot touched the porch step she looked up and said, "Hello, Andrew! Isn't it awful what rot they print in the magazines?"

I shook her lazily outstreched hand and replied, "But perhaps you haven't any idea of the rot they turn down."

"These midsummer fiction numbers," she continued, "make me ill. The editors seem to believe that all people want to read in the summer time is silly love stories."

"Do they?" I asked. I picked up the magazine. "Hmn! Here's an article on preparedness, a preachment on the value of patience, a baseball story without a girl in it—I know because I've read it—an article on Chicago as a summer resort, and one of a series of articles on the diplomacy of the great war. The other two stories are love stories. That doesn't seem an unusually large proportion of fiction about the tender passion. Did you read the other stuff?"

"N—no," admitted Lillian, "I didn't. I always turn first to the——" She stopped.

"To the love stories," I finished for her. "Of course. In the spring, summer, winter, and fall the young woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love—with clothes running it neck and neck. Or, at this beach season, one might say arms, legs, and neck."

"Yes, I read the love stories first," Lillian conceded, "but partially in the hope that some day they'll be different. In midsummer fiction, particularly, they always have happy endings—and I'm tired of happy endings."

"It's all a matter of choice," I said. "I don't much mind what sort of conclusion a story has, so long as it is an artistic ending. To deliberately make the ending happy in the face of common sense and probability is inartistic, and to make it unhappy when reason calls for its being a happy ending is equally inartistic."

"Eliminating the split infinitive," Lillian remarked, "that sounds very reasonable. What of it?"

"I was reading a story this afternoon," I said, "which I think you ought to pass judgment upon. I have my opinion about it, but before I reveal it I want yours."

"Did you bring it over?"

"In my head," I said. "It's getting dusk of this beautiful Sunday afternoon," I went on, "and the light would be bad for my eyes if I read it. So I'll tell it to you, as nearly as I remember it."

"Is it long?" Lillian asked, anxiously. "I don't feel like a long story."

"You don't look like a long story, curled that way in the hammock," I commented. Lillian's idea of comfort is to coil up like an anaconda.

"Can the comedy," suggested she, "and go on with the tale from this point."

"Once upon a time," I began, "in a land across the sea——"

"One of these Ruritania, Anthony Hope, George B. McCutcheon things," Lillian murmured.

I paid no attention to her.

"——there was a very beautiful princess, named Laura. She wasn't a very rich princess, for hers was not a rich country. But she was greatly beloved by the people, both for her beauty and her kind heart. Whenever she went through the streets the women would look out of the windows and cry, 'Bless her fair face and tender heart! What a dear of a princess!' and the men would nudge each other and say, 'Ain't she the class, kid? Some chicken, take it from me!'"

"Do they talk like that in kingdoms across the sea?" Lillian inquired.

"I'm simply putting this in my own words and in modern American," I protested. "Of course the author didn't write it exactly that way, but he gave the impression that the princess was a mighty popular young lady with her subjects."

"I see," said Lillian; "go on."

"Well, the king hadn't any children but Laura, the princess, and by the law of the country succession was in the male line. That meant that the princess had to marry—but she had to marry some one of royal blood. The only person of royal blood in the kingdom besides herself and her father was the Duke of Bornia, whose father had been the king of another small country where the people had overthrown the government and set up a republic thirty years before."

"What country was that?" asked Lillian curiously.

"It is too small to show on the map," I explained with dignity, "but you may take my word for it that it is there.

"The duke is the villain in the play," Lillian suggested.

"By no means," I informed her. "He was a very nice young fellow and popular with the people. He and the princess had been betrothed since childhood. He was very fond of her and she of him in a calm, royal way.

"Some time before the date for the wedding of the princess and the duke there came to the court one day, at the invitation of the king, a young singer and poet who had been creating a furore in the kingdom with his songs, which he composed, wrote, and sang himself."

"Enter the hero," said Lillian.

"And this young man, who was very good to look at, sang his songs—many of which were love songs, of course—to the gathered court, and, by way of delicate compliment, he sang his most beautiful love song of all to the princess.

"Nobody thought of this as being extraordinary, or as having any personal meaning, for the princess was engaged to the duke, who sat beside her and—well, the poet, famous as he was, was of plebeian blood, and the princess, having been brought up as princesses properly should be, couldn't think of him as she might think of somebody in her own class.

"At least, that was the theory on which the king went. It was, in some measure, true, too. Only the princess, when the poet sang to her and gazed into her eyes—at a respectable distance—discovered that her heart began to jump. She didn't understand it. It had never happened to her before. The duke, who had often held her hand and kissed her once or twice, never had had that effect upon her. She didn't think of the poet as a possible suitor; she was merely puzzled by this unaccountable effect of his voice, his songs, and his great, glowing eyes.

"She was one of the most enthusiastic in her applause when he had done. And after he left the court she wondered about him a good deal; but, after all, he was only a plebeian—a play actor, so to speak—and soon she almost forgot him. Almost.

"Until, as she was driving through the streets one afternoon, a cluster of roses was tossed into her car, and when she picked it up there was a note tied to it. It said only, 'I love you,' and it had no name upon it. Yet the princess knew from whom it came, proving thus that her 'almost forgotten' wasn't quite.

"The princess was a direct young lady. When she returned to the palace she told a messenger to go and get the poet and bring him to her. The messenger was one of her devoted servants and needed no warning to tell him that the king needn't know about this.

"When the poet arrived he was brought into the reception room of the princess' suite and the princess thereupon ordered her chaperon to get busy somewhere else in the palace. The chaperon protested, but the princess, who could be a most imperious young person on occasion, stamped her foot, and the chaperon obeyed. And because she loved the princess she, too, didn't bother to tell the king.

"So we have the princess and the poet alone in the reception room together.

"'Did you send me this?' the princess demanded, holding up the roses and the card.

"'Yes,' declared the poet.

"'Why?' asked the princess.

"'Because I love you,' said the young man.

"'But don't you know that one not of royal blood may not love a princess?' she inquired.

"'No,' said the poet. "I know only that he is forbidden to marry her. But love—love is something else again.'"

Lillian sat up angrily.

"Look here, Andrew Hatton," she said, "this is a story of real romance, isn't it?" I nodded. "Then," she declared, "you tell it in the language of romance. You can, I know, and I just hate to have a beautiful scene spoiled by such rough stuff. This isn't a Potash and Perlmutter story."

"All right, dear lady," I said. "I'm sorry for the slip.

"'Love,' the poet went on, 'comes to a man whether he will or no, and when it comes he cannot make it go from him. It is in his heart, in his eyes, in his soul. So, when love for you came to me—as it did that night I sang at court—I put it into songs and I put it into poems, but that was not enough. I had to tell—you. Even though it was useless, even though it was futile, I had to tell you. I did not even know if you would remember me; I scarcely hoped you would know the message came from me, but after I sent it there was a great joy in my heart and I was glad that I had been bold.'

"'You did very wrong,' the princess said.

"The poet hung his head a little. 'But it is very nice that you love me,' she added, and his head came up again. Also, his eyes met hers, and the princess discovered that her heart was jumping and thumping again, even more than when he had sung to her.

"'I love you, princess,' the poet exclaimed. 'I love you so much that I can think of nothing else. I love you so much that you get into every song I sing, into every poem I write. I start to sing of wars or of the sea, or of high adventure in far lands, but each song ends with this refrain: I love you, love you, love you! When I think of you—and I always think of you—my heart beats madly, my temples throb; I burn, I chill, I tremble, I thrill. I cannot sleep for thinking of your beauty and your voice and your magic. I—I love you.'

"The princess rose unsteadily. 'Stop!' she said. 'You must not say such things to me—they are wicked words from one not of high lineage—yet they are very sweet,' she conceded. 'And you must stop because—' she faltered, 'because when you talk so to me my heart beats so hard against my side that I—I am afraid I shall die, and my hands tremble and I—I do not know what is the matter with me. Francis, the duke—I love him—at least I thought I loved him—but he never made me feel this way. So you must stop.'

"But she didn't want him to stop—and he didn't. In fact, he made such progress with his words and his eyes that before long he had her in his arms and his lips were upon hers. And then the princess quite forgot that she was a princess, and was only a woman, with her blood hot and her whole soul on the lips that met his.

"For love has this way of shattering great and solid structures of education and training and custom and law, and building fairy palaces in their stead within an instant.

"Suddenly the poet released the princess and stood before her with bowed head. 'Forgive me,' he said; 'oh, princess, forgive me! I hardly knew what I was doing.'

"'But—but I liked it,' said the princess, in a very human way; 'do it again.'

"Yet as he took a step toward her she suddenly put her hands out to ward him off.

"'No,' she said, 'no. I—I mustn't. It was very sweet and—we have lived, we two, but it must end. I am a princess, you are a plebeian. I must marry one of royal blood. So—it is good-by.'

"Now when the poet stood before the princess with bowed head he had been very sorrowful and sad, and all that, and he thought of how he had had his moment and ought to be glad of that—and he remembered all the stories of renunciation for great causes he had read; in brief, he had been a model for all the heroes of such sad, mournful fiction; but when he heard the princess talking of renunciation, and thought she was about to send him away, after he had won her to his arms in a few minutes—well, when he heard that he grew irritated and he said, 'Good-by? Why?'

"'Because I must do my duty by my family and the kingdom,' said the princess.

"'Will your father lose his kingship if you marry me?' asked the poet.

"'No, I don't think so.'

"'Will the country go to pieces if there is no king to follow him?'

"'N—no,' the princess admitted. 'I—I think the council would choose a king from some other land, or the prime minister would rule.'

"'And the people would go on working and playing and loving and marrying and raising children and dying much as they do now, wouldn't they?'

"'I guess so,' said the princess, in whose mind was slowly growing a light which was not the holy light of renunciation.

"'Well, then,' said the poet, who was a very practical person at heart, 'since I love you and you love n. and for us to marry won't hurt your father except in his vanity, and won't disrupt your country—and since your subjects will go right on living happily whether you marry me or the duke—why, where is the great reason for our renouncing each other?'

"The princess thought a moment, with a puzzled frown on her face.

"Finally, 'There isn't any,' she said.

"'All right,' said the poet; 'my car is at the door. It's only fifty miles to the border, and on the other side is an old priest who is a friend of mine. When he's married us we can drive down into Italy and eventually take a steamer for America. I've made a lot of money singing here—I can make more in America. Come on.'

"'All—all right,' stammered the princess. 'Wait till I get my coat.' Then a thought arrested her. 'But—the duke?' she queried.

"'The duke,' said the poet, 'has long been in love with my cousin. He was renouncing her to marry you because he had ideas of duty, too. Now, after we've eloped they can be happy—so, my love, my princess, my darling, we should worry.'"

"There you go," said Lillian, "spoiling a beautiful romance again with your horrible slang."

"Then you think it is a beautiful romance? But it has a happy ending."

"It's a perfectly logical happy ending," insisted Lillian.

"Well, let's suppose," I said, "that it would have made a difference to those people whether she married the poet or not. Suppose one way it meant misery and unhappiness to her people and the other way it meant prosperity and joy. What should she have done then?"

"Married the duke," Lillian said.

"And there you are," was my observation. "Now, let us take our own case."

"Ours?" asked Lillian.

"Yes, ours. If you marry Clarkson, will it save your family from disaster?"

"But I'm not intending—— Say, what's the idea, anyway, Andrew?"

"Answer my question. If you marry Clarkson, would it save your family from disaster?"

"No. But so far as I know there is no disaster threatening us."

"If you married Clarkson would it prevent the people of this great country from working and playing and loving and dying as they do now?"

"No—but——"

"But me no buts," I said, "just answer my questions. And if you married me, would Clarkson marry Jessie Smith and be happy?"

"I guess so," said Lillian, "but there isn't any sense to this. I don't intend to marry Clarkson, nor he to marry me. And I don't see where that story leads up to us at all. So, what are you driving at?"

Night had fallen and the porch was almost dark. I moved up a little closer to Lillian.

"I'm driving at what the poet was driving at," I said, "when he told the princess he loved her. For I love you, Lillian, my dear, as the poet loved her. I love you so much that when I think of you—and I think of you always—I tremble, I chill, I burn, I thrill. I cannot sleep because of thinking of your beauty, your voice, your—your magic. I love you. Will you marry me—princess?"

"'Princess?' repeated Lillian. "'Princess' you call me, Andrew dear? Maybe you're a poet, after all——"

The rest of her reply was inaudible, but sufficed.

And so there remains this one great similarity between our story and that of the princess and the poet—nobody is miserable over it and we—we are very happy. Therefore, as the poet so adequately remarked, "We should worry."

The Gree Gree Bush

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY

Next thing I remember I was lying in some kind of a low shack with a dim light in one corner and a Negro fanning himself in another, and two Negroes armed, each with a big knobby war club and a heavy revolver—and no old fashioned make, but as modern as any officer's service weapon—a queer combination, I thought, when I did think. I wasn't thinking too much. My head wasn't aching so terribly, though it did ache, but my mind wasn't clear and I was hungry.

A white man came in. It was Bowles, I saw—after a while. Then I closed my eyes again. He bent over me and put his eyes close to mine—I could feel him. He went out then, but soon returned with the nigger Daiko, who fed me a bowl of rice and a cup of some kind of kola nut preparation.

Bowles watched me. "That's right, Daiko," he said, "feed him well. He must be brought to the sacrifice in his full strength. Soon now. Everything, the zoah says, must be over by sunrise."

The tomtoms stopped, and then another nigger came in. They led me then, with torchbearers ahead and behind me, by way of a jungle path, oh, herhaps a quarter mile to a building that was maybe sixty by forty, with an earth floor, high studded enough for two stories, and the whole side wall solid all the way up expect for half a dozen slits under the roof as if for ventilation. I'd been in half darkness so long that the place seemed bright to me, though it couldn't have been too bright, for there were only two lamps in the place, one at each end—big bowled, old fashioned, kerosene bracket lamps, like what they used in stables at home. They had reflectors behind the light and were set, oh, nine or ten feet above the floor.

The place was rigged up like a lodge room of most any secret society in our country except that there was only one platform and pedestal, at the farther end from where they stood me. Thomson stood there. All around, the others stood along the two long sides of the room, close together. I didn't count them, but there must have been seventy or eighty of them. And they were all dressed alike, naked except for a loin cloth and some kind of wild animal's skin half covering them; beautiful lion and leopard skins—some one, some the other. Their bodies mostly were oily in the light. Every one carried a war club, one end resting on the ground, and a big revolver, like the two who'd been guarding back in the shack, and I couldn't help wondering why they carried the clubs when they could get such good, up to date weapons.

Bowles and Daiko had been sent out and now they came back, the door being unbolted for them after a queer knock three times given, and now they led in Captain Berg's daughter. She was dressed in white as when I had seen her, and plainly the dread of something terrible was in her eyes, but no trembling or drawing back. They placed her face to me, and then Bowles and Daiko were told to leave.

When the two were gone, Thomson came down from his platform and placed a long heavy knife in her hand.

For a long time she did not look up at me. When she did it was to say.

"You are to die. If I kill you I save my life. If I don't, then I die and you are put to torture."

"Why not?" I said to her. "I've got to go, anyway, and why not by you, and you save your own life?"

"No, no!" she whispered and shook her head. "Save me from him," her lips said, though no sound from them.

It took me a second or two to get her meaning. We looked at each other. "From him!" she repeated with her lips, turning her eyes without moving her head, and I knew she meant Thomson, who was standing rigid beside the pedestal. On his kinky head fell the light of the big lamp behind him. From behind me the light of the other lamp shone on her.

"You must decide—and quickly," came Thomson's voice suddenly, sharply. I think he meant by speaking in just that instant, in just that tone, to settle what he thought were her doubts.

With one last appeal in her eyes, she raised the knife and bent toward me as if to bury it into my breast. I raised my bound hands high as if to let her strike beneath them to my heart. Even as I did it, I could feel the thrill run around the room and above all the cry of pleasure from Thomson.

"Now, you must," she said, and she had to reach up to make the stroke. One quick stroke and the bonds were cut and my hands free. "And here!" I said, and she slashed my ankle bonds—the whole think in two seconds. With the knife in my hand I looked at Thomson and laughed.

Thomson called out and started forward. As he came, he swung his great war club and hurled it. I dodged, and as it struck the wall just behind me, I saw my chance. I picked it up, leaped into the air, and smashed the lamp above me, then turned toward Thomson. He thought I meant it for him, and dropped on the floor, but it was over his head I threw it—at the other lamp.

And crash! From light to dark was quick as that. I swooped for her in the dark, took her in my left arm. "Now," I said, "here's where we'll have company going!" and leaped for the door. One man I felt in my way, and I drove the knife deep into him somewhere. Another, and him I knifed, too. I felt for the door—unbarred it. All was yelling and calling by now, but I knew it would take them a few seconds to guess what I had in mind. But the door would not open for me—it was barred on the outside, too.

"Stay here!" I whispered to her, and minding the two Negroes just behind that I'd knifed, I reached back and drew them close, felt for their skin coverings, pulled them off, and threw them over her. "Lay there till it's over," I said, and also pulled the two bodies—I made sure they were dead by a few more jabs—and curled them around in front and above her. At the same time I took the revolvers from their belts. They had no extra cartridges in the belts—none of 'em I remembered then had—only what they carried in the revolvers.

They were calling to each other now as if to get together, and somebody said something—Thomson's voice I thought—and I saw a little light, as if somebody had just struck a match. The light flared up. I aimed at the light before it could get blazing. A yell came, and at that I began shooting right and left. There were seventy or eighty of them and only one of me. In no time all hands were shooting, while I lay on the ground next the bodies guarding the girl and let them shoot. Feeling another body fall near me, I reached over, and to make no mistake I drove my big knife into him—and drew him alongside. I reached around till I found the club of the last dead man and waited till the shooting was over, which was soon enough. I piled this new body on top of the other two guarding her.

And I waded in. And that big knife, fifteen inches long, double edged and heavy—without half trying I could have reached the heart of a bullock with it. Every stroke wasn't a sure dead man, but pretty near it. Never a one I struck that didn't go down—if not dead, well on the way to it. And some of them yelled, and before I'd knifed half a dozen fresh ones, they were in a new panic, and I could hear all hands at it again, striking out with their war clubs. Then was my danger—that one of them would accidentally hit me.

So I took to the club business, too, but using two clubs, taking my second from the hands of the last man I'd knifed. With my left-hand club I felt for them, with my right-hand one I cracked their skulls. When I thought there was any danger to either side—I could tell by their terrible breathing—I'd drop low to make sure, and then let them have it. It was like cracking nuts with a hammer—as easy as that when you gauged the distance right. They couldn't tell me from one of themselves. Maybe five or six did feel my shirt instead of the smooth, oily bodies of themselves, but by then it was always too late.

When I felt a man give that most astonished grunt at close quarters, I took no chances, but whipped out my knife and stabbed quick and hard. Three or four times I went down under somebody or other, but always then I reached up and slit a throat or a belly before a yell could come. That knife! A finger's weight on it and it cut through 'em like soft butter.

One time they quit yelling—Thomson's voice, I think, ordering; but I wasn't even sure of that, so crazy was I getting with all voices beginning to sound a good deal alike to me. I was beginning not to care where I fetched up—I only wanted to be swinging at them. But this time I stopped a second to listen. The voice must have been telling them how foolish they were to be killing each other. They stopped and I could hear them crowding together into the middle of the place. I guessed there were half of 'em left yet, and that wouldn't do; so I dove in among 'em and started swinging, and no mortal man, white, or yellow, or black, could have stood there and been hammered and cracked by an invisible hand—like black death itself—in that black place, and not struck back.

That's where I had 'em. And I went among 'em with new speed. Only when I felt the club touch would I stop, and only then for a part of a second to make sure, and then it was lean forward and duck low and let him have it. Not many missed, and when I didn't miss they went down—and mostly for the count.

Of course, I got caught a few times. With bunches of 'em clinched in that dark I couldn't always dodge 'em. But when that happened and I went down under 'em, I used the knife back and up, and heaved 'em off me in a hurry. 'Twas like heaving the line off you in football, and I was a husky lad in those days. Of course I got cut and bruised and what with the bruises and loss of blood I started with, I began to feel weak.

"A little more," I remember I kept saying to myself, "and it ought to be over." They rolled slippery around my feet. I fell half a dozen times quick, there were so many of 'em on the floor, and I was getting unsteady. At the last of it I let myself down on the floor and crawled among 'em. And 'twasn't till I felt there were no more of 'em left in the open that I began to wonder had I missed any in the corners.

My mind wasn't overclear at the beginning of it and surely not too clear toward the end. I think now that I was by this time half crazy. I felt and pounded in the corners, but no live one there. And then I stumbled onto the platform for the first time. There was one there. At first I thought he was dead like the others, but he moved under me. "Ah, but you're a cute one!" I said. I knew him. And what d'y' think I did? Dropped knife and club and went at him.

Half crazy? Sure I was. "I got you, Thomson," I says, and he said something. I don't remember to this day what it was. And do you know how I fixed him? Squeezed his big neck between my fingers. And I never let go till he fell from me, weakening—broke his neck, I guess, but I don't know. And don't care. I brushed him from me tired like, to find myself breathing like a man just come through a quarter mile run. And tired? O, terribly tired! And so I guessed I'd call it off, and went over by the door and reached my hand out for the girl. "Are you there?" I asked.

"O, to think that you're alive!" and she reached out her hand for mine. "Is it all over? And what you must have gone through! O, the blood—you're bleeding—everywhere! O, if the morning were only here so I could be of use to you!"

"It will soon be here," I said, and sure enough, by and by the rays of light came through the slits up near the roof. Then voices outside and a step at the door and the signal knock—three times repeated. I answered by the same knock I had heard them giving earlier in the night.

The bar outside was let down, the door turned, and in they came. It was Bowles and the nigger Daiko. I'd drawn the girl to myself to one side of the door, and when they came in they did not see us. It was so dark inside, too, and sunrise outside.

They blinked their eyes and looked and looked, for maybe half a minute, like people who thought they were dreaming. Daiko even rubbed his eyes as if to wake himself up. Then he turned and saw me, and seeing me he gave a shriek, fell on the floor face down, and lay there. Bowles stood stiff, so stiff that I went up to him and took his loaded revolver from him.

"Come," I said, "show me the way back to the lagoon." I turned to the girl. "Mr. Wilson will be waiting—no fear—with the launch and take us away."

I left Daiko where he was. I had no heart to hurt him. I had killed enough. Bowles walked ahead. I gave the revolver to the girl, while I carried a war club. "If anything happens to me, if anybody jumps out of the bushes on the way," I said, "you will have the revolver to defend yourself."

When we reached the lagoon the ship's launch was still waiting on the opposite bank. One of our fellows was standing by her—on watch, no doubt, for me. "Miss Berg," I said, "all's well at last."

"How are we to get across?" I asked Bowles, and he pointed to a dugout half hidden in the bushes. I made him push it through the dark sludge to the water's edge. "And now if you will get in," I said to her. She reached one hand to me to be helped in. The hand with the revolver was lowered to her side, the side away from me. My mistake—to forget Bowles even for a second.

A cry from her and something like a dog's bark from Bowles, a report, and across the boat she fell. I leaped across her and the boat and whipped the club across his wrist, maybe broke it—I don't know—and as he dropped the revolver into the soft mud I grabbed him and held him there, kicking and struggling while I bent over her.

"Are you hurt, dear?" I asked.

Never an answer, and I called to her again. "Stand up, you!" I said to Bowles, and took him and set him on his feet. And he stood there—as well as he could. And I brought the war club down—as if I was driving a stake. He went a foot deep into the mud.

"And Capt. Berg's daughter?" I asked him after a decent interval.

"Didn't anybody ever tell you? She's my wife."

The TEENIE WEENIES

BUILD A SAW MILL

BY WM. DONAHEY.

THE Teenie Weenies were all mighty glad to get home after their long trip down the creek, and for several days the little people were kept busy getting their snug shoe ready for the long winter.

"It's goin' t' be a long, cold winter," prophesied Grandpa. "Whenever my feet burn and smart in the fall I always know we're goin' t' have a bad winter." And all the little people looked very serious, for the old gentleman almost always foretold the weather with alarming accuracy.

The houseboat had been repaired, put into dry dock, and carefully covered with dry leaves for the winter.

"Cook," said the General, stepping into the tiny kitchen one morning, "the vegetables we covered with earth and straw last winter didn't keep very well, did they?"

"I should say not," answered the Cook. "Why, I only got about two or three wheelbarrow loads of the turnip we buried. It didn't keep worth a cent. What we need is a regular cellar down deep in the ground with a regular door on it."

"Yes, you're right," nodded the General. "I'll talk to the Doctor tonight about a cellar and we'll see what can be done."

The two Teenie Weenies talked over the matter that night and it was decided to build a great cellar into the side of a hill near the shoe house where the little people's supply of winter food could be kept in safety.

"It's going to take a lot of work," said the Doctor. "We'll have to have a lot of heavy timbers to keep the earth from falling in, and I don't see where we'll get the lumber without a sawmill."

"O, dot's easy," cried the Dutchman, who had been listening to the conversation. "Ve could make der sawmill bretty easy yet. Back by der fence over in a yard not so much far avay iss a fine toy engine vat belongs to der boy vat lives dere, un it looks very much as though he had thrown it avay, for it has been lyin' dere for a long time und iss all rusty. I vas lookin' it over once der other day und I dink I could fix it up bretty quick yet. Ve could make a saw und den make der engine run der saw und cut up as much of der lumber vat you vant."

"All right, Dutchy!" cried the General. "We'll borrow this engine for a little while and open up a sawmill."

It took the Dutchman several days to fix up the little engine and several more days were needed to get the heavy machine in place; in fact, it was two full weeks before the mill was in running order, for the engine burned alcohol, and a big bottle of that fuel had to be brought up and placed near by. Day after day the Teenie Weenies labored at the little mill, bringing up the great logs, which were sawed into lumber and placed in even piles near the big fence.

On the other side of the fence lay a walk, and the people who passed along never suspected that a sawmill lay hidden in the grass, and had they heard the busy little saw as it cut clothespins and bucket handles into lumber they no doubt would have thought it the humming of a honey bee. Wild Ankles I Have Seen

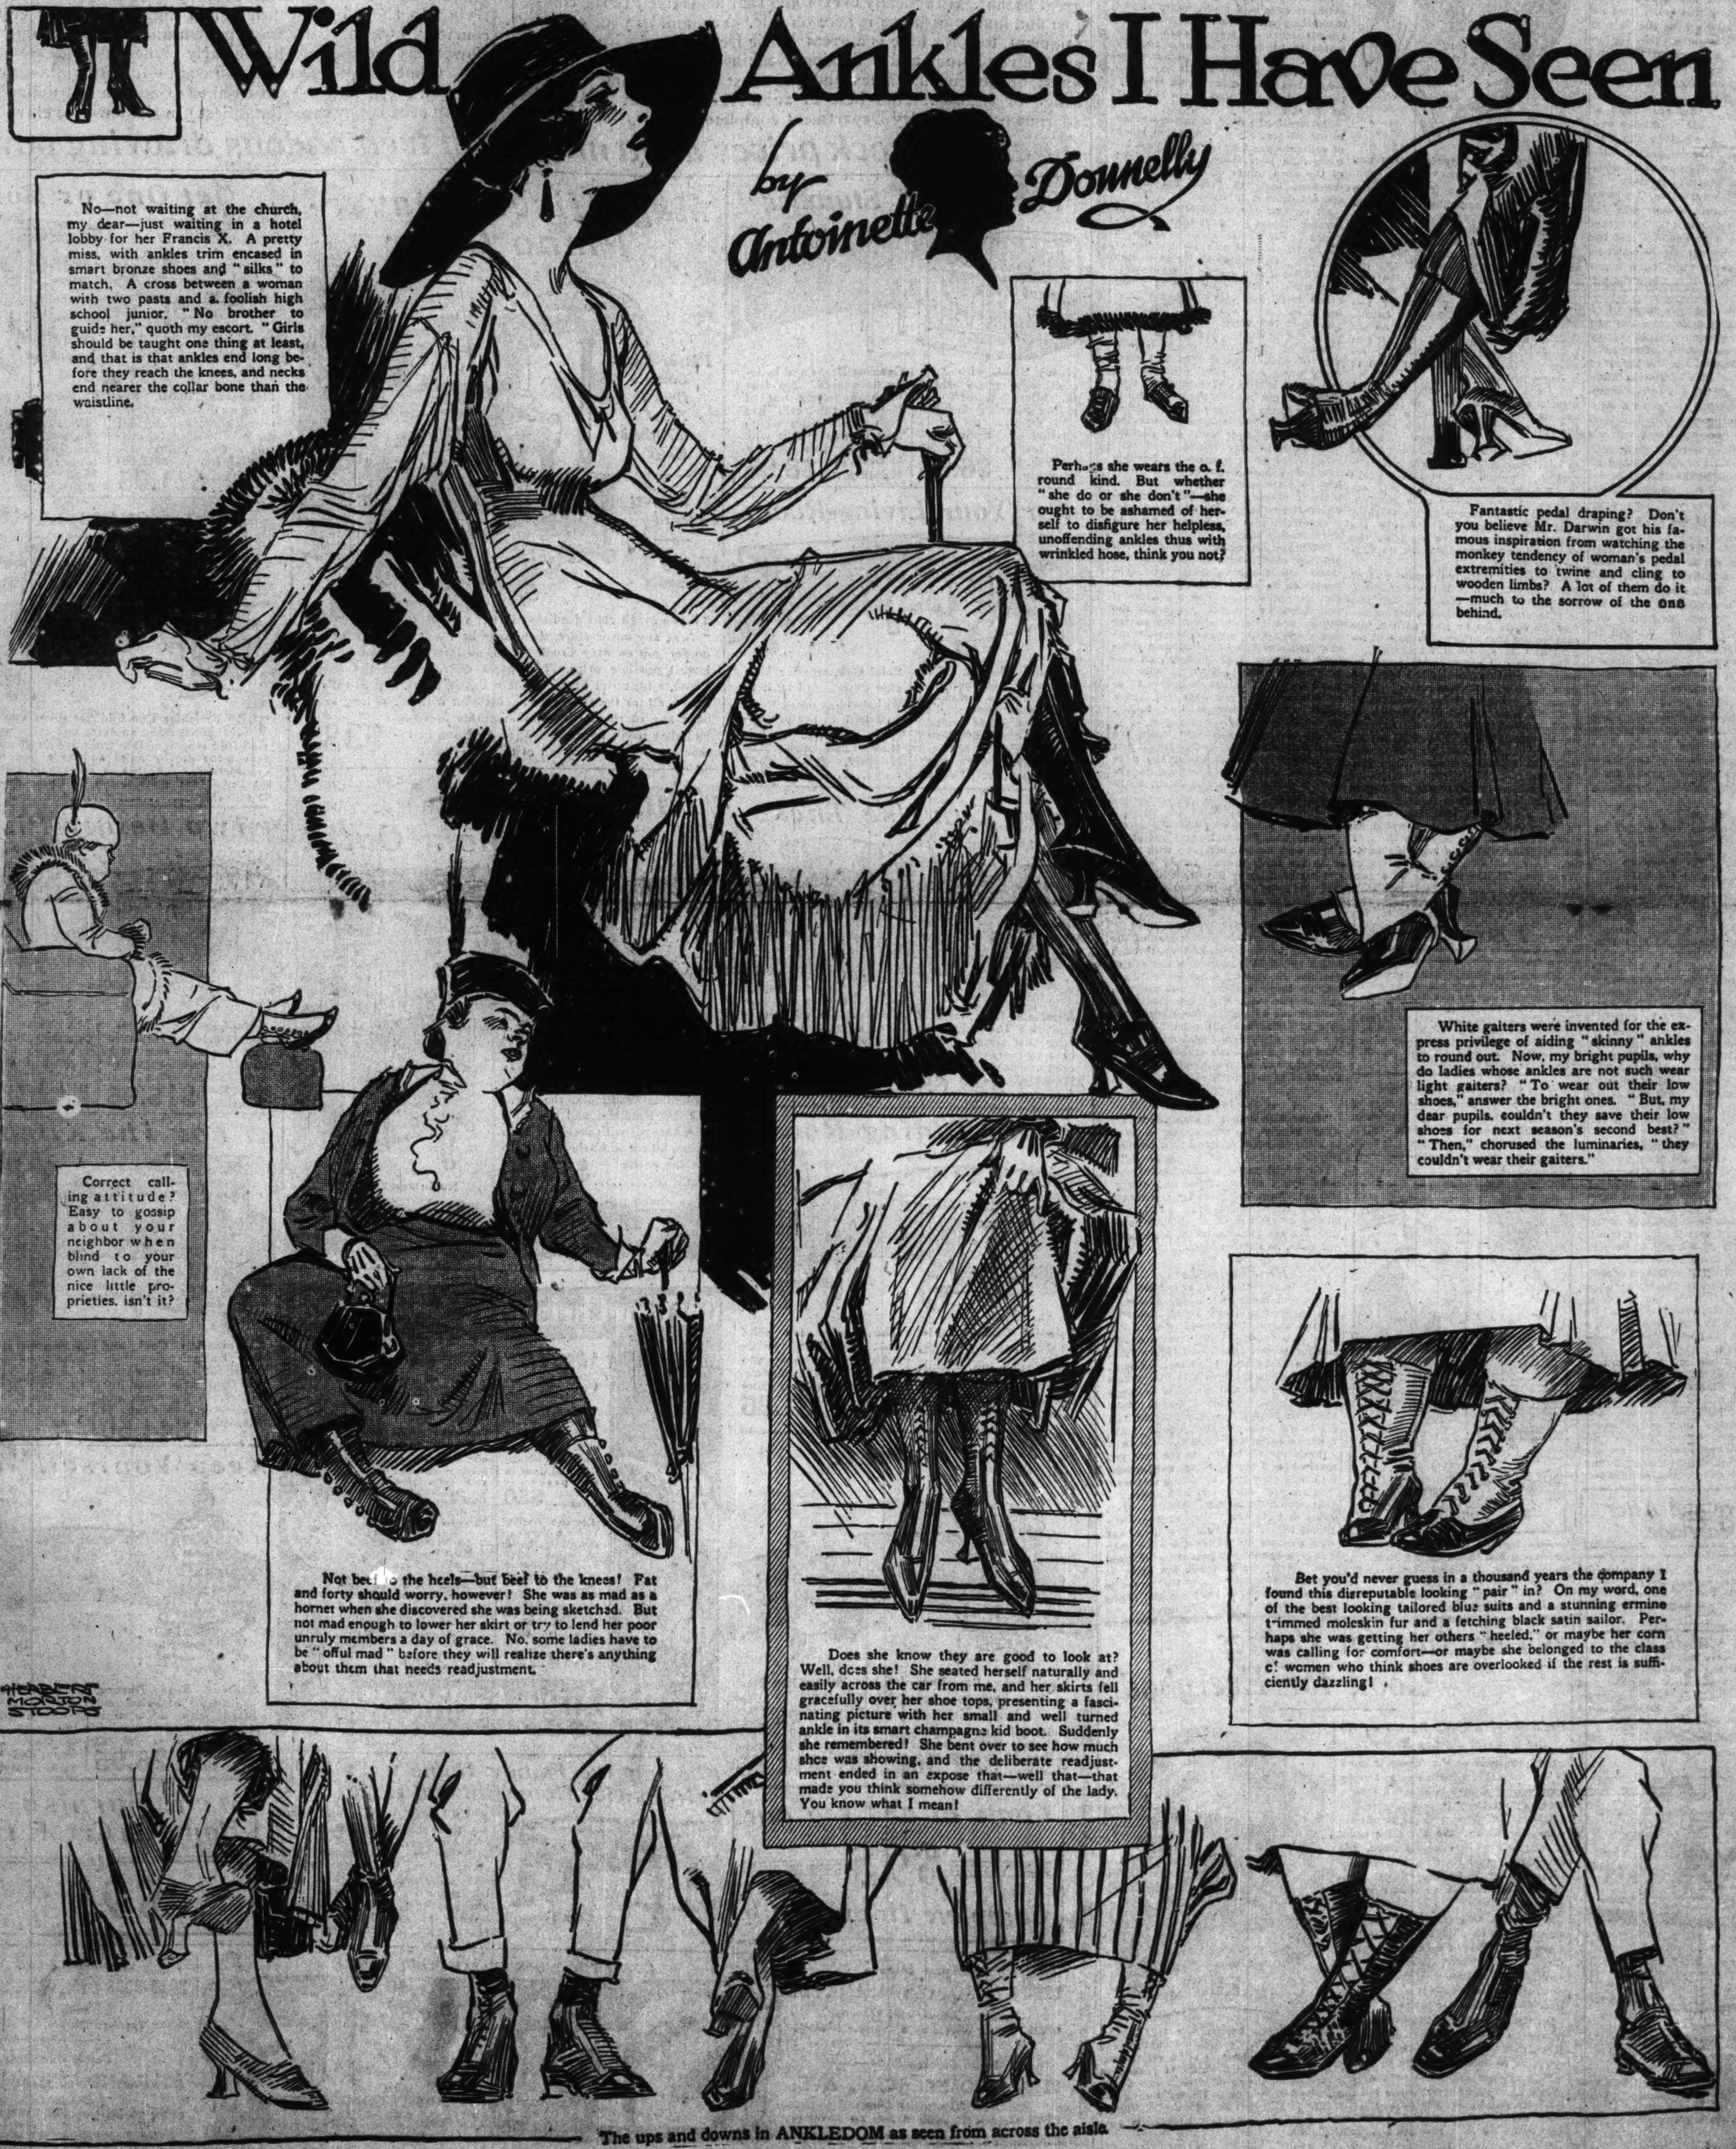
by Antoinette Donnelly



No—not waiting at the church, my dear—just waiting in a hotel lobby for her Francis X. A pretty miss, with ankles trim encased in smart bronze shoes and "silks" to match. A cross between a woman with two pasts and a foolish high school junior. "No brother to guide her," quoth my escort. "Girls should be taught one thing at least, and that is that ankles end long before they reach the knees, and necks end nearer the collar bone than the waistline.

Perhaps she wears the o. f. round kind. But whether "she do or she don't"—she ought to be ashamed of herself to disfigure her helpless, unoffending ankles thus with wrinkled hose, think you not?

Fantastic pedal draping? Don't you believe Mr. Darwin got his famous inspiration from watching the monkey tendency of woman's pedal extremities to twine and cling to wooden limbs? A lot of them do it—much to the sorrow of the one behind.

White gaiters were invented for the express privilege of aiding "skinny" ankles to round out. Now, my bright pupils, why do ladies whose ankles are not such wear light gaiters? "To wear out their low shoes," answer the bright ones. "But, my dear pupils, couldn't they save their low shoes for next season's second best?" "Then," chorused the luminaries, "they couldn't wear their gaiters."

Correct calling attitude? Easy to gossip about your neighbor when blind to your own lack of the nice little proprieties, isn't it?

Not beef to the heels—but beef to the knees! Fat and forty should worry, however! She was as mad as a hornet when she discovered she was being sketched. But not mad enough to lower her skirt or try to lend her poor unruly members a day of grace. No, some ladies have to be "offul mad" before they will realize there's anything about them that needs readjustment.

Does she know they are good to look at? Well, does she! She seated herself naturally and easily across the car from me, and her skirts fell gracefully over her shoe tops, presenting a fascinating picture with her small and well turned ankle in its smart champagne kid boot. Suddenly she remembered! She bent over to see how much shoe was showing, and the deliberate readjustment ended in an expose that—well that—that made you think somehow differently of the lady. You know what I mean!

Bet you'd never guess in a thousand years the company I found this disreputable looking "pair" in? On my word, one of the best looking tailored blue suits and a stunning ermine trimmed moleskin fur and a fetching black satin sailor. Perhaps she was getting her others "heeled," or maybe her corn was calling for comfort—or maybe she belonged to the class of women who think shoes are overlooked if the rest is sufficiently dazzling!

The ups and downs in ANKLEDOM as seen from across the aisle.

MEN AND WOMEN

A YOUNG Chicagoan, George Arndt, serving as a soldier in a Texas regiment, made a confession to his captain that he pushed his fiancée, Miss Frances Bloom, a Chicago girl, into Lake Michigan and watched her drown. Two years ago the boy was exonerated on the charge of killing Miss Bloom, and none was happier over the verdict nor had stronger belief in his innocence than the mother of the girl.

Immediately the boy confessed the crime he was put under military arrest and news of his confession was wired to the Chicago police. He will be brought to Chicago at an early date, where his trial will be held.

When the Innocent Suffer.

On reading the report of the boy's confession my first thought was for his mother, his father, and his brothers and sisters, if he has any, and for the mother of the girl, whose belief in the boy's innocence must have taken much of the sting out of the girl's untimely death.

"What a pity that he made it!" I thought. Nothing to be gained by the confession and a whole train of misery to follow in its wake. The girl's mother has ahead of her the agony of publicity akin to that of Marion Lambert's mother, for the boy in the examination that followed the girl's drowning admitted intimacies with her. And the boy's own flesh and blood will see the name they have probably striven hard to make honorable blazoned in murderer's type and the shadow of the gallows may never be lifted from their domicile and hearts will ache desolately as a result of the boy's confession.

Hamlet said, "Conscience doth make cowards of us all." Did conscience make a coward of this boy? Did it not seem base cowardice just for the relief a confession brings for the boy to throw into his family and the girl's family a bomb that will destroy their happiness for many months and years to come? Between himself and his Maker could he not have worked out his own redemption? If you had been in the place of the officer to whom the confession was made would you not have been tempted to urge the boy to silence so long as no one else was suspected of the crime and nothing but untold anguish for a score of innocent relatives and friends was to ensue?

Keeping Up with Her Mate.

"I made the mistake of lagging behind," sobbed the woman whose failure to keep in the procession with an ambitious husband landed her in the divorce court to fight for her home, her children, and her wifehood. "Prosperity brought with it changes for me," she continued. "Will [her husband] wanted a stylish wife and I wasn't clever enough for him any more. I kept on doing my housework and saved. There I made mistake. I should have given less to the domestic occupations and more to myself."

To an observing public the tragedy of Mrs. Will is nothing new. Thousands of her sisters before her have started out on the same sunlit path with a poor but ambitious mate, filled with that spirit of sacrifice born of a faithful love and happy in the ability to go without for the man's sake and for the sake of their children.

To these women who refused to let the light of a wiser and more worldly judgment penetrate their self-sacrificing souls has come a day of awakening when the bald and ugly truth is borne in upon them that it is not enough to be an efficient housewife to the man who is forging steadily and quickly ahead, nor to be just a good mother to his children.

They learn that the affections of such a man have to be fed not alone through the stomach channels nor parental pride, but as well through that abiding sense of vanity in the ambitious male that demands his possessions be pleasing to the eye.

This ingratitude of man toward her who lives only for him and his children makes of self-sacrifice almost a vice and of woman's extravagance and selfishness a virtue. But there is a happy medium, fortunately. And no one realizes it more fully than the slave-wife-mother as she looks back from the divorce guillotine.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Where Kissing Is Barred.

Before we were married my husband used to be vowed that he could live on love and never tire of kisses. But the first time I called on him at his office after we were married he was at his desk and I went right up and kissed him, and what do you suppose he did? He took my hand off his shoulder and said in the nastiest way: "Louise, don't be a fool; this is an office, not a boudoir." Which taught me that kissing means a great deal to a woman and little to the average man.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Magnetic.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

SCORPIO are you if born during the week beginning today and, like your prototype, the scorpion, you are inclined to grow moody under defeat and get inside of yourself, as it were, under a big stone, and throw out your sting if any one attempts to disturb you. On the contrary, you need the sunlight, not the gloom, when in such moods, for you have enough of gloom in your nature.

If your efforts to help others do not meet with appreciation, don't stop; just pursue your course and wait, for reward will be yours if you but learn to be more patient.

You are of a fiery, persistent, and determined nature, great at planning and scheming, but not always successful. So marked is your magnetic power that your personal presence is sometimes healing in its influence. Added to this, your indomitable will and self-control, combined with remarkable skill in the use of your hands, easily accounts for your success as a surgeon. You will not be moved by the fears of your patients and will preserve the coolness of your native element, the water, under all circumstances, no matter how trying.

Some people therefore accuse you of being unfeeling and not sympathetic, but this is seldom true. Though you may be considered almost a demon before the operation by your patient, the chances are that afterwards he will regard you as an angel on earth.

The genius of eloquence is yours by birth, so as a public speaker you are both popular and convincing. Your choice of language is so correct that you will excel in the construction of short stories, if you do any writing. As to remuneration, you will seldom get your dues if you set the price; better let the other fellow make you an offer.

In your reading you prefer the deeper things of life, the more mysterious the better. Just as in the case of your hiding under the stone, you would be much happier if you mixed a little of the frivolous with this scientific reading.

In a musical line you may be a success, but you lack confidence in your abilities; once in a while, however, you astonish yourself as well as your friends by a successful dash, which seems to be quite a common trait in Scorpio. This is where you again resemble the scorpion, for if you have seen this animal crawl along leisurely you would be surprised to see how fast he can run.

Flattery is the most powerful weapon to use on you, for it strikes that bump of self-esteem, of which you have a bit more than your share. You are fond of the good things of earth and have excellent taste in dress, but withal are not devoted to style.

All outdoor sports interest you, and nothing pleases you more than an ocean voyage. You simply love the ocean in all its moods, and as a result some of you Scorpio people go so far as to ship as sailors; others engage in transportation work. This innate love of travel seems to fill you with a constant longing to wander on and on, but usually, if you have congenial home ties, they prove strong enough to hold you.

Some of you Scorpio people have a way of finding out secrets, and especially those which pertain to business and social affairs. Information thus gained is not always used to the advantage of the "other fellow." Whether the end toward which you are working is commendable or not, you are indefatigable in your efforts.

You have great aptitude in learning new things, but when it comes to learning of your own faults you're "not there"; nothing makes you more indignant than to be told of your faults, a sure sign that you have been hit in a vulnerable place.

When you are unhappily married you are the most wretched people in the world and likely to bring great unhappiness to those near to you. But you cannot bear to live alone, so if your loved one dies or you break the bonds, you are quite sure to marry again. The most congenial companionship will probably be found with those born in Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, and in Scorpio, Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Taurus, April 21-May 21, might also prove to be an excellent companion for you, and a union with Capricornus, Dec. 25-Jan. 20, is likely to be a happy one.

Your two most fortunate weeks are those beginning Feb. 19 and July 8, but you should be careful during the week beginning April 13. Your colors are scarlet, golden brown, and black; birthstone, topaz.

The Pangs of Jealousy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17. I have been keeping company with a boy of 18 for three years. Lately another girl has been trying to attract his attention, and he seems to like her very well, although she is only 15. He has taken her several places. What can I do to regain his affection? B. H."

"Broken hearted," that is part of the education in the school of love, through which we all have to pass at one age or another. Don't let it make you unhappy because there is always at 17 years of age another who can cure the heart damage one has done. Don't try to regain his affections. Just let him have the other girl's company, and you get busy and interest some other man. This move of yours may be the most effective means of winning back number one.

What to Serve.

"Dear Miss Blake: I wish you would please suggest the proper meal to serve to folks 18 years of age at an evening party. S. M. L."

You might serve sandwiches of various kinds, coffee, olives, and celery, and ice cream, and cake for one menu, or you might serve some salad, like lobster or crab meat, or chicken salad with hot tea biscuits, coffee, ice cream, and cake, as another menu.

Her Phantom Love.

"My Dear Friend: I am sad and unhappy and come to you for advice. I was engaged to a nice young man who always was kind and good to me and I loved him dearly. But I went out with another fellow, which made him angry, and we broke up. I am married now, but I find that I love this first fellow dearer than ever and can never be happy without him. How am I ever to forget him? Or shall I leave my husband and try to win back this first fellow? I can never be happy without him. D."

Downhearted, be true to the man you married and don't bring unhappiness into both your lives by acting this way. You are probably in love with a memory that would be a sad realization if it came to pass now. Your attitude continued will simply ruin two lives, and nine chances out of ten the other man has long ago let you pass from his memory. Write me that you are going to brace up and use all your will power to make yourself and your husband happy by forgetting the phantom lover.

The Worst Slam I Ever Got.

Sometime, somewhere, somebody gave you a "slam" that nearly bowled you over. Tell the worst one you ever received. The stories must be original, written on one side of the paper, and confined to 300 words. Address them to Slam Editor, "The Sunday Tribune." For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. No letters can be returned.

This One Bowled Her Over.

I had recently become a resident of a southern town. An old gentleman called and asked the question which inevitably greets newcomers. "Well, madam, how do you like Greenville?" Answering him that I dearly loved it, I said: "Now, I should like to know whether Greenville will like me." He replied: "I think they'll like you. They are not hard to please." L. W. K.

A Laxative for Babies Good for Everybody

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a Safe and Efficient Family Remedy.

Every member of the family is more or less subject to constipation and every home should always be supplied with a dependable remedy to promptly relieve this condition. Whenever the bowels become clogged and the natural process of elimination thereby disturbed, the entire system is affected, and readily subject to attack by disease. Constipation is a condition that should never be neglected.

Mrs. E. R. Gilbert, of Millbro, Va., says that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a splendid laxative for children because they like its pleasant taste, and it acts so easily and naturally, without griping or strain, and she finds it equally effective for the rest of the family.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that contains no opiate or narcotic drug. It is mild and gentle in its action, and does not cause pain or discomfort. Druggists everywhere sell this excellent remedy for fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for whom this advertisement is published.

SHARP upturned brims are featured in many of the newest hats, for fashion has decreed severe lines in the millinery for fall. To the young and beautiful woman this spells but another adventure in the realm of dress, for youth delights in novel effects, especially those that are somewhat daring. But she who has lost the roses of youth and the soft curves of girlhood need not lament this decree of fashion, for if she will but arrange her tresses to soften the rather angular lines of her face, she will find that the jaunty upturned shapes or those with straight brims with which many of the new hats are fashioned are really quite well suited to her more mature face. Then one must not forget that there are innumerable modifications of the Spanish turban, the tricorne, and the tam.

Several extremely attractive chapeaux are illustrated which reveal the influence of San Sebastian, whose famous racetrack proves a mecca for the fashionables of Europe.

In the center of the group a charming set of ermine is depicted. The little cap set well over the forehead is beautifully embroidered with silver and pearls that give a wonderful sheen to this attractive novelty in headgear. A collar cape encircles the neck, and about the lower edge of this stylish protection against winter winds one finds a fringe of pearls that give an unusually decorative finish to this interesting fur piece.

To the left is a pretty white felt whose upstanding brim boasts a facing of orange velvet. The crown is also covered with the orange colored velvet, while at the side a cluster of pompons in various sizes is so arranged that the space between the brim and crown is cleverly bridged. Such a shape is particularly liked by the young college girl who favors the small shapeu hat when she voices her applause at the football match.

For occasions when a more picturesque style may be affected, the hat illustrated just above this creation is admirable. Strongly reminiscent of Spanish influences, this pleasing chapeau is developed in black velvet, its somber tone being accentuated by the edging of gunmetal gros grain ribbon that forms its boundary line. The large black pompon, perched softly on the crown, is of black silk flecked with strands of gunmetal thread. On the brim is placed another pompon, but it occupies a lower position. Its size is also inferior to that which crests the crown.

A lovely creation of blue smoke colored velvet is depicted at the top of the page. The brim of this model, while quite extensive, is endowed with wonderful sweeping lines whose slight curves make this a most wearable hat when tipped at the proper angle. Clustered pompons lend interest to the under brim, while a bunch of these—for they are small, not much bigger than the ruddy cherries that are frequently chosen decorations for the spring hat—also adorns the top of the brim.

Fashioned on somewhat similar lines is the hat to the right of this model, which is also originated in blue smoke velvet. However, its decoration is entirely different, for the crown is enveloped in begonia shaded velvet that is drawn to one side, cleverly slipped beneath the brim, and tied in a soft, loosely knotted bow that rests lightly against the hair.

Admirable for the dull days of winter is the model that completes the group. This is designed with oval crown whose lines are partly concealed by the upturned brim, which slopes downwards at the left so that there is ample space for the galaxy of pompons that breaks the formal line of this simple but effective toreador toque.

An interesting development in the winter millinery reveals the lavish use of chenille trimmings. As many of the hats are inspired not only by the bullfighter's getup, but also the quaint headdress of peasant women, there are innumerable filet trimmings in chenille, and these are frequently finished with tassels of the same soft material.

While black chenille lattice work makes an ornamental finish on backgrounds of brightly colored velvets, multicolored tassels and motifs are greatly liked for the new sport hats, as well as on those of more somber hue for street wear. Chenille, too, if often favored for the novel neckpieces and muffs which match the hats this season. A lovely pelerine of black velvet is designed with alternated stripes of this fabric, edged with narrow bands of mole. Metallic embroidery is also used on many of the newest hats, for since fashion has approved the embroidered frock she now insists that the same type of ornament be found on the hat that completes the toilet.

There is, however, the greatest variety of adornment in the millinery of the season. The smart dinner hat of gold lace is affected by some women, while others favor magnificent ostrich trimmed creations, for the plumage of this bird is again in evidence in many pleasing fantasies.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

COURTESY BEST ASSET.

A PASSWORD to consideration is a courteous manner. Polite attention and a respectful way of answering a man will help a great deal in securing a boy a position in a business office. In fact, some men will not have anything more to do with a boy who answers questions with "no" or "yes," or worse still, "nope" or "yeah."

One of the first things a careful house mistress teaches an untrained maid is to say, "Yes, madam," or "Yes, sir," when given a direction. The habit of responding with an "all right," or, even worse, "a' right," is most objectionable, though, alas, a prevailing custom in this country.

Civility begets civility. There is no truer proverb than "A soft answer turneth away wrath." It also turns indifference, churlishness, preoccupation, antagonism, at least to attention if not to sympathy.

That perfect self-control which unvarying courtesy shows is a rare attribute and its possessor is usually, thus equipped, able to move and command contemporaries if he or she cares to exercise such power. George Washington was noted for his equanimity. Abraham Lincoln was unfailingly kind in manner. Miss Jane Addams could never be anything but gentle in her attitude towards others.

Whether you serve or are served, an air of civility, of consideration, will go far to oil the wheels of human intercourse. In the matter of selling things an attentive manner is a necessity.

GLADYS: A nice way to entertain for a bride to be who does not want any showers given for her is to ask your friends in to play auction or five hundred and to write on the invitation: "To meet Miss Smith." If the weather is cool have a cheerful grate fire burning so that those who do not care to play cards may sit and talk and sew in front of its pleasant blaze. For refreshments you could serve hot chocolate with whipped cream, dainty sandwiches of different kinds, and perhaps a fruit salad. Ice cream and cake might also be served, but they are not really necessary. Simple prizes—one for each table—could be offered.

P. R.: For a boys' athletic club the following names might be chosen: "Boys' Athletic association," "Boys' Sports association," or "Boys' Outdoor club." For a club that is simply meant for pleasure these names might be appropriate: "Good Times club," "Jolly Juniors," or "The Good Fellows." The following could be used for girls' clubs: "Girls' Athletic association," "Girls' Happy Times club,' "The Merrymakers," or "The Pleasure Lovers.'

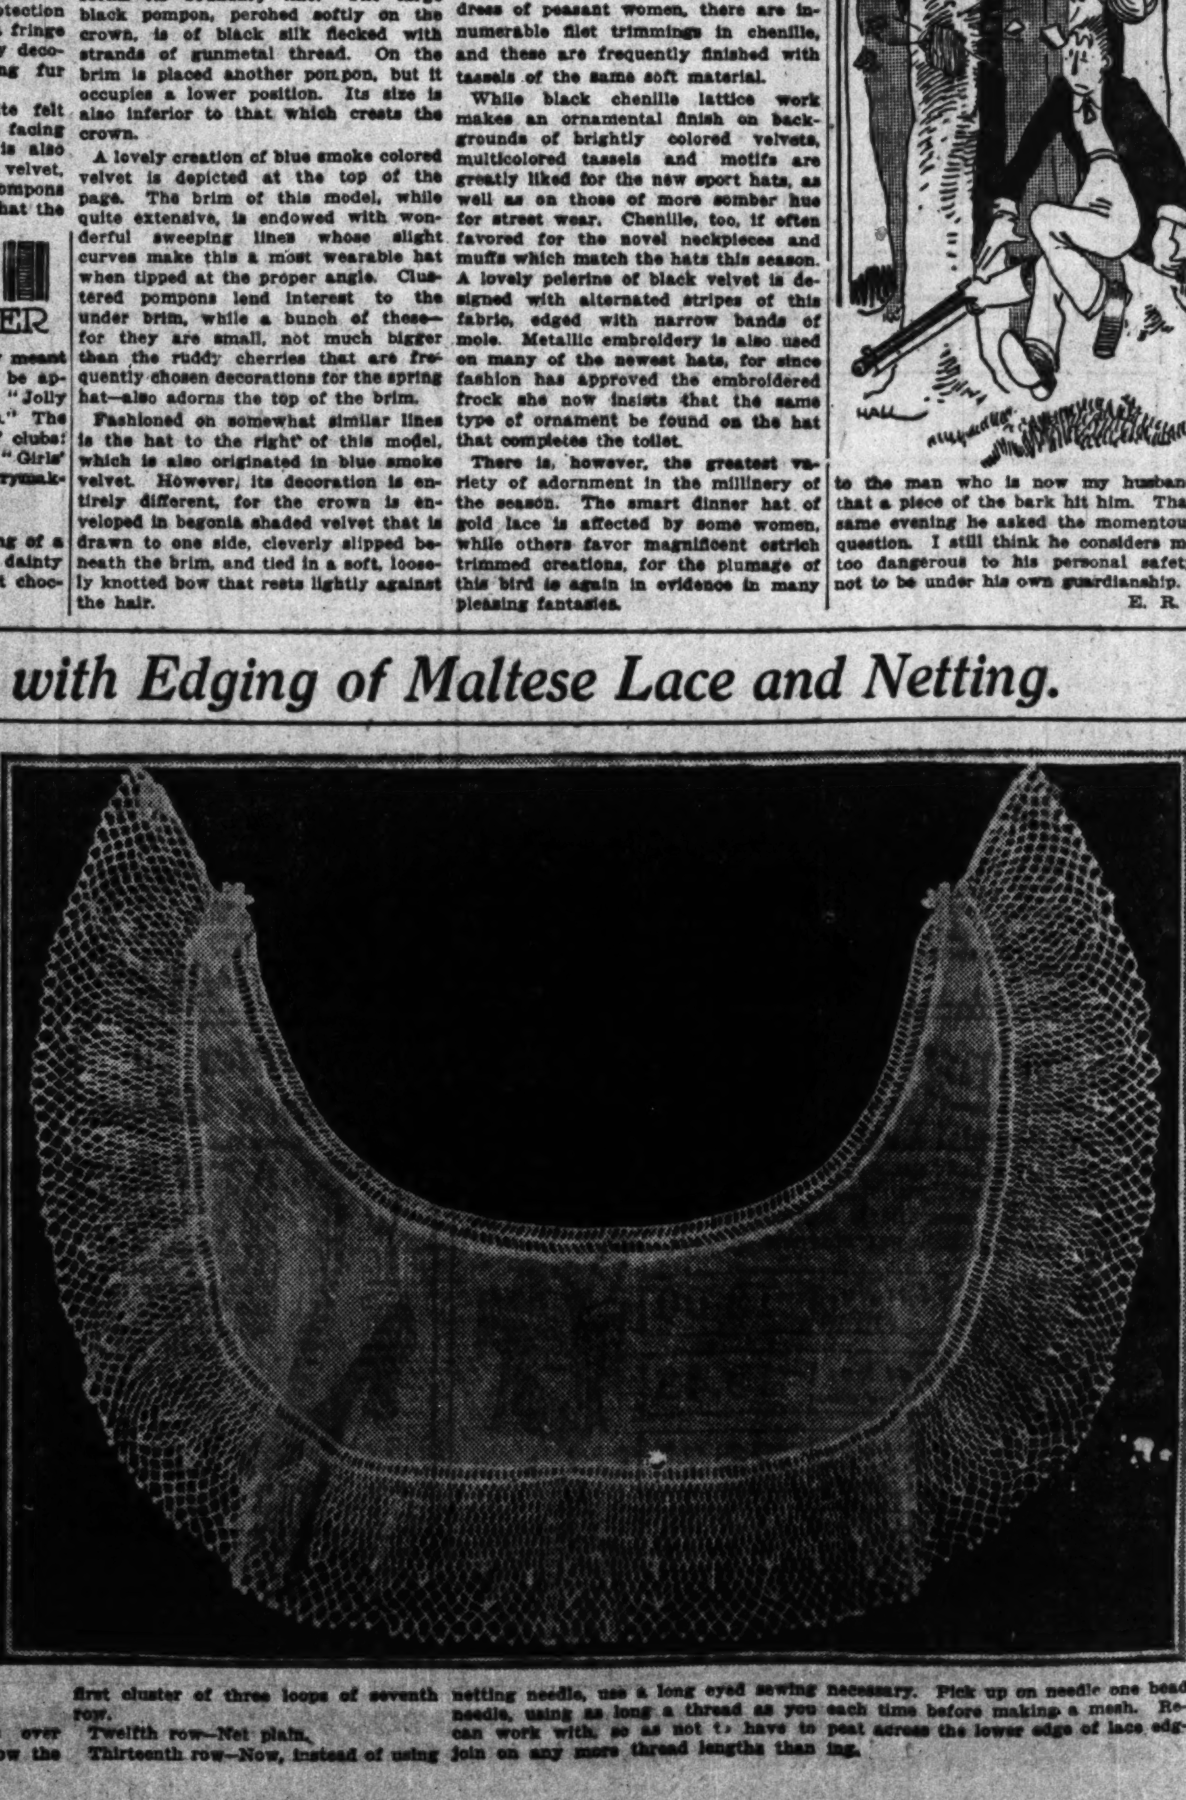
M. A.: At an afternoon meeting of a girls' club you might serve dainty sandwiches, salted nuts, and hot chocolate with marshmallows.

Collar with Edging of Maltese Lace and Netting.



Use Barbour's linen thread No. 100 or Collingbourne's pure silk, Art. 1148; long eyed sewing needle, one-half inch staple, smallest mesh stick, medium needle.

To make plain hairpin or maltese lace, tie thread, making a loop, put loop over right hand prong of staple [leaving loop loose enough to bring the knot into center of hairpin], Holding staple in left hand, place thread over fingers of left hand as in other crocheting, turn staple so as to make a loop around the second prong, which now is at left prong, which now is at the right hand side. Put hook into left hand, loop, draw thread through, making a loop on hook; * turn staple, making a loop on other prong; make a clean stitch by drawing thread thread through loop on hook. Put hook into left hand loop [always picking up the top or front loop, and make a duble crochet. Repeat directions from *.

Make one row plain hairpin lace for around top of collar.

Make lace edging for lower edge of collar as follows:

Make one row plain hairpin lace for the upper edge of lace, into this net six rows plain over smallest mesh stick.

Seventh row—* Net ten loops plain, then net three loops over mesh stick at one time, repeat from * to end of row.

Eighth row—Net plain.

Ninth row—* Net eight loops, then net two loops over mesh stick at one time, repeat from * across.

Tenth row—Net plain.

Eleventh row—Net two loops over mesh stick at one time just below the first cluster of three loops of seventh row.

Twelfth row—Net plain.

Thirteenth row—Now, instead of using netting needle, use a long eyed sewing needle, using as long a thread as you can work with, so as not to have to join on any more thread lengths than necessary. Pick up on needle one bead each time before making a mesh. Repeat across the lower edge of lace edging.

The Plumber's Entrance.

Mine was while doing some repair work in the basement of a church. I had occasion to return to the shop for material and being delayed, I did not return for some time. Imagine my feelings when, with a couple of lengths of pipe over my shoulder and smoking an old corncob, I kicked open the door and found myself in the midst of a prayer meeting.

Woes of a Chorus Girl.

I was on tour with a theatrical company earning a small salary. We had played weeks of small western "one night stand" towns, in which the hotel accommodations were poor. Upon reaching Seattle I decided to "treat myself" to the best hotel and economize on food while there.

I went to a delicatessen shop and purchased some hot spaghetti, which was placed in a paper bucket.

As I entered the hotel lobby I concealed the bucket with a newspaper and walked to the desk for my key, noticing a general smile upon the faces of guests, bell boys, and clerks.

The paper bucket had torn, and I had left a path of spaghetti along the marble lobby.

Too Dangerous at Large.

I think his theory must have been self-preservation. I was deer hunting with a party. I shot at a deer, all right, but my aim must have been poor. The shot struck a tree so close to the man who is now my husband that a piece of the bark hit him. That same evening he asked the momentous question. I still think he considers me too dangerous to his personal safety not to be under his own guardianship.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

THE civilization of this western continent of ours was once based on and largely expressed through a food, the corn. The "kultur" of the people was a corn culture. Religious exercises accompanied or preceded the planting of corn. The main regular industry of the people was the corn planting. A hoard of corn meant comparative security. Corn soups were the accompaniment of festivity or social affairs of all sorts. Corn was almost indispensable to travel. A wonderful lore or a folk literature grew up around it. There is even evidence that people of different sections exchanged recipes for making corn soups. These were made from green corn, and dried corn, and hominy, and popped corn.

And when another civilization set its foot on the edge of the continent, to supplant the old, it had to learn this corn culture in order to survive. The colonists "bought or stole" corn from the Indians and from the Indians learned how to cultivate it. All this we are reminded of as Thanksgiving day approaches. On corn meal mush or hasty pudding were largely reared many of the early statesmen of our country as well as the hoards of common people.

The Yankees invented Indian pudding and crackling bread, the latter corn meal mush with the residue left after the trying out of the lard. In Philadelphia was invented the scrapple. In the south, hoe cake and hominy and pone with bacon represented the great corn service. And to the southwest, where we believe the corn culture originated, they have the tamale and special forms of corn bread.

And even today the civilization of the states of our midwest rests in a larger measure than most people realize on the success of the corn crop. Family necessities and luxuries come thereby. The boy goes to college. The girl studies music. The father buys automobiles and more corn land, all from corn money. And people everywhere who know how to live economically use corn products frequently in their diet.

While other prices are skylarking the corn meal package has not as yet advanced in price, but perhaps one should knock wood in saying so, for tomorrow it may be up. It is probably true now, as it was several years since, that we get more actual food for $1 spent on corn meal than from any other source whatever. Most of the corn meal dishes, moreover, may be made of complete balance by the little additions such as cheese, milk eggs, butter, sauces, etc., added to them. As "rough stuff" corn bread is one of the most wholesome foods we have, and different and better than bran bread for various reasons. For one thing this roughage is entirely digestible.

Every housewife should have farmers' bulletin 565, with its many recipes for corn. Every housewife should know the fuel value of corn, and how useful a food for muscular work, supplying thereby heat to the body as well as energy, the corn is. Sixteen hundred calories is easy to remember, and that is the caloric value of practically all grains, but many forms of corn are higher than that. Popcorn gives 1,836 calories, according to Sherman; parched corn, 1,865 calories. This is because so much of the moisture of the corn is dried out. The caloric value of corn bread is 1,175.

Let us know all the useful things we may about corn meal and then let us know a little of the poetry, religion, economics, and history of this wonderful food. It is our most valuable and least expensive staple.

Burleson Corn Pone.

It is said that the wife of each member of President Wilson's cabinet has a precious corn bread recipe which she cherishes and uses. The postmaster general, Albert Sydney Burleson, "fairly dotes upon corn pone." The former secretary of war loved the delectable dodger which his wife concocted, and one and all, according to a last year's report, believed in practicing the economy of using corn bread, though some of their servants would not eat it and have had to be supplied with white loaves. Here is Mrs. Burleson's recipe for corn pone:

"Scald finely ground corn meal with boiling water enough to wet, but not to mix it. Add a little salt and a teaspoon of cooking oil, (Mrs. Burleson prefers cottonseed oil to lard) and then thin the mass with cold water until it can be molded in the hands. Bake on a greased skillet or pan until of a fine brown color."

Let it be said that it is much harder to make these simple breads so that they will be palatable than to make the more elaborate ones. The fire must be hot and the meal of the best.

Baked Indian Pudding.

A hundred year old recipe for this pudding is like the simplest one of today except that more of ginger and cinnamon was used formerly than we think good or necessary today.

This old recipe reads: "Scald a quart of milk, skimmed milk will do, and stir in seven tablespoons of sifted Indian meal, a teaspoon of salt, a teacup of molasses, and a great spoonful of ginger or sifted cinnamon. Bake three or four hours. A smaller pudding may be made with one pint of milk, four tablespoons of meal, one-fourth cup of molasses, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, and a little ginger or cinnamon. Sweet apples are nice cooked in this pudding."

This is one of the most palatable and inexpensive desserts.

Mush or Hasty Pudding.

Corn meal will swell up to six times its bulk, or eight times if cooked in milk, so that we may start with six times as much water as meal or eight times as much milk. A good deal depends on how it is cooked, however, and also upon the character of the meal as to how dry it is. When it is cooked on top of the stove a good deal of the water evaporates. The proportions given are good when it is cooked in the fireless cooker, and it is most digestible so cooked and for a long time until it jellies and will come out a perfect mold. A little sugar cooked in it makes it more palatable for many people, and others like it best when it is mixed a half with other cereals. Many people would like hot mush better if they knew how to eat it. The milk should be cold and a spoonful of the mush dipped into a bowl of it instead of pouring a little milk over a bowl of mush. The milk and meal or water and meal may be put together cold and constantly stirred until the mixture thickens. The finishing may then be in the fireless cooker or double boiler.

Answers to Inquiries.

CONSTANT READER: You request me to tell you "how to get the nice brown gravy that you get downtown with the oxtail." The best way to make any brown gravy is to boil down to a half, or more, a finely seasoned stock. It grows browner the more you reduce it; that is, cook out the water. A little butter is sometimes added to make it shinier. There are other ways of making brown gravies, but none so good as this. A bit of sugar sometimes helps in the browning, since it caramelizes, but not enough to make the gravy sweet. The more finely seasoned the meat stock is, with many sorts of vegetables and sometimes with ham, the finer the brown gravy will be.

INFORMATION: The honey dew melon made its appearance in our markets last year and was an instant success. It is an excellent thing for dessert, since it is sweet and at the same time so largely water. Fruit at the end of a meal quenches the thirst that most meals arouse. There was an item of a half column length in a recent number of the Country Gentleman. You will not have any trouble telling it from the casaba. It has a smooth surface and the casaba a ridgy one. In the article mentioned it says that this melon is a cross between the Rocky Ford cantaloupe and a South African melon resembling a casaba, but that its size is the only thing about it resembling the casaba. I do not think this is quite true, since a good casaba is almost as sweet.

Day-old eggs
Milk-fed chickens
Country sausage and hams
from your farm to you.

More than a year ago, at Edgar, Ill., I began the business of supplying city folk with clean-fed, clean-kept, clean-killed chickens, direct from the farm to their kitchens, by parcel post.

The chicken that was fattened on the farmer's manure pile and found its way to the city man's table by the huckster-shipper-commission man-dresser-retailer route, could not compare with my chickens.

Neither did the ancient, uncertain storage egg of the open market compare with the DAY-OLD, INFERTILE eggs which I supplied.

My pure pork sausage is made after the recipe of an old Pennsylvania Dutchman who supplies Philadelphia folk with the best sausage in the world.

My business grew—it couldn't help growing. I supplied the best foods possible and I guaranteed satisfaction. My guarantee meant something—if a customer complained he got his money back FIRST and the explanation NEXT.

Today I am offered more business by Chicago hotels than I can take care of.

I am moving from Edgar, Ill. (150 miles away) to near Wheaton, Ill. (25 miles away) where I am establishing "Hickory Hill" farm and the "Hickory Hill Company." The output of the new place will be taken by the hotels, except—that the members of the Hickory Hill Company (there will be only 125 of them, each having one share), will get their day-old eggs, their chickens, sausage and hams direct from "Hickory Hill Farm"—their farm.

They will be charged moderate prices (eggs, 30 cents per dozen) and in addition each will receive about twenty dollars per year as his or her share of the profits from the business done with hotels and restaurants.

A goodly number of these 125 memberships have already been taken by my old customers, WHO KNOW ME AND THE QUALITY OF THE SERVICE I GIVE.

If you, who read this, are tired of storage eggs and manure-fattened chickens; if you are tired of "embalmed" hams and of the "stuff" the butchers call "sausage"; and if you are willing to listen to an explanation of the "Hickory Hill" plan, then send me your name and tell me when and where I can talk to you for a few minutes.

I've got references—lots of them.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

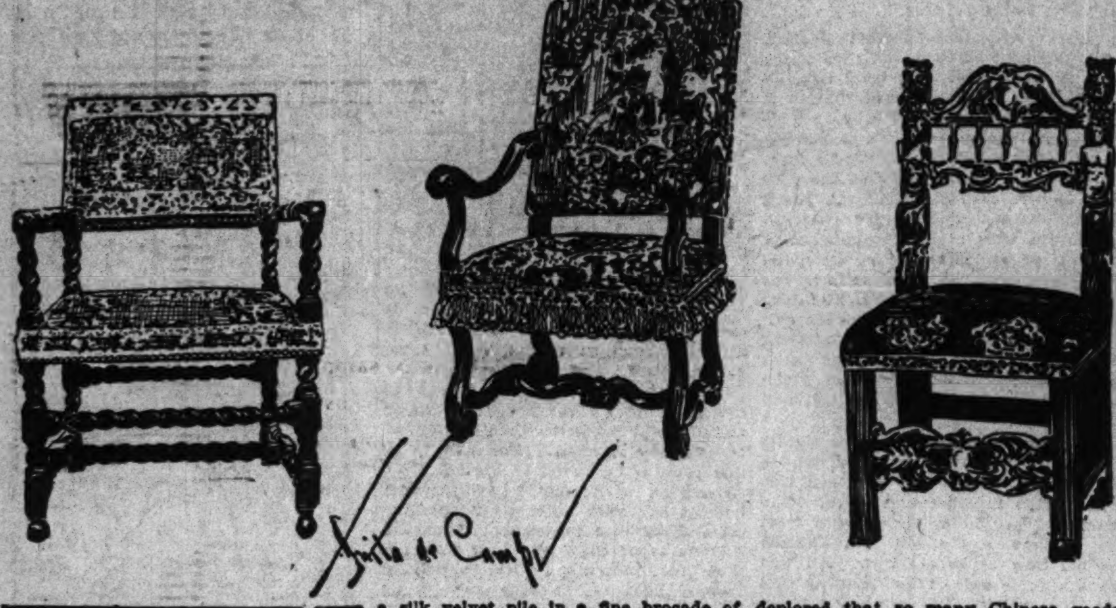
Threadbare Fabrics Go With Antiques

Anita de Campi



Anita de Campi

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

It is interesting to note the radical changes that have taken place in upholstery fabrics during the last season, and to prognosticate future popularity of certain textiles are undoubtedly based upon a bet- are undoubtedly based upon a better and more universal understanding of what constitutes good period furniture, while the change in texture not for the better is due to war time restrictions of dyes and other essential materials.

Imagine your indignation a few years ago if you had been offered at first hand lengths of really shabby upholstery goods. Now you have only to mention that your furniture is of the Flemish type, when the clerk, if he is well informed, will bring forth some newly manufactured material that depends for its charm on the fact that it looks "threadbare." It is the object of manufacturers who cater to the "special order" trade to turn out goods of this description. Indeed, the highest premium is put upon its shabbiness. "Threadbare" has become a catchword among the powers that be in the decorative trade.

One must have a well cultivated taste for the antique to appreciate these new fabrics. They would be spurned by the average buyer. The secret of their success is that they are so thoroughly in keeping with the old furniture that is so much in vogue. Only such buyers who have received a mere preliminary education from studying factory period products would think of such a thing as using bright, new looking covering for even the most far fetched reproductions of antiques. The connoisseur make believer sees to it that the material is as antiquated in type and in finish as the frame which it adorns. That period furniture is becoming a serious and widespread study among intelligent home furnishers is clearly indicated.

Pile fabrics are having a tremendous commercial success. All manner of velvets, cut and uncut, are popular. Those that sell best are the self-colored and solid colored ones. In some of these the pattern is made by having figures, particularly small arabesques, cut in the loop made goods—goods similar somewhat to Brussels carpeting. The uncut, loop woven part forms a background for the cut velvet design. This goods is called Frizette, or frize velour.

Among the highest grades of this variety of stuff is a velvet and a velvet brocade so sparsely woven that the background shows through the surface. Into the foundation gold or silver threads are woven, and the glimmer is fascinating, particularly if seen through a silk velvet pile in a fine brocade of deep vine, blue, or mulberry, on a dull gold ground. This idea is copied from the old Italian velvets, and when applied to proper frames gives an authentic air, as though the pieces were actually valuable museum treasures.

Among decorators, tapestries stand higher than velvets Even imitation tapestry prints done on cotton are in demand. Verdure effects are the best. Colors are low in tone. Bright tints are absent.

Violent fancies for fabrics as well as for other things are most often short lived So it is that the craze for plain black and white effects has passed bird or huge flower done in full brilliant colors. The conventionality of the ground heightens the realism of the colored ornament.

To students of design the word "conventional" has its unique significance, not perhaps generally recognized by the laiety. It means more than anything else "flattened out." Any design that is carried out in solid spots of color without shading, passes as "conventionalized." The absurd point to the uninitiated is that the majority of conventionalized designs has a quality of blatant boldness in coloring and obtrusiveness that is anything but expressive of that conservatism generaly implied by the word "conventionality."

Realism, on the other hand, in the student's vocabulary means "shaded." However utterly unreal the object depicted in the pattern may be, if it is shaded to indicate relief from the ground it is "realistic." These distinctions are marked in domestic fabrics, particularly those that show the modern art influence. The wildest spasm of foreign modern artists was at first accepted with some bewilderment, later with amusement. Now weird combinations and clashing colors are rejected. Domestic fabrics are to follow the lead of the better materials and to be more subdued.

Though mulberry tones retain their favor, they are second to blues, especially dark, dull blues. Bright blues have no place in the new color schemes. Dark reds are being revived, as are shades of old gold and tobacco brown. Green, excepting for the light yellow green, is not popular, unless it is strongly tinged with brown.

It is announced in trade journals that Turkey red is to have a "big run." This may be true. At any rate, the mills are turning out Turkey red fabrics in great quantities in anticipation of its popularity. Imported sunfasts are running low. Domestic sunfasts that are identical in appearance are sold in abundance, but without guarantee of their fadelessness.

Anything Chinese is approved and accepted instantly. Many are the exquisite brocades, embroideries and delicate crêpes that are offered. Mustard yellow and deep blue are the favorite combinations—sometime supplemented with a sort of terra cotta shading up to a rather tender pink. It is to be deplored that so many Chinese goods are perpetrated. That can only spell decadence.

It is rumored that the craze for upholstery fabrics to be utilized for women's clothes—awning striped skirts, chintz garden gowns and cretonne smocks and hats, etc.—has created a shortage of upholstery goods. Let us hope that this may be offset by the prevalence of built in furniture that requires no covering, and that it may not be used as an addition to boost the already far too high "high price of living."

H. M. K.: I am in receipt of your letter and answered it. My correspondence is so big it is not always possible for me to be prompt in replying, and my readers must have patience. I suppose that our letters must have crossed, but in case you have not received my reply to your first letter, send copy of the letter as you suggested, and I will give it my attention.

H. O. C.: Old rose would be too intense with your bright blue. Use a delicate pearl, tan, or taupe in preference.

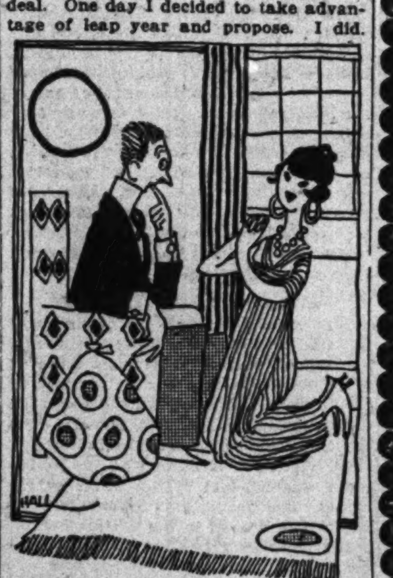
E. H.: I should advise you to advertise your antique hand made china cabinet of mahogany which you wish to sell

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

Too Bold for John.

I had not been going with John long, but had learned to care for him a great deal. One day I decided to take advantage of leap year and propose. I did.



and was promptly refused. John said he was just beginning to have a great liking for me, but that any woman who was bold enough to suggest marriage to a man was not the woman for him. This occurred several months ago. He is going steadily with another girl now, but I still love him and suppose I always shall. M. F.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

THE NECESSITY FOR EXERCISE.

THE need of physical exercise cannot be impressed too strongly upon women, and especially to the woman employed should exercise and the general care of the health be an important factor in her daily life. Outdoor exercise is, of course, more beneficial to her, but unfortunately she is inclined to slight this necessity, either from a lack of time or energy.

To allow herself neither the time nor the energy to look after her physical welfare is one of the gravest mistakes that can be made by the woman who depends for her own and others' livelihood on her success in business. She may have started on her career possessed of a strong and hardy constitution, which has given her a blind faith in her physical fitness and led her into a thoughtless waste of energy.

It is to the woman who spends many hours every day standing behind a counter or sitting at a desk or switchboard to whom I wish especially to appeal in regard to the necessity for exercise. She is the one most in need of this first aid to a strong constitution, and as good health counts for much in her struggle for a profitable position, the care and condition of her health should be her first consideration.

Walking is the simplest, but at the same time the best, form of exercise that can be taken, and a hike of at least two miles should be in the daily schedule of every woman worker.

It seems to be a hard matter, however, to nail herself down to walking purely for the sake of walking, no matter how many good resolutions she may have made about it. She hasn't time in the morning and is too tired at night is her first excuse for not living up to her resolutions. But she can and ought to allow herself time in the morning. Rising a half-hour earlier and spending that half-hour in walking will do wonders toward fitting her for the day's work, and also toward relieving her weariness at the end of the day.

Not enough working women are devoted to athletic sports. If there were more who would give a little time to tennis, rowing, or skating there would be fewer women having to exchange important and well paying jobs for a bed in a sanitarium or hospital for nervous afflictions.

A few of the women I know who really have given some thought to preserving their healthy constitutions, in order to keep themselves as fit as the men they are associated with in business, have taken to playing tennis. They are devoting their Saturday afternoons and Sundays to the sport, and in some instances, where the women have become enthusiastic, the early hours of the morning have been given to the game instead of to sleep.

If she cannot give the time to any of the outdoor sports, or feels the need of more strenuous exercise, one or two hours every week spent in a gymnasium with a good physical director would be of great benefit to the girl who works. Many of the public schools, as well as private institutions, have evening classes, and this form of exercise is within easy reach of every one.

Curls and Waves

Moisten hair with atalpa water if you want curls and waves to last and look natural.

Girls! Try this!! Before curling or waving your hair with pins, papers or a heated iron, just moisten each strand with atalpa water and you will be delighted how natural the curls and waves appear and how long they last in spite of wind, dampness or perspiration. A few ounces of atalpa water will cost very little at any drug store and there is nothing better to help retain the curls and waves or to soften, gloss or fluff the hair and to make it look thick and abundant.—Advertisement.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

One day while entertaining my little neighbor, Billie, I offered him some fudge, at the same time informing him that my husband made the candy. After a moment's silent and critical examination of the candy Billie questioned:

"Did you say your husband made this?"

"Yes. Why?"

"W-well," replied Billie with his face puckered in perplexity, "he isn't the m-mamma, is he?" H. Mc. C.

We were having company for dinner and little Billy had been instructed not to talk at the table. He managed quite well for a time, but at last could stand it no longer and started to talk.

I reprimanded him with, "Little boys should be seen and not heard, Billy."

"I know," he replied, "but, mamma, I feel so unnecessary when I don't talk." H. R. P.

Tommy's mother, who had had an operation for appendicitis, was taking a tonic in the form of capsules. After having been out one afternoon, leaving Tommy at home, she returned in time to take the customary dose. However, after a thorough hunt, the little box of pills was nowhere to be found. Knowing her little boy pretty well, she proceeded to catechise as follows:

"Tommy, did you see mamma's pills today?"

"No, mamma."

"Didn't you see a little round pink box here today?"

"O, yes, mamma, I saw a little round pink box with little bullets in, but Georgie and me shot 'em all up with my popgun." E. H. P.

Around our neighborhood is an irate old gentleman whom all the children take delight in teasing and playing tricks upon. The other day the children took his gate off the hinges, and my little nephew came running in the house excitedly, saying, "Gee, the kids took Mr. J.'s gate off and he's in an awful temprature!" L. S.

One day on coming to the table, Jack's father told him to leave and wash his hands. Jack said: "I did wash them," and when his father looked rather doubtfully at them, added: If you don't believe me you can go look at the towel." J. J. G.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

A MODERN CINDERELLA.

My story is almost too good to be true. Six years ago I was a little orphan girl with nothing to recommend me but a pair of large and pathetic blue eyes, and now—well, I will tell you how it happened.

I was adopted from a Denver orphan asylum by a man who had a stock ranch, twenty miles from a railroad, up Bear creek, in northwestern Colorado. I was supposed to help his wife with the housework. There was one part of it that she hated, and that was dishwashing so she turned that job over to me. At the age of 14 I was washing the dishes for the family and all the help on that big ranch. Day after day there were thirty and forty men fed.

One day an important cattle man came and there was a big dinner. I was only part way through at 10 that night and my back ached. Just at that time everybody was getting ready to go to bed and the guest, Mr. Johnson, came out to the kitchen to get some soap.

"Hello, little one," he said. "Aren't you through yet? I'll help you wash up."

I looked up at him sort of pitifully.

"Shucks, girlie," he said, "don't look discouraged like that. When you have a big sink full of dishes, just pretend they are fishes and you are catching them. When you come to a skillet it's a drowning man that you have to get out quickly. It's fun. I used to do it when I was a kid helping my mother do the dishes. If you look at work kind of cheerfully and playfully it goes quicker and easier and you will have more spare time to get out of doors and take care of yourself."

Would you believe it, my life was changed from that evening. I turned my hated work into sport and I guess after three years I was the champion lightning dishwasher of the west. I managed the work so that I had spare time to ride bronchos. I felt so ashamed of having been caught looking discouraged by that fine, cheerful man that I made myself smile no matter what happened. Besides I never got tired of the fish and drowning man game and I always had fun at it.

When I was 17 Mr. Johnson came up Bear creek again to buy some stock. He heard me singing in the kitchen and strolled in.

"Well, if there isn't little Miss Gloom all cheered up!" he exclaimed. "Have you been at this happy job ever since I last saw you?" I told him I had. "Well," he said, "if you can do that and keep so cheerful, I guess you're the girl for me."

In a few days I had promised to marry him. When we told my foster parents they were as mad as could be. That shows I had been pretty useful to them. They said I wasn't of age and couldn't leave. Mr. Johnson didn't care. He bought an extra horse, and when the family had gone to bed we rode the twenty miles down the valley and were met by the justice of the peace and married.

That was three years ago. I am more in love with my husband than ever and consider him the kindest and handsomest man in the world. We have a ranch that covers miles in southern Wyoming. We spend our winters in California, and now that we have the baby we travel in a stateroom. How is that for a Cinderella? A. H.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING·HAND

By MARION HARLAND

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to "The Tribune."

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Deaf and an Invalid.

"I NOTICE in the Helping Hand a letter from J. S. A. stating that he would aid some deaf person by giving a conversation tube. I know a woman who has often expressed her desire for one of these, but she is not able to buy one. If you will send the tube to me I shall deliver it to the one who needs it, and if it is not satisfactory I shall return it. In another letter in the same issue some one offers to give silk pieces for fancy work. They would be much appreciated by the same person, who is deaf and an invalid. Her signature is M. E. C."

I am sorry to say that the conversation tube offered had been given away before this letter—which failed to inclose a stamp for reply, by the way—was received. I print the request in the hope it may receive response from some one who can grant the deaf one's desire. The silk pieces will also be offered, I trust. In any case, I wish I could impress it upon the Cornerites that when writing and asking for an address they should inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Family Wants Reading Matter.

"I would appreciate it much if some kind Cornerite would send me some magazines, as we have a large family and are not able to buy reading matter. I shall be glad to pay the postage on them. I have a number of small sisters who would be glad to receive anything in the line of silk scraps or small pieces of lace to make into tidies. Is there anything I could give or do in exchange or return for such kindness? O. M."

I am sure there must be some one who has magazines and pieces to bestow.

Formula to Banish Bedbugs.

"I see in the Corner where some of the readers are exchanging ideas and work. I haven't any good ideas, but I want to say to those who are bothered with bedbugs that the best plan I know is to take a quart of turpentine and 15 cents' worth of corrosive sublimate, mix well, and apply two or three times a week, if the bugs are bad, or, if not, once a week. In two or three applications you are free from them. I will do tatting for any one sending patterns they desire made in exchange for goods suitable for small boys' clothes.

"L. H."

Thanks for the remedy. I am sorry I cannot print the request you make for exchange, but so many complications have arisen in connection with the exchange of such articles as you offer and ask that we have had to call a halt in the undertaking. I regret this much.

Once Popular Song.

"I should like to have the words of the song 'The Dying Nun.' It was a popular song when my mother was a girl, and I remember a few lines and part of the air. C. R. F."

Can some of our Cornerites comply with this request? No doubt the song is known to some of them.

Old Books and Magazines.

"Can some one send me old books and magazines which have been read and are of no further use to the owners? I would appreciate them much. I should also like to exchange crochet patterns.

"A. D."

Is there some correspondent who would like to send magazines or other literature to this Cornerite, or who would care to exchange crochet patterns?

Asks Clothes for Baby.

"Has any one in the Corner a few infants' clothes to give away? I expect to become a mother in the near future and am not financially able to prepare for the coming of the little one. If any one has such articles to give me they will certainly be appreciated, for my health is bad and I am unable to do sewing to amount to anything.

"MRS. E. B."

This is the kind of an appeal which seldom fails to meet with a ready and generous response. It is easy to perceive from her words how gratefully she will receive any contributions which may be made toward the wardrobe of her "little expected." Nearly every mother of young children has a few small articles she could spare, and I shall look for applications for this address.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair, soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff, is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and luster, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp. Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.—Advertisement.

Week End Chatter About the Play Folk.

By Percy Hammond.

"RIO GRANDE" has gone the dolorous way of most "Chicago successes" and now sleeps beneath such asphodels as blossom in Cain's storehouse, New York. Miss Lola Fisher and Richard Bennett were not present at the passing in Philadelphia—Mr. Bennett is a-starring in "Zack" and Miss Fisher enjoys the plaudits of the New York critics, who say she is great in "Good Gracious Annabelle," a farce by Claire Kummer, the bright lady who wrote "Dearie," once a national anthem.

The inhabitants of the theatrical capital are said also to be indifferent to the anabasis thither of "Bunker Bean," which won the naive approbation of this outpost some months ago. And "So Long, Letty!" that pet, though blowsy, idyll of the middle west, evokes from the shocked scribes of New York such epithets as "cheap," "coarse," "vulgar," "indelicate," "profane," and "degenerate." The prim youth who speaks for the New York World pronounces the success in Chicago of "So Long, Letty!" "a severe indictment" of our theater goers, because, he says, among the play's characters "there are no gentlefolk."

The new Winter Garden exhibition, "The Show of Wonders," is ratified by the experts of its home town, who are pleased with its refinement, modesty, and decorum. There are only three pairs of ladies' naked shanks in it. One of the songs is called "The Girl You Hit Is the Girl You Get," and the gentlefolk of the audience are provided with rubber balls with which to "bean" the vestals they desire. Another is named "Naughty, Naughty, Naughty," and on the first night it was sung familiarly from the runway to "Diamond Jim" Brady, who was among the gentlefolk present.

Mr. "Jack" Hazzard, known here from his comic monologues in vaudeville, is the librettist of "Go to It," a musical comedy based on Hoyt's "A Milk White Flag." The line which, on its premiere in New York, inspired the most laughter was spoken by the widow in the piece over her husband's coffin. "Why shouldn't I be happy?" said she. "This is the first night he's been home in three years."

Mr. Arch Selwyn of Selwyn & Co., producers, complains that New York City is so amusement-mad that all the failures there are successes. Many worthy plays, therefore, he says, hover disconsolate on the outskirts, yearning for an inlet to the happy haven. Among these are Avery Hopwood's new farce, with Miss Margaret Illington; "The Harp of Life," with Miss Laurette Taylor; and "Shirley Kaye," with Miss Elsie Ferguson. Miss Taylor's grievous load is borne with the patience and fortitude said to be characteristic of genius, and she writes blithely from Detroit:

"'The Harp of Life' played in Washington to very disappointing business, but Detroit has restored my conceit by turning out—I think we say 'en masse,' don't we? And in Detroit 'en masse' means Ford cars several blocks down the front of the theater. One critic said I was too young to play the mother of a son of 19, and that I looked like my boy's twin sister. Mr. Tyler cruelly suggested that I put more lines in my face, but I got over that difficulty by putting more lines in the play. 'How young she looks,' 'How childlike for 30,' 'How does she do it?' etc. I went to a dance at Mary Mannering's house and all the old men called me 'mother.' If any one else expresses doubt as to my ability to look 36 I shall borrow Joe Weber's stomach pad."

The Messrs. Shubert purpose to present Sam Sothern in a comedy by Harold Owen called "Such Is Life." Ferdinand Gottschalk and Miss Ann Cleaver, an English actress, will play in it.

Mr. Arthur Lewis, who acts the eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist in "The Great Lover," made his first Chicago appearance in 1886 with Mary Anderson at the Columbia theater. His most pronounced success here was as the bishop in "The Servant in the House."

In case any one believes that Leo Ditrichstein is a German, an Austrian, or a Dane, as has been alleged, the management requests that he no longer do so. Mr. Ditrichstein is a Hungarian by birth and an American by naturalization. His first appearance here was in 1892 in "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows."

Concerning the two singing ladies pictured hereon, it may be said that one is a celebrity, the other is clever, and both will again be members of the company, which, starting on the 6th inst., will give opera for ten weeks in the Auditorium.

Miss Sharlow won attention last season for good performances as the soubrette in "Werther" and "Don Giovanni"; also, for a perverse belief that to be Mimi of a Saturday night were better than to be Musetta of a subscription-night. Miss Sharlow is, as yet, young, it may be divined.

Mme. Kousnezoff, coming late last season, contributed a Juliet, a Marguerita, a Thais, a Cleopatra, some dancing in—or, perhaps, after—the Spanish manner, and one of the most pictorial of the foyer-husbands.

It is not necessary to add that both ladies are eager and ready, at a moment's notice, to show Miss Farrar how to do Carmen.

Louis Harrison has been added to the notable gathering of performers in the Dillingham-Ziegfeld show, "The Century Girl," to be staged tomorrow night in New York. He has, in the minds of many theatergoers, been confused with Lee Harrison, who died last week. Louis Harrison was a comic star of consequence more than thirty years ago, and with John Gourley toured in a musical farce called "Skipped by the Light of the Moon." Harrison wrote "The Isle of Champagne," in which Thomas Q. Seabrooke became a celebrity. His sister, the late Alice Harrison, was for many years a soubrette of great popularity.

It appears that as a film actor Sir Herbert was not in even tentative consonance with his wage and that the thoroughbreds who contracted to pay proceeded to think up a plan to absolve themselves of the obligation. They decided to follow the lovely traditions of the regular theater in such matters and annoy Tree into seeking release. They cast him for the part of a Negro. He was able to refuse without fracturing the bond, and then, as the next degree in belittlement, was assigned to the part of a Yankee farmer in a film play of the type of "The Old Homestead."

Scarcity of Good Plays for Children

By Mae Tinee.

THERE seems to be some question as to just who is to be blamed for the dearth of children's plays. Time and again local theaters have announced that they would on certain days show children's programs. The plan was started with a flourish and ended in most cases as a fizzle.

There is no doubt but that parents and those who have the interests of the young at heart are awake and alert to the moral danger involved in allowing children to attend heterogeneous programs. Mary Grey Peck is touring the country in the interests of children and movies for children. Everywhere she goes she is greeted enthusiastically by the mothers and upon her departure exhibitors and producers are deluged with demands for better films for children.

Feeling a keen interest in the subject myself, I called upon a man at the head of large moving picture theater enterprises, who had, I knew, himself given considerable thought to children's programs and who had on several occasions endeavored to inaugurate them in his theaters. He said to me:

"Miss Tinee, if you really want the truth, it is the mothers themselves who are responsible for our throwing up our hands and backing away from this proposition. We have tried it. We have worked up the idea among mothers and various clubs and appointed neighborhood women as patronesses. At the start they have rallied nobly to the cause. Nothing could possibly have exceeded their enthusiasm. Then little by little the fervor has abated. They have withdrawn for various petty reasons or without reason at all.

"We have found that when they want a thing—in that first enthusiasm I spoke of—all are apparently willing to work together. When once that proposition is under way, however, they disintegrate. We were going to show some 'Alice in Wonderland' pictures—charming, innocent little films, I thought. We gave a private exhibition to some of the women, feeling sure they would be passed. We were treated later with objections such as these:

"'I don't like the caterpillar and alligator in the picture, because I don't think it is good for children to see crawling things.'

"'The Mad Hatter is too grotesque. He should look sweeter.'

"One by one the women come to you. They say: 'Mrs. So-and-So is a lovely woman, but what does she know about pictures? If you take that film which she advocated I feel that I cannot possibly permit my children to attend your theater the day it is shown.'

"Then we found that it would be necessary for us to consider the nap hours of children of various ages. For Dolly, aged 4, we should start the program at 3:15, which would give Dolly time for her nap and bath before going to the theater. For Genevieve, aged 8, we should show the program at a quarter of 2, or 2 at the latest, as Genevieve usually goes out with her father on that night and takes a nap later in the afternoon and has to have her bath before supper.

"We admit that children's programs would be a good thing, but some different plan must be evolved before they will be in any way satisfactory for every one concerned."

Just where do you think the trouble lies, yourselves? With the producers, with the exhibitors, or with the mothers?

Since Mary Pickford has taken over her own company she is developing into an ardent little business woman. When not playing she is working at a substantial looking desk in a businesslike office, using all the concentration she possesses in mastering the details of the management of the concern. It is said by those who know her best that her income now is considerably over $10,000 a week. This same friend asserts, however, that she is the same "little Mary" as ever—not a bit spoiled by her added prosperity.

It is the rather original idea of Harry Millarde, who was director and actor with Kalem for a long time, that it's absolutely the director and not the player who makes the picture. A good director, he says, furnishes the actors with their gestures, expressions, and positions. He sticks too his idea through the hours of argument that follow, while you recall to his memory the Mary Pickfords, Clara Kimball Youngs, Blanche Sweets, William Harts, Harold Lockwoods, etc., who are still alive and famous, though they have in their day passed through the hands of many directors not all of whom could possibly have been the making of them.

It is interesting to know that William Furst, for many years associated with the enterprises of David Belasco and later with Charles Frohman as musical director and composer, will make the music score for the "Joan of Arc" production, in which Geraldine Farrar is starred.

John Drew Gets Another "Best Play in Years."

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—John Drew has another of those "best parts he has played in years." We can't remember when John Drew did not have such a part, come to think of it. He is always at his best, according to the friendly reviewers seeking some reasonable excuse for his not having a better play.

This time the play is "Major Pendennis," and the part is that of the major himself, grown somewhat less cynical and worldly in the dramatization that Langdon Mitchell has extracted from the Thackeray novel than he was in the book.

It is rather a dry play, and there is little drama in it. But it is a colorful and well staged series of episodes. It is a sort of schedule of the affairs of young Arthur Pendennis, and the major's interest in them is inspired by his desire to see his nephew well married.

In the prologue he takes charge of the boy's infatuation for Emily Fotheringay, an Irish actress, and adroitly brings that to an end. In the first act he nips in the bud the growing affair with Fanny Bolton, the laundress' pretty daughter. In the second act he brings about Arthur's engagement to the silly but rich Blanche Amory, and in the last act, realizing the mistake he has made, permits the adorable Laura Bell to assume command of the romance.

A kind of Victorian travelogue, concerned with the characters of a well loved story, is "Major Pendennis." And it will serve Mr. Drew admirably for a season. Lacking the drama that made "Becky Sharp" not only a fine setting for the art of Mrs. Fiske, but a good play as well, it is not likely to become a fixed feature of his repertoire.

But then Mr. Drew is not a repertoire actor. He is a wig and technique actor. For twenty years he has devoted himself to the task of making his public love him for himself alone, and so he must go on to the end carrying the admiration of the generation he adorned and awakening no more than the casual interest of the younger set.

The Victorian portrait he presents of the somewhat foppish major is excellent. His clothes still become him. And all that the character demands of him he gives generously.

The outstanding personal success of the production, however, is earned by Alison Skipworth, as the gloriously vulgar Lady Clavering. Brandon Tynan plays Arthur as a soulful Irish Romeo, and Mary Worth is the Laura. John Williams, Mr. Drew's new manager since he left the Frohman fold, has provided an excellent setting for "Major Pendennis."

There is a new Potash and Perlmutter combination in town, playing this time the leading characters in a new Montague Glass comedy called "Object, Matrimony." It has not scored the success the first of the series gained, however, because it lacks both the variety and the novelty of the other.

This tribute to the shrewdness of the cloak and suit trade is concerned mostly with laughter at the Jewish merchant's expense. He is still richly humorous, but somewhat less human than he was before. He woos the snicker, but overlooks the sniffle. And the sniffle, you may accept it on the authority of one who has studied popular successes in the theater for a good many years, is most important.

"Object, Matrimony," is concerned with the romantic and trade adventures of a young Hebrew who has inherited his father's suit business and is running it into bankruptcy. He is something of a dreamer, a second generation Perlmutter, with thoughts above his father's business. He spends much time reading "Shakespeare and those other loafers," and incidentally he loves his bookkeeper.

His Uncle Joseph, however, is determined that he shall marry money and save the business. He is particularly anxious that he shall marry the daughter of his chief creditor, she being one Birdie Lesengelt and far from attractive. Birdie's father, Julius, is also eager for the match, and the older men conspire together to bring it about.

It is the bookkeeper who thwarts them. She induces the young man to submit to the engagement, to build up his credit and his business on the strength of it, and finally to pay off his obligations before the date set for the wedding and leave Birdie waiting at the synagogue. This scheme furnishes the comedy framework.

Before it is successfully accomplished there are many scares. A wedding date is set ahead. Birdie becomes jealous of the bookkeeper, Julius, the father, grows impatient, and many times disaster is threatened. But finally the debts are all paid and the joke is sprung. It is a scurvy trick they play the Lesengelts, but in business what's the difference?

Jess Dandy is the principal player engaged, and the part of Uncle Joseph promises to do almost as much for him as that of Potash did for Barney Bernard. It would do quite as much in reclaiming him from the "Prince of Pilsen" sort of thing if there were, as suggested, a few sniffles mixed with the laughter. Mathilde Cottrelly again plays a gentle Jewish mother. Marjorie Wood is the heroine, and a moving picture actor, Irving Cummings, the dreaming, wavy haired hero.

The expense account boys headed this way from the western markets need no longer hesitate. Though the "Follies" have left the Winter garden has begun its regular winter season with a spectacle called "The Show of Wonders" and the "bridge of thighs" is again supporting its annual parade of figures and fashions.

These entertainments are frankly fashioned for the entertainment of the eager ones touring from the interior and in search of revelry. Perhaps 60 per cent of their patronage is drawn from the transient public. But there is a big native following, too, that pays $5 a seat for the opening performance at the box office and as much more at the brokers'.

"The Show of Wonders" isn't, of course, a real show of anything more startling than the sort of thing that has been shown many times before. But in the matter of taste it is a bit ahead of its predecessors. There is less brazen vulgarity and more reasonable comedy. And the show of costumes is unusually striking.

A trio of librettists and song writers, John Golden, John E. Hazzard, and Anne Caldwell, has laid violent hands on the book of Charles Hoyt's "A Milk White Flag" and tried to turn it into a musical play bearing the meaningless title, "Go To It." The attempt, so far as the book is concerned, is a sad failure, and if the shade of Hoyt does not drive one or all of these reckless adapters to some violent act we shall lose our faith in the revelations of the Psychical Research society.

Playbills of the Week

The Playhouse—The season in Chicago of the Theatre de la Renaissance Française, under the direction of Gustave Rolland will start to-morrow afternoon with Bernstein's "La Rafale," which was acted six years ago in Chicago by Miss Margaret Illington as "The Whirlwind." Sardou's "Madame Sans-Gene" will be acted tomorrow night. The Bernstein play will be repeated Tuesday and Friday nights. Sardou's popular work will be given other performances Tuesday and Saturday afternoons and Wednesday night. Thursday night will be devoted to a special program for the benefit of the French wounded. Labiche's old farce, "La Cagnotte"—meaning "The Kitty," in the draw-poker sense of the locution—will be acted Friday afternoon and Saturday night.

CONTINUED ATTRACTIONS

Powers'—"Justice," with John Barrymore. Final week. "The Boomerang" follows.

Olympic—"Common Clay," with John Mason. Eleventh week.

Cort—"Fair and Warmer." Fourteenth week.

Garrick—"The Princess Pat." Final fortnight. "Katinka" follows.

Grand—"The Great Lover," with Leo Ditrichstein. Sixth week.

Princess—"The Unchastened Woman," with Miss Emily Stevens. Final week. "Canary Cottage" follows.

Blackstone—"Caroline," with Miss Anglin. Final week. "Shirley Kaye," with Miss Elsie Ferguson, follows.

Illinois—"Alone at Last!" Fourth week.

Chicago—"The Blue Paradise," with Cecil Lean. Eighth week.

VANDEVILLE

Majestic — The Marion Morgan Dancers will top the new program, starting tomorrow, in the ballet they gave earlier in the season in the Palace. Sydney Jarvis and Virginia Dare, Johnny Dooley and Yvette Rugel, Rockwell and Wood, the Florimonds, and Milton Pollock "and company" in George Ade's "Speaking to Father" sketch are others listed.

Palace—Miss Emma Carus, with a new assistant, comes to head the new bill, starting tomorrow. He is Harry Comer and would like to be known as the "Beau Brummell of vaudeville." Anna Wheaton and Harry Carroll, the four Marx brothers, Yvette, and Lohse and Sterling ("in feats which show what physical culture means in their lives") also are to appear.

McVicker's—Continuous show.

Great Northern—Continuous show.

Columbia—Jean Bedini, whose show always seems better than any of the others that come to this theater, will this afternoon start a week's engagement.

ONE WEEK ONLY

Imperial—"My Aunt from Utah," with Miss Kate Elinore, starting this afternoon.

Fritzi von Busing

SHE is the soubrette of "Alone At Last!" and to her part in the operetta in the Illinois fall some of the best songs. She is, apparently, less happy in this than in the fact that she has been for thirteen years the wife of Forrest Huff, also in employment in the Lehar operetta.

THE TALKERS.

Mr. Burton Holmes will this week, in Orchestra hall, bring to an end his first series of Travelogues for the season. He will make known No. 5 in the series, dealing with "La Belle France," Wednesday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoon. He will this afternoon give a repetition of No. 2 in the series, "The Canadian Rockies."

John Cowper Powys, hitherto of the Little theater, will tonight move downstairs, and lecture in The Playhouse on Theodore Dreiser.

McCUTCHEON ABOUT TO FLY.

Number 89

SHE MIGHT HAVE BEEN PRESIDENT.

In 1884, Mrs. Belva Lockwood of Washington, D. C., was nominated for president of the United States by the Women's Equal Rights party. She recently celebrated her eighty-sixth birthday and her forty-third year as a lawyer in the District of Columbia.

OFFICER, SHE'S IN AGAIN!

What? The Deutschland! Guided by the hand of her intrepid commander, Captain Koenig, she dived under the British fleet in the English channel and, the other day, laid her cheek quietly against the dock in New London, Conn.

MATTERS of MUSIC

The Orchestra.

MR. STOCK'S fifth program, Friday afternoon and Saturday night, will be an "all-Wagner" affair, with Mr. Clarence Whitehill, the baritone of the Metropolitan and Chicago opera companies, as soloist. "The Flying Dutchman," "Tannhäuser," "Die Meistersinger," "Siegfried," and "Die Walküre" will be represented; and Mr. Whitehill's selections will be music for Wolfram, Hans Sachs, and Wotan. Wagner's "Faust" overture also will be played.

The Orchestra's second concert in the University of Chicago series will be Tuesday night in Leon Mandel assembly hall. Dvorák's "Carnival" overture, Beethoven's second symphony, Elgar's "The Wand of Youth" suite, the berceuse from Godard's "Jocelyn" suite, and Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "Götterdämmerung" will make up the program.

Mr. Steindel has an effective bit for violoncello in the Godard excerpt.

The Orchestra's second Pop will be Thursday night, when the program will consist of the overture to "Euryanthe," the second movement from Beethoven's second symphony, the minuet and farandole from Bizet's "L'Arlésienne" suite, Svendsen's "Carnival in Paris," Elgar's "The Wand of Youth" suite, a Tschaikowsky-Stock melody, a Kreisler-Stock waltz, the ballet-music from Goldmark's "The Queen of Sheba," and Liszt's polonaise in E major.

Obbligatos for harp and flute in the Bizet minuet will be played by the Messrs. Tramonti and Quensel, and for 'cello in the Goldmark selection by Mr. Steindel.

Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, will be soloist of the sixth Orchestra program, Nov. 17 and 18. He will play Mr. Stock's new concerto. The symphony will be Brahms' sixth.

The seventh program of the Orchestra's season, for Nov. 24 and 25, will be a memorial to Bryan Lathrop.

Announcements.

3:00 Today—Glenn Dillard Gunn and his American Symphony orchestra in the third concert of their series of ten in Cohan's Grand Opera-house. The soloists will be Alexander Gray, baritone, and Kurt Wanieck, pianist. Loomis, Massenet, Wagner, Beethoven, and Grieg are among the composers represented.

3:30 Today—Fritz Kreisler in a recital in the Auditorium.

3:30 Today—Mme. Julia Claussen, the contralto, in a recital in the Illinois theater. Marcel Charlier, one of the conductors of the Opera, will be her accompanist.

3:30 and 4:45 Today—The Chicago Concert Ensemble in its fourth concert in Fullerton hall, Art Institute.

3:30 Today—Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano, in a recital in the Florentine room, Hotel Congress. This is the recital first scheduled for Oct. 15, and postponed because of the singer's illness.

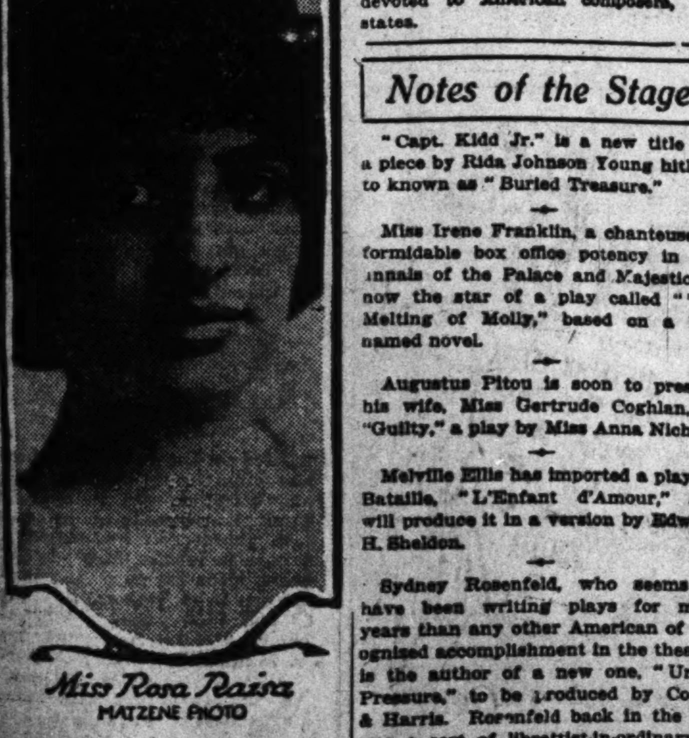
Tonight at 8—First of the "opera evenings" in Fullerton hall. Selections from "Aida" will be given, with Marjorie Dodd Warner, soprano; Harriet McConnell, contralto, and Arthur Kraft, tenor.

Tomorrow at 8:15—The Apollo Club in "Elijah" in Orchestra hall. The soloists will be Mabel Sharp Herdien, Hazel Huntley, Warren Proctor, and Arthur Middleton. Edgar A. Nelson will be at the organ, and the performance will be conducted by Harrison M. Wild.

Tuesday at 11 a. m.—Mme. Louise Edvina, soprano, and Theo Karle, tenor, in a recital in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. This is the first of Miss Kinsolving's series of "musical mornings."

Wednesday at 11 a. m.—Arthur Middleton, basso, in a recital in the Ziegfeld theater. This is the sixth in Mr. Kinsey's series.

Thursday at 8:30—Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto, in a recital in Central Music hall. Her program will be devoted to American composers, she states.



Miss Rosa Raisa
MATZENE PHOTO

THIS soprano will next week be heard as a member of the Auditorium company and will take the leadership of the Italian division for the ten weeks' season, save on such nights as Miss Farrar may elect to sing Puccini. Miss Raisa, a member of the company in 1913-'14, is now, if Mr. Campanini be not overstating the case, a singing actress of uncommon talent. She will be Aida in the first opera.

Notes of the Stage.

"Capt. Kidd Jr." is a new title for a piece by Rida Johnson Young hitherto known as "Buried Treasure."

Miss Irene Franklin, a chanteuse of formidable box office potency in the annals of the Palace and Majestic, is now the star of a play called "The Melting of Molly," based on a like named novel.

Augustus Pitou is soon to present his wife, Miss Gertrude Coghlan, in "Guilty," a play by Miss Anna Nichols.

Melville Ellis has imported a play by Bataille, "L'Enfant d'Amour," and will produce it in a version by Edward H. Sheldon.

Sydney Rosenfeld, who seems to have been writing plays for more years than any other American of recognized accomplishment in the theater, is the author of a new one, "Under Pressure," to be produced by Cohan & Harris. Rosenfeld back in the '80s was a sort of librettist-in-ordinary to the comic opera impresari, "Americanizing" the text of the imported pieces, and outfitting the comedians with topical songs. He made a capital piece for De Wolf Hopper on a basis of Frank R. Stockton's famous story called "The Lady or the Tiger?" and he is not by any means alone in his contention that his comedy of "A Possible Case," produced thirty years ago, was a much better play on the same subject than Langdon Mitchell's launded "The New York Idea."

Feature Films of the Week.

"A Corner in Colleens"—Triangle production with Bessie Barriscale playing the lead.

"And the Law Says"—Mutual Star production presenting Richard Bennett.

"Atta Boy's Last Rae"—Triangle drama with Dorothy Gish in an exciting racing story.

"East Is East"—Mutual Star feature production starring Florence Turner.

"Extravagance"—Metro drama, presenting Mme. Petrova.

"Gloriana"—Bluebird production featuring little Zoe Rae. A happy little drama that will delight the youngsters.

"Less than the Dust"—Artcraft's first production. Mary Pickford plays the lead.

"Love and Hate"—Fox Film drama featuring Mme. Bertha Kalich and Stuart Holmes.

"So Shall Ye Reap"—Selig drama presenting Rolyn Adair and Eugenie Forde. One of those unusual dramas where the man reforms through the love of a woman. (Only he usually doesn't.)

"The Chorus Girl and the Kid"—Three reel Knickerbocker drama presenting Marie Empress.

"The Heritage of Hate"—Red Feather drama. Roberta Wilson, William Quinn, and Betty Schade are featured.

"The Hidden Valley"—Five reel Gold Rooster Pathe production starring Valkyrien (Baroness De Witz).

"The Man Who Stood Still"—Brady-World Film drama presenting Lew Fields and Doris Kenyon. It stands still.

"The Ocean Waif"—International Film drama. Carlyle Blackwell and Doris Kenyon are featured.

"The Soul of Kura San"—Lasky drama starring Myrtle Stedman and Sessue Hayakawa in a Japanese-American love story.

"Unprotected"—Lasky production starring Blanche Sweet as an orphan girl. Sweet fans will undoubtedly like it.

"What I Said Goes"—Essanay comedy-drama. Richard Travers and Gertrude Glover plays the leads. Does it?

STATIONARY PHOTOPLAYS.

Bandbox—"The Unborn," a production starring Gertrude Bondhill. Scheduled for a run. Will be shown next week to both women and men.

Castle—"Hearts Adrift," Famous Players production starring Mary Pickford.

Colonial—"The Birth of a Nation," D. W. Griffith's picturisation of Thomas E. Dixon's novel. Henry Walthall and Mae Marsh play the leads.

La Salle—"Less than the Dust," Artcraft production starring Mary Pickford.

Studebaker—"Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," Universal drama.

Siegfeld—"The Last Man," Vitagraph drama, featuring Mary Anderson, William Duncan, and Corinne Griffith.

By Mae Tinee.

CORINE: Thank you. Douglas Fairbanks is with the Triangle Film company, Los Angeles, Cal. So is Bessie Love. Miss Love is not married—that is, not that I know of. Mr. Fairbanks is. In "The Birth of a Nation" the following people took the principal parts: Henry Walthall was Col. Ben Cameron; Mariam Cooper was Margaret Cameron; Mae Marsh was Flora, the little sister; Lillian Gish was Elsie Stoneman, and Robert Harron was [illegible]. You are entirely welcome.

ANNA: Henry Kolker takes the part of Dr. Royce in "Gloria's Romance." Grace Cunard is 27 years old.

V. McC.: In "The Adventures of Kathlyn" Thomas Santschi took the part of Bruce. Yes.

BROWNS EYES: Jack Mulhall is with the Universal company, Universal City., Cal. I have no personal information regarding him. Mary Pickford and Owen Moore are not acting together at the present time.

OLLIE AND MIN.: In "Hulda from Holland" the "goat" was chloroformed.

J. P.: If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope, I shall be vurr' glad to mail you the article I have on the "doubling process."

B. L. R.: Hazel Dawn was born on the 23d day of March, 1891, in Ogden, Utah. She has not been married that I know of.

MISS ANXIOUS: Wallace Reid is in his 20's—supposedly—and is with the Lasky company, Los Angeles, Cal. Pat O'Malley was with Edison, 2826 Decatur avenue, Bedford park, New York, the last I heard. In private life Miss Billie Burke is Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld. You are entirely welcome.

SYLVIA T.: No bother at all. Grace Cunard is not married. Francis Ford has been. Billie Rhodes is not married. I have no information regarding the other actor you mentioned. She uses her own name so far as I know.

LETTY: In "Ramona" Monroe Salisbury took the part of Allesandro. No, he is not a regular Indian. Search me, my child!

JANE S.: None that I know of. A thousand thanks.

D. O.: I think that Mr. Wilbur would be glad to send you his picture if you will write to him inclosing 25 cents. "Wild and crazy" about him, are you? You are frank, to say the least.

J. L.: Following is the cast of "Redeemed": Roma Sana, Maud Stewart; Father Anselm, Henry Vibart; Harry Somers, Tom Powers, and Marea, Florence Turner. No trouble at all.

Two Debutantes from Well Known Chicago Families

News of Chicago Society

Casino to Open with Dinner and Dance Tomorrow.

By Mme X.

TOMORROW night the Casino, as smart and attractive a club as Chicago boasts, has its opening club dinner and dance. The vivid green of the ball room will be background for a gathering of 150 belles and beaux. The lights from those twelve glittering little crystal chandeliers will stream down and be reflected in that black, highly polished floor—one of the slipperiest ever. And once more the flute, violin, and bassoon will rouse the clamorous echoes of those resonantly constructed walls.

Among those giving dinners there tomorrow will be the Arthur Meekers, J. Lewis Cochrans, George Ingalls, Henry Robbins, George Higginson Jr., Carter H. Harrisons, Lawrence Viles, Charles Deweys, Walter Kirks, Joseph Ryersons, and John D. Matzes.

New Arts Club Opens.

The opening reception tomorrow afternoon of the new Arts Club of Chicago will be an occasion of great social and artistic significance. Mrs. Robert McGann, president of the association, will receive the guests.

The club quarters are on the fifth floor of the Thurber building in Michigan avenue and overlook Grant park and the lake. Arthur Heun remodeled the rooms and Mrs. John Carpenter directed the decoration and furnishing, and the result is chic, charming, and distinguished to an extraordinary degree.

The main reception room has a floor of a deep sapphire blue, somber as you walk toward the wide east windows but brilliant when you look across it from that position. The walls are the palest Nile green and the hangings are rich claret in hue.

The furniture is Venetian in effect, which harmonizes with the proportions of the rooms and with the outlook across Lake Michigan. The anteroom, which adjoins the large salon by a wide opening, is of an exquisite turquoise tint as to walls, with dark blue cushions on the seat running around the room. The picture galleries beyond are in soft shades of gray brown, with a canary colored room for etchings near by.

The exhibit on view for this reception will include some fine Sargents and interesting canvases by Henry G. Dearth. Among the Sargents will be portraits of Mrs. R. U. Saltonstall, Mrs. C. B. Alexander, and Joseph Jefferson.

Active Workers in the Club.

The idea of the Arts club is to bring artists and art lovers into closer relations and to give the former opportunities for exhibiting their works not now always possible. Mrs. Robert McGann, herself a brilliant artist as wel as a social power here in Chicago, has been head and front of this movement to make artists and art more of a feature of our civic and social life by means of this club.

The women aiding her and listed as among the directors of the club are Mmes. James B. Waller, Chauncey Blair, John Carpenter, C. M. Ely, Cecil Clark Davis, and Pauline Palmer, and the Misses Katherine Dudley and Alice Roullier. Among the men interested in the enterprise are Lawton Parker, Charles B. Pike, F. J. Reichmann, Edward M. Erickson, Robert Jarvie, David Adler, Abram Poole, Julian Mason, Robert Allerton, John McCutcheon, Charles Dewey, Charles Francis Brown, Roy McWilliams, Frank A. Werner, and Adam Emory Albright.

Of interest to many Chicagoans is Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis' capital and spirited portrait of George Porter, hung in the present twenty-ninth annual art exhibition of paintings and sculpture at the Art Institute, which opened with such a real civic party last Thursday afternoon.

Aid for French Wounded.

Next Thursday evening the lovers of French drama and of the French people will be in evidence at the entertainment to be given at the playhouse for the benefit of the Chicago committee of the American fund for French wounded when the local Renaissance French theater will present a dramatic performance and Lucien Muratore will sing. Mrs. Henry Robbins, Mrs. Russell Tyson, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and others are working for the success of this event.

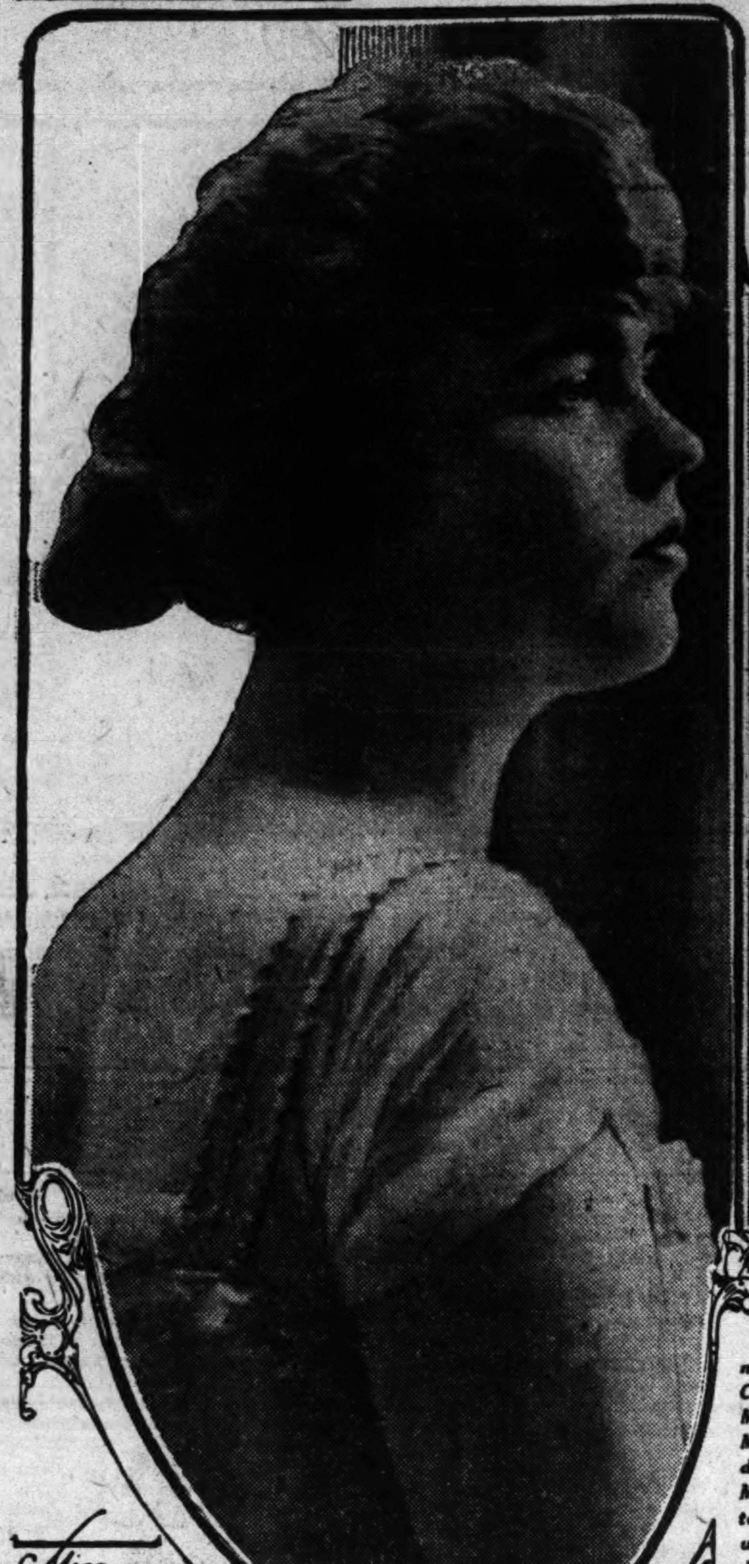
Again on Nov. 14 we shall have a call to music and to civic pride which will draw us all to Orchestra hall to hear the fall festival of the Civic Music association.

All over the city in social centers and playground parks children are now practicing daily in little, serried ranks of earnest humanity to prepare for this event. The soloist will be the delightful Mme. Julia Claussen, while the Chicago Symphony orchestra will provide a part of the program. But if the singing of the world's folk songs, Bohemian, Irish, Japanese, Lithuanian, German, and Russian, by these schoolchildren of many nationalities and yet of Chicago, doesn't move you and give you a thrill which even Caruso himself cannot inspire I'm much mistaken.

The work of the Civic Music association in organizing community singing is more farreaching in its humanizing, uplifting effects than almost any other agency here. Did you go to some of those Thursday evening concerts on the Municipal pier last summer when more than 10,000 men, women, and children joined in singing our national airs and old familiar songs? It was a great experience.

William H. Rehm, president of the Civic Music association, is himself devoted to music. There is no business nor social engagement that can take him from his Thursday afternoon violin lesson, while every Sunday morning in his home in North State street he and three or four members of the symphony orchestra devote a couple of hours to chamber music. He is also a composer of much promise.

Thomas Whitney Surette of Boston, who was here last spring, is coming again the last of November to give four lectures on music for the members of the Parents' league and for their children. His particular hobby is the teaching of folk song to children, though in this he is antedated by our own Civic Music association and by various local music movements. He is an interesting lecturer and his talks will be given in various well known and often opened houses. No women with large drawing rooms are so hospitable as are our Chicago great ladies.



Miss Elizabeth Dixon Martin

Miss Margaret Pullman

Both of these debutantes bear names of time worn social interest to Chicagoans. Miss Elizabeth Dixon Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton B. Martin and a granddaughter of the late Samuel K. Martin, as well as the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Dixon, who will give the young girl her debutante reception at their home at 3131 Michigan avenue on Wednesday, Nov. 15. Her parents will give a dance in her honor at the Blackstone on Christmas night.

Miss Margaret Pullman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Pullman of 199 Lake Shore drive. Her granduncle was the late George M. Pullman, whose red stone home in lower Prairie avenue is still a social landmark of the city, although Mrs. Pullman spends but little time in Chicago of late years. Miss Pullman will make her debut at the Blackstone next Saturday afternoon at a tea-dance from 4 to 7.

WEDDINGS

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Buck of 5243 Kenwood avenue for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Juliana Randolph Buck, to Francis Eugene Ackerman of New York, on Nov. 15, in the chapel of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The marriage is announced of Miss Clare A. Bent, daughter of Mrs. Charles A. Bent of La Grange, to Robert M. Kendall of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Kendall will be at home after Jan. 1 at 620 Hinman avenue, Evanston.

Jan. 3 is the day set for the wedding of Miss Agnes B. Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. C. Street of 41 East Schiller street, to Hopewell J. Rogers. It will take place at the family winter home at Winter Park, Fla.

The marriage of Margaret Josephine Kohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kohn, 4925 Lake Park avenue, to Richard David Rosenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rosenberg, will take place on Saturday at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Edward Harmon Elwell of 4056 Grand boulevard announces the marriage of her daughter Grace, to Ivan Havelock Ferguson on Wednesday. The Rev. William Chalmers Covert officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will be at home at 4056 Grand boulevard after Dec. 1.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mrs. Lyman Beecher Glover of 1010 Leland avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Gertrude Louise, to Robert Jeffress Watt, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watt of Chicago.

The engagement is announced of Miss Miriam Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James La Grange Worthington of Oak Park, to George Francis Bissell of Ottawa, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell Bissell of Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Krueger of 1224 Independence boulevard announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Leo Leroy Boach, son of Mrs. Jennie Boach of 5168 Indiana avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fanning of 6343 Ingleside avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Annabel, to Frank A. Hayes.

Mrs. Charles E. Fisher of 3828 Wilcox avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen Margaret, to Frank Edmond Ogden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Ogden of Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Strauss of 1031 Hyde Park boulevard announce the engagement of their daughter, Bernice, to Herbert J. Morganroth.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gorden of 3846 Congress street announce the engagement of their daughter, Ida B., to Hyman Polonsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Polonsky of 3303 Wrightwood avenue.

FUTURE EVENTS

Henry J. Patten, chairman of the executive committee of the allied bazaar, announces the organization of the following booths, in addition to the already extensive list: The booth for Lady Helmsley's war emergency fund is in charge of Mrs John H. Winterbotham and wi be in the shape of an antique shop. Mrs. G. Cook Adams is chairman of the committee for the Daughters of the British Empire war relief fund. Mrs. J. P. Walker is chairman of the Australian-New Zealand booth committee. The British Red cross booth is in charge of Mrs. A. Stamford White. The La Fayette kit fund booth is under the direction of Mrs. William Bennett. Mrs. Edward F. Swift is chairman of a booth the proceeds of which go to the American commission for training in suitable trades the maimed soldiers of France. Howard F. Gilette is chairman of the automobile sales booth. James F. Stepina is organizing the Bohemian booth, and John R. Palandech the Serbian-Montenegrin booth.

The Ogontz association will give two dances for the benefit of the day nursery that is under its management. They will be given at the Blackstone hotel on the evenings of Nov. 27 and Dec. 18. Mrs. W. S. Jackson is president of the organization.

Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss of 1550 North State parkway will open her home for a holiday sale on Tuesday, Nov. 14, which will benefit the Chicago Woman's exchange, of which Miss Grace Dixon is president.

The Chicago Wellesley club has take the Blackstone theater for a benefit the night of Nov. 14, when Elsie Ferguson will present her new play, "Shirley Kaye." The proceeds will be for the double purpose of assisting the Chicago bureau of occupation and the Students' Alumnæ building to be erected at Wellesley.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns of 67 East Division street, will give a buffet supper party next Sunday for Miss Virginia Pope, who is having a number of farewell entertainments before leaving for the east, where she is to make a New York stage debut with Yvette Guilbert.

The Cordon will have an at home evening for its members on Friday, Nov. 17, when painters and sculptors will have charge of the evening and give talks. On the afternoon of Dec. 5, Miss Alice Rouillier will give a talk for the members on etchings, illustrating her talk with some of the best examples of the etcher's art.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers will give a dinner dance on Saturday evening, Nov. 25, at the Saddle and Cycle club following the debut tea of Miss Margaret Pullman, daughter of Mrs. William Charles Pullman. The party is in honor of Miss Pullman and Miss Ermina Carry, another of the season's debutantes.

Friday evening, Dec. 22, is the date of the dinner-dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs Watson Armour and Mr. and Mrs. Philip D Armour III. in their two apartments at 1200 Lake Shore drive, in honor of Miss Lolita Armour.

Mrs. John McKinlock of 5412 Hyde Park boulevard will entertain at bridge Thursday afternoon, Nov. 16, at 2 o'clock in honor of her niece, Mrs. Percy Darlington of Westchester, Pa.

Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt of Winnetka has taken a house at 40 Cedar street, where the debut of her daughter, Miss Betty, will be made on Saturday. Following the reception there is to be a dinner dance at the Cedar street house.

On Nov. 16 Miss Edith Lobdell and Miss Julia Cooley will give a program of Miss Cooley's poems which have been set to music by Miss Lobdell. In charge of these entertainments are Mrs. Addison W. Moore, Mrs. Sarah Hobson, Mrs. Payson S. Wild, Mrs. C. D. Westcott, Mrs. Robert A. Fillikan, Mrs. Harry A. Bigelow, and Mrs. James Westfall Thompson. It is given for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the vocational bureau.

The Eli Bates house board, of which Mrs. Russell Tyson is president, will have a benefit performance on Tuesday evening, Nov. 14, at Powers' theater of "The Boomerang." Tickets can be had from the War shop at 60 East Washington street or from Mrs. W. E. Clarke, 1350 North State street. Mrs. James B. Forgan has taken a large group of seats and Mrs. Wallace Winter will entertain a party of twenty in honor of Miss Betty Hoyt.

A tea-dance will be given next Saturday by the woman's board of the Boys' Shelter club from 4 to 7 o'clock in the afternoon in the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel. The different committees formed are as follows:

Social—Mrs. Chauncey Martyn, chairman, assisted by the Mesdames Frank Pierce, T. J. Watkins, Viola Mashek, Ellwood McLelland and Mason.

Floor—Mrs Leonard Busby and Miss Pauline Dole, chairmen, assisted by the Misses Catherine Donelson, Lilian Shedd, Annie Wisner, Turner and W. P. Barnes.

Mrs. R. H. McCormick Jr. of 25 East Erie street can be applied to for tickets.

Mrs John Root and Mrs. Harry Harvey have been appointed chairmen of programs for the benefit in behalf of the winter fund for the French war shop at 60 East Washington street, which will take place at the Playhouse, Le Theatre de la Renaissance Française, Thursday evening. Mrs. Lysander Hill and Mme. Bigot have charge of the Allied Cook Book, a collection of recipes of delectable dishes from the kitchens of the allied nations, which is published solely for the benefit of the American Fund for French Wounded. Lucien Muratore will sing that evening, and acts from the theater's current program will be given.

PERSONALS

Count and Countess Minotto of New York have arrived in Chicago for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Swift, the parents of the countess, who formerly was Miss Ida Swift. They gave a small luncheon on Monday at the Blackstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb Coleman, who spent several day in Chicago last week as guests of Mrs. George Halleck Taylor and other friends, have gone to Lansing, Mich., on a visit to Mr. Coleman's mother, Mrs. Derby.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Dering have closed their summer home at Green Lake, Wis., and returned to the city. They will go into one of the new apartments at 5648 Dorchester avenue.

Observe Well-Gowned Women Everywhere

Hair under the arms is a needless incumbrance of which women nowadays wisely rid themselves in a most agreeable, "womanly" way—by the simple use of a toilet preparation called El Rado.

El Rado, A Sanitary Liquid

Easily applied with a piece of absorbent cotton, removing hair from the face, lip, neck, or arms by dissolving it in a few moments. El Rado is absolutely harmless and does not increase or coarsen later hair growth.

Is Your Corset Comfortable?

IN corsets, smartly gowned women have come to understand that genuine smartness means the correct fashionable silhouette maintained with bodily ease and health.

It is no longer necessary to sacrifice health and comfort for smartness. Thousands of Gossard wearers have found this to be true after wearing their first Gossard.

A Gossard is comfortable because it fits perfectly. A Gossard fits perfectly because there are many models specially designed for every figure type. Because of its perfect fit, the gown correctly fits it with that elasticity and grace which reflects genuine smartness.

find perfect comfort and individuality of style in the front-lacing Gossards especially designed for these two figure types. They confine flesh under shoulders, have ample fullness in front at top, and allow the bust to rest in the corset, not over it. For large below waist figures there are special models with longer skirts and stout elastic sections which greatly reduce the hips, giving gratifying results.

An expert corsetiere will fit you without obligation to your model at $2.00, $2.50, $3.50, $5.00, up to $25.00.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Many Charities to Benefit from Deborah Bazaar.

By Hazel Whitaker.

TRULY broad and generous in its giving is the Deborah Woman's club, which is holding a bazaar on Wednesday and Thursday in the Masonic temple at Fifty-first and Michigan avenue for the benefit of the many charities in which it is interested. As the list shows, these women are working for the good of all races, and they are putting forth every effort to make the coming bazaar a big success financially. Besides the one Jewish charity benefited the Deborah Boys' club at 5930 South Park avenue, the Geneva Home for Girls, the Glenwood School for Boys, the Bowmanville School for Boys, the patients at Dunning, and many smaller charities will share the proceeds of this undertaking.

The club maintains a mental hygiene committee, which visits the state hospital at Dunning and cares for paroled patients and the club also contributes to the annual shoe and stocking day at the Home for the Friendless.

Mrs. Joseph Fish is general chairman of the bazaar committee, Mrs. Hugo Brady is vice chairman, Mrs. Jacob Marks is secretary, and Mrs. Marion Stadeker Slottow and Miss Sylvia Wertheimer represent the juniors.

The various booths will be in charge of the following members:

Baby booth—Mrs. L. Lange.
Café—Mrs. Ida Gerber and Mrs. David Liellewer.
Cakes—Mrs. H. Van Baalen.
Candies—Mrs. Sam Schneewind, Miss Helen Borg, and Miss Eva Radzinski, assisted by thirty-two girls dressed as French bonbons.
Cigars and cigarets—Mrs. Abe Hartman and Mrs. Phillipson.
Dolls—Mrs. A. Davis and Miss Marjorie Morris.
Flowers—Mrs. William Markheim.
French booth—Mrs. Joseph Wolf and Mrs. I. Weber.
Grab bag—Mrs. Bierfeld.
Groceries—Mrs. J. S. Baer and Mrs. Myer Herzog.
Jellie and fruits—Mrs. Haskell and Mrs. Aaron Andrews.
Chances—Mrs. M. M. Mitchell and Miss Blanche Friedman.
Furs—Mrs. Edward Neuberger.
Soft drinks—Mrs. Louis Livingston and Mrs. Emil Rosenthal.
Toys and books—Mrs. Philip Magnus and members of the Deborah Dramatic club.
Utilities—Mrs. Max Wedeles and Mrs. Aarenberg.
Wheel of fortune—Mrs. J. Greenwald and Mrs. Joseph Friedman.
Fortune telling—Mrs. Simon Fish.
Vaudeville—Mrs. H. Brady and Mrs. J. E. Furth.

There will be dancing both afternoon and evening, in charge of Mrs. Samuel Schneewind. Mrs. Joseph Wolf, assisted by Mrs. James Greenewald, is in charge of the souvenir program.

Mrs. Adolph Stein is president of the Deborahs; Mrs. Emil Wedeles and Mrs. Joseph Fish, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Arthur Pereira, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Wolf, financial secretary, and Mrs. M. M. Rothschild, treasurer.

Unusually active are the junior members of this club, whose work covers a wide field. They pay an annual rental of $60 toward the Deborah Boys' club and give a program the third Friday of every month at the home, when the guests include the sisters and friends of the boys, many of them members of the Ruth and Miriam clubs.

The juniors have charge of classes at Stanford park, Hull house, Maxwell Street settlement, Henry Booth house, and the Home for Jewish Friendless. At the latter home the juniors give kindergarten service and musical instruction to the children. At the Washburne school the juniors have a committee in charge of the penny luncheons one day a week. A committee of juniors reads to the blind at assigned library stations and often goes to the homes of blind persons.

Among the other organizations benefited by the juniors are the Travelers' Aid society, the Jewish war fund, the Jewish chaplain fund, the Home for Incurables, and the Home for Destitute Crippled Children.

The officers of the juniors' body are: Miss Eva Radzinski, president; Miss Helen Borg and Miss Beatrice Plaut, first and second vice presidents; Miss Hazel Schloss, secretary; Miss Antoinette Newman, financial secretary, and Miss Aimee Friedman, treasurer.

Try This New Way For Superfluous Hair

If you have ever tried to remove superfluous hairs the old way,—by using the usual irritating powders and liquids, you already know how they spot and redden the skin, irritate it, especially if the skin is tender, and never thoroughly remove all the hairs. Why not try the new, the simple, easy and thorough way that never fails.

Sulfo Solution

It is a liquid, all ready to apply. Immediately that you moisten the hairs with it, they begin to shrivel, and just dissolve away completely. It leaves no spot, or redness, never irritates. The thickest or thinnest growth vanishes, leaving the skin soft and smooth, without the least sign to show that you have ever had superfluous hair at all. This is why it is ideal especially for the face, armpits and very tender parts of the body. The low-cut and transparent gowns, all the fashion today, make it necessary to have hair-free arms, shoulders, face, ankles, etc. Use Sulfo Solution,—quick, sure and safe.

Sold by all drug and department stores, $1.00 a bottle, or sent direct by Cooper Pharmacal Co., Thompson Bldg., Chicago.

Serge Dresses Specially Priced at $15.00

Finding a large dress manufacturer in New York who had an especially good lot of dresses, we induced him to sell them to us much less than their regular value. They are made in an extra good quality of serge and have trimmings of hand embroidery, of silk or the heavy tufted wool which are so popular. Beads are also used on these dresses in bright shades. The styles are the long-line, pleated model, bolero jacket, or the gathered back—Empire style. In fact, they are this season's best styles and come in the popular shades which are so much in demand. Extraordinary values. Misses' and women's sizes.

$15.00 Imported Serge Dress, Fur Trimmed—Silk Lined.

$15.00 Combination of Serge and Georgette Dress.

$15.00 Serge Dress, Chases' Fur Trimming—Silk Lined.

Extra Value Giving in Coats at $15.00

THIS coat sale represents values which have not been offered before this season by us. They are all wool materials. The majority of these coats are half or full lined. In this assortment we are showing many with the cross belted models, together with the loose, half-belted or full-belted styles. An inspection of these coats will convince you that they are remarkable values. Misses' and ladies' sizes.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME X

Debutantes Are to Be Hostesses in Opera Boxes.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—I have the pleasure to announce a change in the fashions concerning the conduct of debutantes. Last winter I devoted a column to the discussion of the ancient custom of a year ago.

It was then, you will remember, not at all the thing for a debutante to attend the opera. Hostesses used to try, by fair measure and foul, to lure an occasional young girl into their boxes toward the perfectly legitimate end of tempting the men there for the delectation of the older feminine guests. Once in a while they put it over, and thus got men there in spite of the music. But what is to become of those dreary women this season is more than can be foretold.

In the change in fashions, one is that the debutantes are to attend the opera in their own right. They are going to carry their fight right into the front row of the boxes, and predictions foretell that even the heavier works of art will be overrun with young men.

Of all those who constitute the opera, however, only the box office is rejoicing. The singers and the grand dames have greater cause to weep. For the debutantes are not only going occasionally, but they are to be hostesses. Miss Margaret Carnegie is going to hold forth once a week in box 341. Do you know what that means to the rejuvenation and success of the opera?

As much, almost, as if a new Geraldine Farrar were announced. Add to that the important announcement that Miss Flora Whitney will sit beside her mother Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, on certain evenings. Wouldn't you go to the performance offering these attractions, even if "Samson and Delilah" were to be sung?

Miss Whitney is such an extremely engaging young person. She has the grace of her sport loving papa and the hauteur of her grandmother, Mrs. Vanderbilt. The shape of her face is exactly like her clear-cut father's. In its youthful frankness it is almost boyish.

As she sits there in the front row, her wavy hair combed straight back, but escaping in a waterfall down the right side of her forehead, one can almost imagine—but not quite—that it is her father sitting there in his youth; that he has, perhaps, been lured there by the young, gracious charm of her mother. But, ah, no. The wooer of Miss Flora May may pursue her even to the opera. Miss Flora May's mother, however, we may safely say, was not captured there. At the races, perhaps, or on the polo field, but not at the opera, did the father of this year's rebutante ever go a-wooing.

It will be interesting to note if his daughter wins her husband there and to discover who he is.

Interested in Charity Work.

They say Miss Carnegie is an engaging young girl. I have not seen her yet, and neither has any one else outside the family and intimate friends. That sly old relative of hers, Andrew Carnegie, knows the value of surprise. He and his wife are going to spring this young girl when all of the limelights are set and the costuming ready. We know merely that, like her father, she is generous and charitable in impulse. For two years she has been a vice president of the Armstrong league, an organization devoted to the interest of dependent races, particularly the Indians and the Negroes, and has helped many of them to self-supporting positions. She has just graduated from a fashionable school and her friends there say she is chic as well as graceful.

Another debutante heiress who will conduct her social campaign from an opera box is Miss Mary Louise Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Huidekoper Bond, who will introduce her at an afternoon reception on Nov. 25. On Dec. 13 John W. A. Davis, her uncle, will give a ball for her at the Ritz-Carlton.

Miss Bond is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. John W. Davis, who was Miss Mary Louise Van Buren and for whom she was named, and a great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. Mary F. Spingler Van Buren, whose home for many years was at 21 West Fourteenth street on property that had descended to her. During their early married years Mr. and Mrs. Bond also lived in the house in Fourteenth street.

The Spingler in the name came from the founder of the estate. He was a prosperous farmer before and after the war of the revolution, and the estate which he left comprised many acres of land still held by the family and of great value.

Opera's Success Assured.

I can only exclaim in comment on the rejuvenating effect of all this youth and background on the opera, what matters it that some of our best singers are in the field, that they are killed, that they are injured so they may never sing to us again? With the debutantes to the rescue, the opera cannot fail.

The other four debutantes who are to adorn the row as hostesses are Miss Evelyn W. Preston, daughter of Ralph J. Preston, who has rented box No. 18; Miss Helen James, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. James, who have taken No 22; Miss Pauline Disston, daughter of Mrs. William Disston of Philadelphia, Newport, and this city, who will have the use of No. 23; and Miss Katherine Cumnock Blodgett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blodgett, who have No. 5 for the premiere and No. 15 for part of the Monday nights.

Miss Carnegie is supplementing this campaign of hers with one from a totally different angle. She has had her father buy a country house at the modest price of $400,000. One hundred thousand is to be spent in addition on fixing the place up. It is in Lenox, Mass., and—truly American as the situation is—Mr. Carnegie has never seen it. Miss Margaret went on before, she being the most important person to please in the transaction. She passed on the place, and as her decision was final her mother hurried up and signed the papers. Her father performed the purely masculine part in the transaction. He paid over the four hundred thousand.

There is only one private residence in America said to be larger, and that is Mrs. George Vanderbilt's at Asheville. None will be more picturesque by the time the one hundred thousand is spent on it. Not many young girls have such a setting for a courtship. I do wonder who the man will be and if the marriage will be happy.

A STORE FOR EVERYBODY

WASHINGTON SOCIETY by MME. Z.

Voters Desert Capital Until After Election.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.] — Election week, especially in a presidential year, finds Washington more or less an Adamless Eden. In official circles it is naturally almost de rigueur for the voters to go home to vote—or at least to go home with that avowed purpose. For it stands to reason that any office holder who is not sufficiently interested in the party's success to go home and do his durnedest to keep it in power does not deserve to be an office holder. To a certain extent those who are going take their wives along, for a few days at the old home, so that election time, every four year anyhow, recomes more or less "home coming week" all over the country.

Of course all the cabinet members and all the assistant secretaries, "unto the third and fourth generation," go, and the congressionals have been at home propping up their wabbly fences since early in September. But after next Tuesday the tide ill turn this way, and by the end of the month capital society will be ready for the fast and furious winter campaign which will terminate with the inauguration, regardless of who is to be inaugurated.

The cabinet set, and the White House family, may be expected back almost immediately after election.

Alterations at White House.

Mrs. Wilson, when she finally got started to the summer White House at Shadow Lawn, left instructions for certain minor alterations which she had planned, to be carried out in her absence. Chief of these, so far as they involve the parts of the executive mansion to which the general public is admitted, was the rearranging in one of the large ground floor rooms, which have been used on state occasions as cloakrooms for special guests, of the valuable collection of china, glass, and silver, used by former presidents.

This collection, started by Mrs. Roosevelt when she was chatelaine of the White House, now includes specimens of the tableware of practically every administration from George Washington to Woodrow Wilson. From small beginnings it has now attained such proportions as to have quite outgrown the series of cabinets placed along the lower corridor.

So that it was decided to give up one of the series of cloakrooms, directly under the state drawing rooms, for use as a museum. Along one side of the room cabinets have been built in, glass paned, and white enameled to match the rest of the room, and the collection has been transferred to them, and the room added to the portion of the White House which is daily open to the public during certain hours.

Prayer Rug Moved.

The lower corridor has been further enriched by transferring to it the $30,000 Persian prayer rug, presented to the White House in the Roosevelt administration and always an object of awed interest to the hundreds of tourists who visit the White House daily, since the guards never fail to dwell on the fact that it is valued at $30,000 and to point out that in certain parts of the design it is thickly studded with pearls and precious stones. So now it has been transferred to the lower corridor, where it will be more constantly accessible to the gaze of the admiring public. The floor? Dear me, no; the wall!

The tourist, by the way, no less than the permanent population of Washington, has been asking himself—and anybody else who happened to be within earshot—in accents of considerable amusement, "Who'll get the tulips?" Many have stood with faces pressed against the iron railing which surrounds the White House grounds watching the gardeners put in thousands of tulip bulbs for next spring's blossoming. As they certainly will not bloom before March 4, the general comment has been that either Mrs. Wilson has sublime faith in next Tuesday's results or she is a magnanimous lady to be having all those nice bulbs planted for Mrs. Hughes' benefit.

Hughes Girls at Home.

Miss Helen Hughes and little Miss Elizabeth have been in Washington for the last few weeks. The big sister brought the little one and placed her in school. For the time being, until after election—everything is "until after election" in Washington just now—little Miss Elizabeth is a boarding pupil there, and Miss Helen is staying in the neighborhood and having her meals at the school, by special arrangement. Or perhaps I should say, having some of her meals there. For Miss Helen is an active Y. W. C. A. worker and frequently when she happens to be down at association headquarters at mealtimes, eats in the association cafeteria. She "dresses" her own little tin tray and goes down the line to the steam table, elbow to elbow with such working girls and stenographers as frequent the bare little dining room in search of clean, wholesome food at a price not beyond their small means.

A 5 cent bowl of soup, some crackers at 2 for a cent, or bread at a penny a slice, with or without butter at a penny a pat, perhaps if she is feeling extravagant a salad at not more than 10 cents, and nearly always a wedge of pie for a nickel, seems to reach the spot just as effectively with this possible daughter of the White House as with any little errand girl from the neighboring stores.

The diplomatic circle is about complete—or rather, considering what a badly broken circle it is nowadays, perhaps it would be more accurate to say that all the pieces of it are here. There was considerable speculation as to just why Ambassador Sato, newly accredited here from Japan, was in such a tearing hurry to present his credentials to the president that he had to go to Shadow Lawn to do it, as he did last Monday. But you see Tuesday was the emperor's birthday, and it was desirable that the embassy should have an official head in good and regular standing for the celebration of that auspicious occasion. And until a newly appointed ambassador has been presented to the president he is not actually and completely ambassador.

So Ambassador Sato went to Shadow Lawn on Monday to present his credentials to the president and Tuesday he was at home at the embassy to such of his countrymen as cared to pay their respects. And Tuesday he entertained his entire staff at a splendid birthday dinner and they toasted the son of heaven and celebrated the glories of Japan in proper form, and the usually staid embassy in N street was gay with flags and ablaze with chrysanthemums.

It was purely a Japanese celebration, but one couldn't help feeling how truly considerate of the emperor to be born in chrysanthemum time, so that his embassy could be so beautifully and so appropriately decorated. And then one was told that he wasn't. He was born on the last day of August instead of the last day of October, but for some obscure reason of state, other than the fact that chrysanthemums are much finer in October, his official birthday is Oct. 31.

Mrs. Henry B. Cohen

The ladies' auxiliary of Temple Sholom is making plans for a "market and bargain day," to be given on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the temple. Cakes, books, ribbon novelties, candies, perfumes, and gifts of all kinds will be on sale. The women will also serve refreshments. Mrs. Henry B. Cohen is general chairman and Mrs. Henry B. Roth is her assistant.

CHILD HAD ECZEMA ABOUT 2 YEARS

In Form of Rough, Red Rash. Seemed to Itch and Burn. Hard, Dry Crusts Later. In 2 Months

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little daughter ten years old was troubled with eczema. The first appearance of the breaking out was in the form of a rough red rash which seemed to itch and burn so that she could not keep from scratching it. It took the form of hard dry crusts later. It was very irritating. Sometimes her clothing irritated so she could not rest very well. The trouble lasted about two years before using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used three large-sized cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and it took about two months to heal the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. Foote, Palmyra, Wis., Jan. 18, 1916.

THIS GETS A LAUGH FROM SOME IN VAUDEVILLE

PALACE.

Stella Mayhew and Billee Taylor:

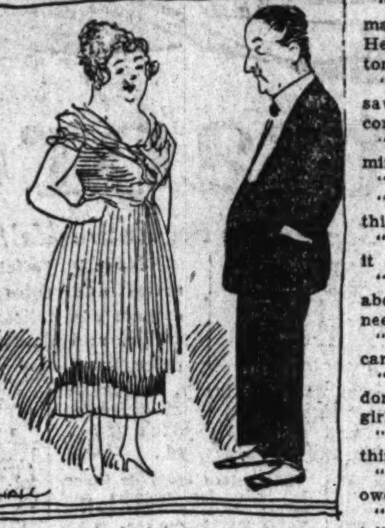
"Music intoxicates me."

"Where was the concert last night?"

"My dear, I was celebrating our seventh wedding anniversary. Didn't you get those paintings I sent home?"

"I certainly did."

"Good! I didn't have time to pick them out, so I left it to the clerk. I told him to send one for each room."



"I got them. Do you know what they were?"

"No."

"Seven famous battle scenes—one for each room. You also promised me a cake with a candle for each year of our happy wedded life on it."

"Didn't you get it?"

"Yes, but it only had a half a candle on it. You were out of town six months."

Moore, Gardner, and Rose:

"I've been married five years, and I just discovered that when I got married I got cheated."

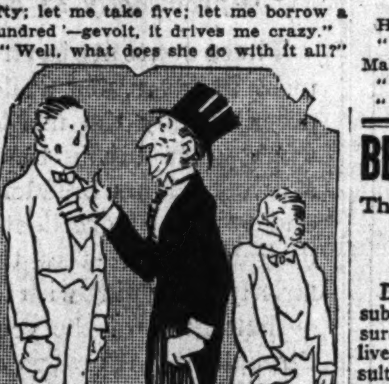
"How's that?"

"Well, they charged me $2 for a marriage license."

"What are you kicking about? Everybody has to pay it."

"I know, but I've been leading a dog's life. Every day my wife comes to me and says: 'Give me twenty; give me fifty; let me take five; let me borrow a hundred'—gevolt, it drives me crazy."

"Well, what does she do with it all?"



"I don't know; I never gave her any."

"You'll never go to heaven. I guess you'll go to the other place."

"Maybe. I own that place."

"You own it? How do you figure that?"

"My wife gave it to me the other day."

Huffard and Chain:

"What does your father do?"

"O, father sells drums in the winter."

"And what does he do in the summer?"

"He goes down to New York and lives on the sound."

McVICKER'S.

Goldsmith and Tinar:

"I want to ask you a question."

"What it ain't?"

"It is this. Why did you throw that man out of your store the other day? He wasn't a collector—he was a customer."

"Well, it was the second time I saw him in the store. A customer never comes there more than once."

"By the way, Jewish, I want to remind you of something."

"What it are?"

"What I want to remind you of is this: You owe me $30,000."

"I know it—but you don't have to tell it to everybody."

"Well, what are you going to do about it? I need the money now and I need it at once."

"But I ain't got the money now, so I can't pay."

"You cannot pay? Well, then, why don't you marry that eldest Epstein girl?"

"Why for should I marry that fat thing for?"

"She's worth twice the amount you owe me."

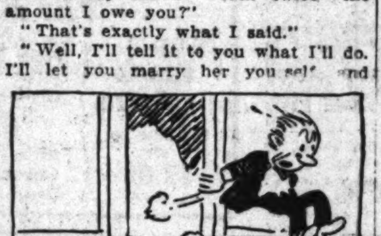
"Well, I can't marry her, but I'll tell you what I do it."

"What will you do?"

"You say she is worth twice the amount I owe you?"

"That's exactly what I said."

"Well, I'll tell it to you what I'll do. I'll let you marry her yourself and then you can pay it to me the difference."



"Say, what are you trying to hand me?"

"Well, ain't it just the same?"

McVICKERS.

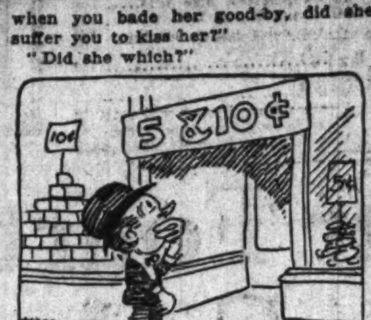
Herbert and Denis:

"I understand that you called on Mary McGinty last night."

"Sure, and I did do that."

"And when you left Mary last night, when you bade her good-by, did she suffer you to kiss her?"

"Did she which?"



"I said, when you bade Mary good-by last night, did she suffer you to kiss her?"

"Sure; I did give her a kiss or two; but I'm darn sure there wasn't much suffering about it."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

$20 Genuine Ajax Hair Mattresses, at 12.95

—Ninth Floor—

A year ago it was our good fortune to secure some nine tons of genuine "Ajax" hair at about half price. It was a purchase we had small hopes of ever duplicating, but a leading mattress manufacturer wanted to dispose of enough 'Ajax' hair for three hundred mattresses for spot cash, and so we've the good fortune to be able to repeat our sensational offering of a year ago—they're made of genuine Nubian black Ajax hair, which is thoroughly sterilized, cured and curled, the finest mattress filling to be had; never mats, packs or becomes lumpy, for genuine Ajax hair is always light and resilient; full forty pounds in weight, covered with best quality sateen ticking, stitched sides, close tufts, hand tied—mattresses that last practically forever; for the ticking can be washed without injury in any way to the hair, which dries out perfectly within a few hours. Nowhere else can you find such mattresses for less than $20.00. Very special tomorrow, at.......... 12.95

Bishop Nicholson to Dedicate New Dan Batey Mission

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

Bishop Tuttle

BISHOP THOMAS NICHOLSON of the Methodist Episcopal church will dedicate the new Dan Batey mission at 431 Wells street tomorrow evening. George W Dixon, president of the Chicago Home Missionary and Church Extension society, will preside and will introduce Bishop Nicholson.

It is expected there will be present a large gathering of ministers and church members from various parts of the city. The Rev. Dr. John Thompson and the Rev. Dan Batey will also speak. There will be solos by A. Lynn of Scotland and Mrs. R. G. Hoeft. Students from the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, will attend.

Today is to be observed as "Illinois day" in Disciple churches throughout the state. The object is to promote interest in the Illinois Christian Missionary society by reviewing the work already accomplished and to prepare for a series of district campaigns which will soon be inaugurated. The Rev. H. H. Peters, Illinois state secretary, is leading in the execution of the plan.

The Rev. Dr. Henry C. Mabie, who spoke every night last week except Saturday at the Second Baptist church, will be the speaker tomorrow at 10:30 at the Baptist ministers' meeting in the Masonic temple.

The Luther and Augustana leagues will celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of Martin Luther next Friday evening, the anniversary of Luther's birthday, in the Immanuel Swedish Lutheran church, Sedgwick and Hobbie streets.

The Rt. Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle is the presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church and bishop of Missouri. He will preach today at 11 o'clock in St. Simon's church, Leland and Racine avenues. The Rev. L. F. Potter, rector of St. Simon's, was formerly connected with the diocese of Missouri and was ordained by Bishop Tuttle.

Bishop Tuttle will be 80 years of age on Jan. 26. He celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his election to the episcopacy at the meeting of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church which was held in St. Louis Oct. 11 to 27. The general convention was held in St. Louis for this reason. He preached the opening sermon, one joint session of the convention, and a reception in Moolah temple were given in his honor. The corner stone of a church was laid on the concluding Friday of the convention which will be a memorial to his work as bishop. He has been presiding bishop for thirteen years. He is a graduate of Columbia university and the General Theological smnary, both of New York City.

The Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, bishop of Michigan of the Protestant Episcopal church, will be the speaker at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall this evening. His subject will be "Loyalty." David R. Forgan, president of the National City bank, will also take part in the program. In addition to an organ recital by Edgar A. Nelson, the musical program will include Chaminade's "Angelus," sung by the women's chorus, and a solo by Gustaf Holmquist.

The Rev. Arthur E. Leonard will preach today his first sermon as pastor of the First Congregational church of La Grange. He is a graduate of Ripon college and of the Chicago Theological seminary. He comes to La Grange from a pastorate in Eau Claire, Wis. Hhe Rev. Dr. E. N. Harvey some months ago resigned from the La Grange church after a service of five years.

The Rev. Dr. Ozora S. Davis, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, is occupying the pulpit of the Second Congregational church, Oak Park, while the church is seeking for a pastor to succeed the Rev. E. D. Gaylor, resigned.

Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford will speak at the Abraham Lincoln center, Oakwood boulevard and Langley avenue, today at 4 o'clock on the subject "Spiritual Internationalism," and in the evening at 8 o'clock in room 210 Masonic temple on "The New Civilization According to the Teachings of Abdul Baha." Mrs. Ford lectured on art at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

A three days' conference on religious education will be held by Presbyterians beginning today. The meetings will be held on the west side in the Austin church, on the south side in the Crerar church, and on the north side in the Buena Memorial church. Among the speakers will be the Rev. William Ralph Hall of the young people's department of the board, the Rev. Dr. R. W. Veach, educational superintendent of the Sunday school board, and the Rev. Dr. Gerrit Verkuyl, district superintendent of religious education. Meetings begin at 4 o'clock and continue through the evening, lunch being served in the churches.

The Rev. Norman Hutton, rector of St. Chrysostom's Protestant Episcopal church, 1424 Dearborn parkway, announces a new façade will be built to the church. It is expected to begin work in the spring. A subscription of $1,000 started the enterprise, which will now be pushed to completion. Evensong with special music will be resumed for the season today at 4 o'clock. A choir of thirty-five voices and soloists will sing.

Ageing, wrinkled skins

How to keep them young

As soon as you let your skin grow lax and sluggish, the tiny wrinkles, and then the bigger ones, will come.

But you can keep your skin so firm, so active that it will defy wrinkles and will retain its clear, smooth youthfulness. To do this, make the following Woodbury treatment a daily habit.

Bathe your face and neck with plenty of Woodbury's Facial Soap and hot water. If your skin has been badly neglected, rub a generous lather thoroughly into the pores using an upward and outward motion, until the skin feels somewhat sensitive. After this, rinse well in warm, then in cold water—the colder the better. Whenever possible, rub your skin for a few minutes with a lump of ice, and dry carefully.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. This treatment with it cleanses the pores, then closes them and brings the blood to the surface. Use it regularly and it will keep your skin so firm, so healthy and active that it will resist wrinkles and retain that fresh, clear youthful look you want it to have.

Do this today! A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment. Go to your druggist or toilet counter today and get a cake. Begin at once to get the benefits of this treatment for your skin.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is for sale by every dealer and druggist in Chicago and, in fact, by dealers everywhere throughout the United States and Canada. Made by The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ont., Canada.

Speaking of Coats—This Is Not Only a Sale—It's a Noteworthy Event!

We do not recall a season when the styles were so beautiful and the values seemed so excellent to us. It is possible that we are not entitled to the full credit for this, as we note that this season's styles are generally very handsome, but it is true that we have put in much more time and careful attention this season than ever before. We are determined to make this department the feature of our establishment—a pet, so to speak—and nothing is lacking in style, variety, quality, or value. We have really surprised ourselves. Come Monday, as we know you will be as pleased as we are.

For Goodness Sake and for Your Health's Sake

Rengo Belt Corsets

Second Floor, South End.

Are you deriving the right help from your corset—are you dressing at cross purposes with yourself—does it bring you relief when you put on your corset? Correct carriage—control of your nerves—a lithesome step—all, all are yours if support is forthcoming where most needed. Don't be skeptical—don't argue—don't infer—be assured there is a scientific corset to suit your build.

If you are vexed with superfluous tissue, there is a way to achieve immediate relief—if you are burdened with imperfect breathing, there's a good reason and a beneficent corrective measure available in these health corsets—Rengo belt corsets—the corset that builds you up—mentally and anatomically. Don't lag behind—if you want "go" in a corset—it's here for you in "Rengo."

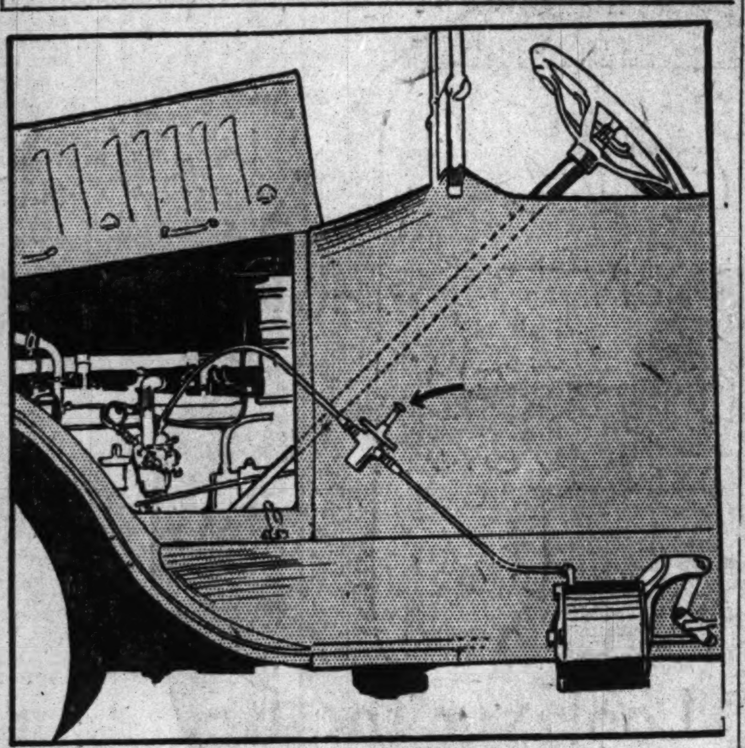
MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES

Conducted by J. C. Burton

Self-Stopper Is the Latest Device on Motor Market.



SELF-STARTING devices for automobiles have practically reached a stage of perfection, but it remained for the Prest-O-Lite company to develop and place on the market the first self-stopper, which it has just announced.

This latest automobile convenience is a vacuum brake which enables the motorist to bring his car to a gradual stop with ease and smoothness, or to stop it instantly with a minimum of personal effort. The effort necessary, in fact, is about the same as is required when operating the ordinary hand or foot accelerator, or sounding the horn. The driver is relieved of all physical strain, an advantage which will appeal to all motorists who have experienced the muscular tension of driving a heavy car down a long, steep grade.

It is claimed that the vacuum brake will be a boon to women drivers, many of whom haven't the physical strength to use the foot brake and bring the car to a sudden stop, and a welcome relief even to male drivers. With the vacuum brake "applying the brake" is just as easy as turning on a lighting switch.

The name of the new self-stopper is the Prest-O-Lite brake. It is a device of few parts and can be used on any make or model of car, large or small, having an ordinary foot brake.

The new brake operates on the same general principle as the vacuum gasoline feed, now widely used on automobiles, a device which makes it possible to draw gasoline from one tank to another located at a higher level. The entire outfit consists of a small special cylinder mounted on the frame or any convenient cross member of the chassis, and a copper tubing connection to the intake manifold of the engine, in which is located a simple valve, controlled by a lever or button convenient to the hand or foot. Inside the special cylinder is a plunger or piston which is connected to the brake rods already on the car.

When hand control is provided the lever is located on the steering column, and is operated in much the same way that the spark lever or the hand throttle is advanced or retarded. When foot control is provided, a button, similar to the foot accelerator, is located on the toe board.

The button or lever, as the case may be, is connected directly to the valve. When the valve is open, the vacuum which always exists in the intake manifold when the engine is running, exerts a powerful pull or suction in the plunger—a pull equivalent to ten pounds to the square inch, or 1,000 pounds. When the brake is not in use, in other words, when the valve is closed, the suction ceases and the plunger is pulled back in place by a spring. Of course when the engine is not running, the foot brake is not needed and the vacuum brake is not in operation. For this reason the hand or emergency brake is still needed to hold the car in position when left idle.

At present the device is being offered to motor car makers only, but the Prest-O-Lite company plans, later on, to offer it as well to the general public, with suitable braces for attachment to any car, old or new.

Exhaust Echoes

"Judging from the interest taken in the new Oakland six the people have come to the conclusion that a well built, comfortable, reliable light six is the logical car for the average person of reasonable means," says J. G. Tennant of the Tennant-Oakland company, 2447 Michigan avenue, where the new car is on view and has been surrounded by hundreds of motorists and prospective motorists. "The flexibility of the light six is just what is needed in a city like Chicago, for instance, where there is a continual slowing down and stopping and starting. That kind of work is harder on a car than plain, straight driving and tells on the nerves of the driver as well. The same applies in a country where there are stiff grades or hills—the six is so flexible that it avoids the necessity of continually changing gears to meet road conditions, which naturally saves the driver in an all day run."

George H. Wise, 75 years young, is the hero of an 8,000 mile automobile trip from San Diego, Cal., to his boyhood home at Machias, Me., and back to San Diego. Young Mr. Wise declared at the finish that the trip was worth waiting seventy-five years for, and that he had just as soon take it again. An interesting feature of the long journey was that the Kissel Kar in which Mr Wise traveled was driven the entire distance by a woman, Mrs. Charles H Otto. Her husband and two children accompanied them.

Irvin D. Rocap, technical expert for the King Motor Car company, recently gave a lecture on car identification to 200 traffic officers and 350 detective sergeants in Chicago, which is to be duplicated in cities in many sections of the country. In the last week the King company has had requests from Los Angeles, Louisville, Philadelphia, Denver, Minneapolis, and Milwaukee for lectures similar to the one given in Chicago and Mr. Rocap, on Monday at Los Angeles, started a tour of these and other cities desiring to include police schools in their departments. Taking the subject of car names, he instructs the police where the name may be found, the general outline and appearance of all makes of cars, and the various models, showing that the model or appearance usually tells the year the car was built. He tells of the factory or serial number, state and city license numbers, top numbers, motor, steering gear, carburetor, front axle and rear axle, radiator, ignition make, clutch, gearset, tires, speedometers, tire pump, lighting system, starting system, and shock absorber numbers, and how and where to find them.

"Opportunities for American business in India are greater today than ever before," according to C. C. Devore, Goodyear Tire and Rubber company representative at Bombay, India, who is spending a few days at the Goodyear factory at Akron, O. "There is a big field for automobiles in India," says Mr. Devore, "and they are being bought as fast as they can be shipped into the country. We have about 15,000 cars in India now, with American makes leading in numbers. Motoring is popular, as the roads are good. The chief highways are stone surfaced and are kept in good condition. We have been fortunate in escaping any curtailment of the importation of cars and have not been limited in our gasoline supply, although the price of gasoline is high. Many of the prominent Indians have enormous garages, with a magnificent collection of cars, including the costliest limousines. Usually European managers are found in charge of these garages, with servants designated as special chauffeurs."

"NO MAN TOP" MECHANISM

THE one man top, which many times did not live up to its name and gave innumerable and original cartoonists an opportunity to draw a picture of one male motorist and five female helpers attempting to raise it in a driving rainstorm, has a dangerous rival in the no man top, raised and lowered mechanically and adopted as standard equipment on the 1917 Marmon. This top, which is the accessory innovation of the year, is raised or lowered by power derived from the motor of the car. It is controlled by the driver in the seat, who need not stop the car to operate it. When the top is not in use it is wound around a roller and carried in a dustproof compartment at the rear of the machine.

Attack C. M. C. President.

WAR has been declared at the Chicago Motor club. Charles M. Hayes, president of the organization for three years and a probable candidate for reelection in February, is the target of the attack of an insurgent faction, led by J. Frank Meyer and George F. Kelly, two C M C directors.

The insurgents have made the first drive and plan to continue the attack until Hayes surrenders. They claim that the club, which has a paid membership of 3,600 and should be one of the most powerful automobile associations in the country, has become a one man organization, dominated by Hayes and used by him for personal publicity, financial gain, and political advancement and prestige, and that the C. M. C. is suffering as a result.

Among the many charges that the belligerent directors bring against the C. M. C. president are:

That he has traded advertising in the official organ of the club for automobiles.

That he has used club funds for the purchase of gasoline and tires and to pay other maintenance expenses.

That he uses steam roller tactics in presiding at directors' meetings.

That he refuses to permit the directors to inspect the books of the organization.

That he gave out the membership list of the club to the officials of the Chicago Democratic national headquarters and sent out campaign literature in the interest of Wilson and Marshall in envelopes addressed on the club's addressographing machine.

That he made the quarterly meeting of the club, held last Tuesday evening, a Democratic love feast, inviting only Democratic candidates for office—Secretary of State Lewis G. Stevenson, Superior Court Judge Joseph Sabath, and Assistant State's Attorney Walter Rooney—to address the members.

That he has led members to believe that the club is financially backing an interinsurance scheme which is run independent of the club and by Hayes for his personal gain.

That he has made the club magazine an advertising medium of Charles M. Hayes, nine of the twenty-one articles appearing in the October issue being signed by him and his name appearing in all of them.

The leaders of the insurgent faction, Meyer and Kelly, say that they have no axes to grind and are not seeking office.

To date Hayes, it is claimed, has ignored the many charges that have been brought against him. He has not even threatened to "knock the L out of Kelly," but in the clubrooms of the C. M. C. in the New Southern hotel loins are being girded for a fight to a finish.

By High Speed

I am about to join a party of friends on an automobile tour to the Pacific coast. We have gone over the maps and have about decided to follow the Lincoln highway throughout, but do not want to definitely settle upon that route until we get High Speed's opinion. We are planning to leave Chicago soon after Nov. 1. Will you please advise us if there is a better route than the Lincoln highway? L. P. STARRETT, Chicago.

I am glad you wrote me before starting on your contemplated trip, as I believe I can prevent you from running into difficulties that easily may be avoided. Although several sections of the Lincoln highway are not in any too good shape, the route is well marked and is easily followed, and, therefore, would prove best for a summer or early fall trip to the coast. But to follow it after Nov. 1 would be most unwise, as one would stand little chance of getting through the mountains without becoming stalled in the snow. If you have already mapped out your route via the Lincoln highway, you might follow it as far as Big Springs, Neb., or even to Cheyenne, Wyo. From either of those points leave the highway, which does not enter the state of Colorado. At Cheyenne you could take the Great Plateau highway and go south through Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, and Trinidad to Santa Fe, at which point the Santa Fe trail should be picked up and followed to the coast. The Santa Fe trail undoubtedly is the best winter route to California. An article on this trail, together with a map of the route, was published on Oct. 8, and a copy may be had by applying to this office.

Please inform me through the medium your valued column the most direct route and the distance from Chicago to Muskegon, Mich.

C. M. CLEMMENS, Harvey, Ill.

The distance from Chicago to Muskegon is 249¼ miles, divided as follows: South Chicago, Hammond, Calumet, Gary, East Gary, Porter, Michigan City, 62.7 miles; New Buffalo, Three Oaks, Galien, Glendora, Baroda, Stevensville, St. Joseph, 45.5 miles; Benton Harbor, Riverside, Coloma, Watervliet, Covert, South Haven, Douglas, Saugatuck, Holland, West Olive, Grand Haven, Ferrysburg, Muskegon, 100.7 miles.

Where does the Santa Fé trail begin and how may it be reached with the least mileage? Please print the answer in your Sunday column, together with the principal places passed through on the way from Chicago to San Diego or Los Angeles. MISS C. McD., Chicago.

The Santa Fé trail starts at Kansas City. The most direct way to reach it is via Aurora, Davenport, and Ottumwa. From Kansas City the trail runs through Emporia, Newton, Hutchinson, Great Bend, Dodge City, Syracuse [Kas.], La Junta, Pueblo, Trinidad [Colo.], Las Vegas, Santa Fé, Albuquerque, Socorro, and Magdalena [N. M.]. At Springfield, Ariz., is the junction of the two branches running to the coast. One branch continues southwest through Phoenix, Palomas, Yuma, and El Centro to San Diego and then on up to Los Angeles. The northern branch, which includes the Grand Cañon, passes through Concho, Winslow, Flagstaff, Grand Cañon, Yucca, Barstow, and San Bernardino to Los Angeles. A detailed description of the trip, together with a map, was published on Oct. 8.

Studebaker

Before December 1st You Will Have to Pay $75 to $100 More for Your Studebaker

Our allotment of cars at the present prices is very limited—and these are the last we'll have before the increase!

For the past two years practically every material entering into the construction of automobiles has steadily gone up in price—and manufacturing costs have increased along with it. Steel of all kinds, pig iron, castings, stampings, sheet metal, aluminum, leather and upholstering materials have all advanced in price from 40% to 150%.

The unlimited purchasing power of this great organization, its huge reserve stocks and long time contracts have been important factors in the continued low prices of Studebaker cars.

But now even Studebaker must charge more for its product. The enormous production of the Studebaker plants—a production that has made Studebaker the world's largest producers of fine cars—has exhausted many of the materials on hand. Consequently the price must be advanced proportionately with the increase in the cost of manufacturing under prevailing conditions.

The new prices of Studebaker cars will be from $75 to $100 over existing prices. To maintain the high quality of Studebaker cars this increase in price is necessary—because under no circumstances will Studebaker sacrifice quality. In every instance where Studebaker continues to buy at old prices, on long time contracts, or continues to manufacture certain parts from reserve stocks on hand, the public will be given the full advantage of this condition.

If you want to buy a Studebaker at present low price, and save from $75 to $100, better come in at once.

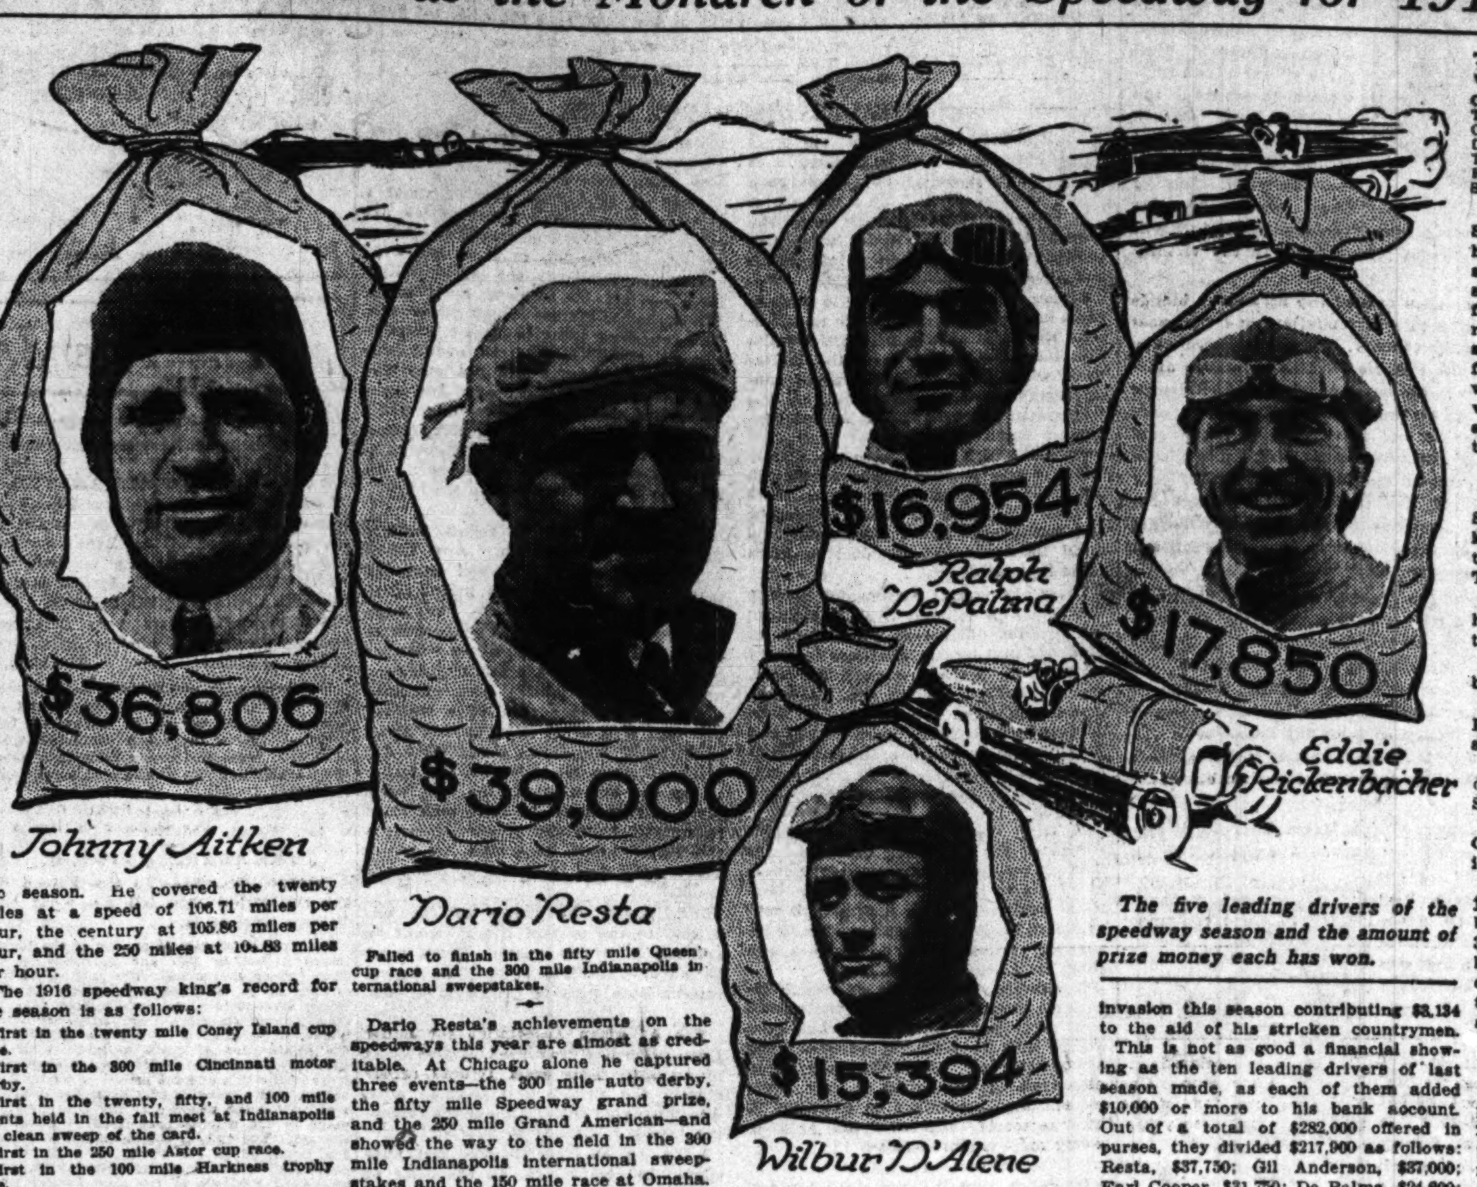
Johnny Aitken Holds Title as the Monarch of the Speedway for 1916 Season.



Failed to finish in the fifty mile Queen's cup race and the 300 mile Indianapolis international sweepstakes.

The five leading drivers of the speedway season and the amount of prize money each has won.

INDIANA, which measures the fame of many of its native sons in poetical feet, now can gauge the greatness of one of them in time conquered miles, for Johnny Aitken of Indianapolis, with seven victories and two seconds to his credit out of eleven starts since May, is the speedway monarch of the 1916 season.

At the wheel of a blue Peugeot, Aitken rode to his Durbar at Sheepshead Bay on Oct. 28, when he captured the final and deciding event of the speedway racing season of the Rock mountains, the 100 mile contest for the Harkness trophy, and humbled his most dangerous rival for the title, Dario Resta.

The battle royal between Aitken and Resta for the speedway championship was just as close as is their fight for the A. A. A. title, which will be decided in two weeks at Santa Monica, where the only two road races of the year, the classics for the Vanderbilt cup and the grand prize, will be run.

Aitken triumphed by a Garrison finish. Up until two months ago, Resta looked to have the honors clinched, but in September and October, the Indianapolis driver scored six of his seven victories, conquered the foreign star three times while bowing in defeat before him only once, and more than overcame the commanding lead of Dario the Great, established earlier in the season.

Somewhere it is writ that the early bird gets the worm, but Aitken doubts the truth of the copybook axiom.

Close as the championship fight was, Aitken's claim to the speedway title is secure. The official records of 1916 put him on the throne jointly occupied by Gil Anderson and Eddie Rickenbacher last year, without a dispute. The Hoosier captured seven of the twenty-three events on the season's schedule, while Resta took only five. Moreover, Johnny has forced Dario to acknowledge defeat in three of the five races in which they have flung a challenge at one another. The Anglo-Italian, on the other hand, can point to only two victories over Aitken and one of them was by a margin of seconds only.

Aitken's crown is studded with other jewels—records that he made in the twenty mile Coney Island cup, 100 mile Harkness trophy, and 250 mile Astor cup races, the three fastest events of the season. He covered the twenty miles at a speed of 106.71 miles per hour, the century at 105.86 miles per hour, and the 250 miles at 10[illegible].83 miles per hour.

The 1916 speedway king's record for the season is as follows:

First in the twenty mile Coney Island cup race.

First in the 300 mile Cincinnati motor Derby.

First in the twenty, fifty, and 100 mile events held in the fall meet at Indianapolis—a clean sweep of the card.

First in the 250 mile Astor cup race.

First in the 100 mile Harkness trophy race.

Second to De Palma in the 150 mile Twin City race.

Second to De Resta in the 250 mile Grand American race.

Dario Resta's achievements on the speedways this year are almost as creditable. At Chicago alone he captured three events—the 300 mile auto derby, the fifty mile Speedway grand prize, and the 250 mile Grand American—and showed the way to the field in the 300 mile Indianapolis international sweepstakes and the 150 mile race at Omaha.

Aginst these five victories are four blots on the Italian's 'scutcheon—his failure to finish in the 150 mile Metropolitan trophy race, the 300 mile Cincinnati derby, the 250 mile Astor cup event, and the 100 mile contest for the Harkness trophy, the last three of which were won by Aitken.

Although forced to pay allegiance to Aitken as the 1916 speedway king, Resta can find much consolation in the boast that he won two of the three richest races of the year, the 300 mile events at Indianapolis and Chicago, for each of which the promoters hung up $30,000 in prize money. Of this total sum of $60,000 Dario carried away $25,000 in certified checks—$12,000 at the Hoosier metropolis and $13,000 here. Moreover, Resta's five victories had a greater monetary value than did Aitken's seven triumphs and two seconds. The Italian added $39,000 to his obese bank roll; Aitken's purse winnings for the season amount to $36,806. It was a season of prosperity for both of them.

In their fight for the championship Aitken and Resta won more than half the speedway races on the 1916 schedule, taking twelve out of the twenty-three events on the card. Six other drivers can boast of one or more victories. Ralph De Palma took four events—the 150 mile contests at the Twin Cities and Des Moines, the fifty mile race at Omaha, and the 100 mile inaugural on the Kansas City dirt course. Eddie Rickenbacher was hailed in triumph twice, capturing the 150 mile Metropolitan trophy race and the 300 mile Tacoma Montamarathon, and Howdy Wilcox annexed the twenty and fifty mile contests at Sioux City. Wilbur D'Alene was first in the ten mile dash at Sioux City, Ralph Mulford led the field home in the fifty mile race for the Queen's cup, and Jules De Vigne carried away the honors in the fifty mile consolation event for the nonwinners of the Harkness trophy contest.

Although he won only one race, Wilbur D'Alene is deserving of a special encomium for his consistency. Until he broke with Fred Duesenberg prior to the Astor cup event, he made a splendid record and was the surprise de luxe of the year. Coming from the Pacific coast unheralded in the spring, he soon was looked upon as one of the most dangerous drivers on the gasoline circuit, and out of twelve starts finished inside the prize mone in nine contests, taking a first, three seconds, a third, two fourths, a fifth, and a seventh with a Duesenberg.

In addition to Resta and Aitken there are three other drivers—Rickenbacher, De Palma, and D'Alene—who need have no fear of the wolf scratching at their doors this winter. This quintet won $126,004 in prize money, or more than half of the total purses hung up by the ten speedways for the twenty-three races. The individual dividends accruing to each member of the affluent five are as follows: Resta, $39,000; Aitken, $36,806; Rickenbacher, $17,850; De Palma, $16,954, and D'Alene, $15,394.

Five other drivers each received $6,000 or more in return for their skill and daring, their winnings being: Frank Galvin, $8,750; Pete Henderson, $6,750; Dave Lewis, $6,586; Ralph Mulford, $6,450, and Josef Christiaens, $6,268.

One-half of Christiaens' winnings went to the Belgian relief fund, the only foreign driver to make an American invasion this season contributing $3,134 to the aid of his stricken countrymen.

This is not as good a financial showing as the ten leading drivers of last season made, as each of them added $10,000 or more to his bank account. Out of a total of $282,000 offered in purses, they divided $217,900 as follows: Resta, $37,750; Gil Anderson, $37,000; Earl Cooper, $31,750; De Palma, $24,600; Rickenbacher, $24,000; Eddie O'Donnell $19,000; Tom Alley, $12,200; Jean Porporato, $11,000; Bob Burman, $10,000, and Tom Rooney, $10,000.

More drivers shared in the division of the prize money this season than last, however. In addition to the ten leading purse winners, thirty-one others received some financial reward in 1916, while last year only thirty-five gasoline gladiators in all competed for something besides fame and glory.

Although twenty-three races were held this season, compared to fourteen in 1915, and two new tracks, Cincinnati and Kansas City, were added to the speedway circuit, the total purses offered this year, amounting to $219,563.33, were not as large as the prize money of twelve months ago, when the promoters hung up $282,000 and paid out $270,700. This reduction was the result of a policy of economy adopted by the impresarios, who cut the purses as well as the distances of their races.

New York was the most generous with prize money, the Sheepshead Bay promoters offering $57,800 for five races. Chicago staged three events, for which a total of $55,000 was paid out to drivers, and the Indianapolis speedway owners hung up $42,000 for the international sweepstakes and the fall meet.

The purses offered by the other speedways are as follows:

Cincinnati	$27,200.00
Tacoma	10,000.00
Omaha	7,600.00
Des Moines	8,000.00
Twin Cities	6,844.88
Kansas City	5,500.00
Sioux City	1,637.45

The Peugeot was the champion car of Speedway competition in 1916, falling heir to the laurels that Stutz won last season. The Gallic thoroughbred of steel, driven by Aitken, Resta and Mulford, took thirteen of the twenty-three races on the schedule. Germany takes second place by virtue of De Palma's four victories with the Mercedes. Maxwell and Premier are tied for third, each with two triumphs, while a Duesenberg and a Delage each showed the way to the field in one contest.

Of the seventy drivers competing in Speedway events this season, one was killed and four mechanicians paid for the thrills of the game with their lives. The 1916 Speedway victims are:

Rexy Pelotti, mechanician for Limberg, and killed in same accident.

Dan Columbo, mechanician for Aldo Franchi, crushed to death when Peusun turned turtle at Omaha.

Roy Shields, mechanician for Gil Anderson, suffered fatal injuries when Stutz turned over at Cincinnati.

Ralph Hetlich, fatally burned when Crawford caught on fire in Grand American race, Chicago.

Three other drivers were seriously injured—Jack Lecain and Tom Rooney being taken to the hospital before the 300 miles were covered in the Indianapolis sweepstakes, and Gil Anderson, one of the Speedway champions of 1915, sustaining fractures and bruises in the inaugural races on the Cincinnati oval.

A class in "automobile tactics" for women Allen owners and drivers is planned by the Chicago Allen company, 2326 Michigan avenue. "There are plenty of women driving automobiles nowadays," says J. M. Cram, secretary-treasurer of the concern, "but if the truth be told few of them know much about their cars except that pushing a button starts the engine and that pushing a lever regulates speed. The average woman's knowledge of the automobile is highly superficial. We have found also that where the mechanics of the gasoline engine, the transmission, and chassis construction were explained simply the woman driver grasped the information quite as readily as would a man."

According to William F. Pfeiffer, the Miller Rubber company, Akron, O., now manufactures over 70 per cent of all the automobile tires.

The Harkness trophy race at Sheepshead Bay on Oct. 28 recorded another achievement for Goodyear cord tires. With eight cars in a field of twenty-one starters, the first five cars over the line bore this equipment.

With the acquisition of a plant in the heart of Detroit's east side automobile manufacturing district, the Columbia Motors company has just made the initial move towards sending forth to dealers throughout the country the Columbia light six, a five passenger car to be priced at about $1,000.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Louis G. Stevenson, candidate for reelection as secretary of state on the Democratic ticket, is "stealing Tom Hay's stuff." In campaign addresses he is recommending what the local Chandler distributor advocated six months ago—the establishment of a branch office in Chicago for the registration of automobiles and the issuance of state licenses.

Charles Dashiell, local representative of the Dodge, received word from Detroit last week that the Dodge company had passed the 100,000 production mark, this number of machines having been made in the last twenty-two months.

E. M. Lubeck, sales and service expert in the motor industry, is now associated with the Louis Geyler company, Hudson distributor for Chicago and vicinity.

Percy Owen of the Liberty Motor Car company has announced the appointment of Robert W. Mickam as advertising manager of that company.

A mysterious letter written by W. G. Tennant of the Tennant-Oakland company to the present Chicago owners of Oaklands, telling that the new Oakland Six would be shown privately, in advance of the public announcement, resulted in a jam that amounted to a small sized, good natured riot. A row of cars on both sides of the street for a block each way lined Michigan avenue in front of the company's salesrooms, while a crowd of several hundred people waited for admission.

L. J. Ollier of the Studebaker corporation has announced that on or about Dec. 1 prices of Studebaker cars, both the four and the six, would advance from $75 to $100 over prevailing prices.

The new Peerless service station, which will be opened this week by the Hughey Motor Car company, local distributor of the Peerless eight, is located at 2434-2436 South Park avenue, four blocks east of the Michigan avenue salesrooms of this company. It will have an inovation in the form of a special waiting room for women.

Expansion of the Olds Motor works, in preparation for the manufacture of 20,000 automobiles next year, is being accomplished rapidly. The production schedule, calling for practically twice as many cars as were built in the last twelve months, means, of course, a great extension of the activities of the plant. Fifty thousand square feet will be added to the working floor space.

Another Royal Record by 'Royal Cord' Tires

Chicago to Indianapolis in 3 hours and 42 minutes
Best previous record 5 hours

E. G. (Cannon Ball) Baker has just accomplished this feat on the same 'Royal Cord' Tires used on his record-breaking trip from Detroit to Indianapolis.

These same tires have now traveled 931 miles at racing speed, over country roads.

Which is simply added proof of the wonderful road-resisting power of this monarch of all cord tires.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

VOTE FOR HUGHES AND A REPUBLICAN CONGRESS.

It is dawning upon us in America that the world war is not a mere vast destruction. As we study the conditions developing in the combatant nations, we realize that in the midst of the tremendous material expenditures, and primarily to meet them, there is going on a process of moral stimulation and of material organization that will not only largely offset the drain upon the resources of the nations but will bring forth a Europe—to say nothing of Japan—depleted, indeed, in some degree in population and burdened with serious financial charges, but possessing an organization of its powers more thorough and more formidable than the world has ever seen before.

In the United States alone this situation is reversed. There are with us immense wealth, relaxed morale, and inefficient organization.

The fundamental issue of this campaign is whether we shall "let well enough alone"—which to those who can see beneath the false surface of our condition means to let ill enough alone—or we shall prepare efficiently and resolutely a strong America, able morally and materially to hold its own among the great nations and the greater alliances which the world war is preparing.

The effect of the Wilson administration has been the enfeebling of the nation in its foreign relations and in its domestic constitution. Our moral influence in the world has been shamefully diminished, our national strength has not been increased, our national morale has been vitiated, our standards of public efficiency have been lowered. The United States is deplorably weaker in every essential except mere financial resource.

The necessity of preparedness, in its broadest sense, is the paramount duty. The Wilson administration has prepared us neither for war nor peace. Its eleventh hour army and navy measures, passed only under the spur of an aroused public opinion, provide for large expenditures of money. But the naval plans will take years to carry out and may be arrested at any time at the will of the president. The army plans are already breaking down. Under the conditions laid down even the inadequate increase of the regular army is not being made, recruiting falling far below the necessary numbers. Meanwhile the national guard is threatened with dissolution because of the demonstrated injustice and inefficiency of the volunteer system. A pacifist is secretary of war, appointed for his oratorical skill. A superficial theorist and southern politician is secretary of the navy.

As we are not prepared for the war of arms, we are not and shall not be prepared to meet the shock of the war of trade. The Democratic party is opposed in principle to protection. Yet that principle sincerely, not half heartedly, but rationally applied will soon be more urgently needed by American business and the American people than ever before. Already the European powers, including even free trade England, have embarked on elaborate plans for individual and mutual protection and for aggressive trade conquest throughout the world. Already they are organizing their resources so that they may be turned promptly from the necessities of war to the not less urgent necessities of peace. America with her huge amassment of wealth is the greatest trade prize in the world. Upon American business will fall the full brunt of organized Europe.

American labor will get little consolation from the Adamson law if our doors are to be left open for the competition of all European labor.

Ten years ago, when progressivism was fighting its critical battles, Charles Evans Hughes was in the thick of the fight, one of its most formidable champions. The worst twaddle in the campaign against him today is the pretense that he is surrounded by reaction or can ever be controlled by powers of predatory privilege. His whole record, his proved character, is a complete answer to such a charge.

Examine that record in brief. During his epoch making terms as governor of New York he championed, against the most powerful organized opposition in the country, the direct primary, publicity of campaign contributions, and other electoral reforms, conservation, civil service, protective immigration laws, control of public utilities, protection of insurance holders, and social justice laws which were pioneer in the field. At the close of his administration he was acclaimed by labor "the greatest friend of labor laws who ever sat in the governor's chair at Albany."

If this is not to be a progressive worthy of the confidence of every American liberal, whatever his party, there is no such thing as progressivism.

But there is a higher reason for our confidence in Mr. Hughes than any derived from these acts. The gravest peril to every democracy is the domination of the commonweal by organized faction and the overthrow of public principle by uninformed impulse. Upon this weakness the demagogue plays, the selfish opportunist yields.

There is no finer exhibition of high minded courage and devotion to principle in the face of unwise clamor than Mr. Hughes' veto of a 2 cent fare law passed without investigation. It brought upon him a storm of unjust and unthinking condemnation, which he foresaw and met without flinching, telling his critics: "It may seem easy to get votes by just getting a pair of shears and a red book and clipping wherever you think it would be popular. I do not want to be governor on those terms. I won't sign any bill simply because it may be deemed popular. On the contrary, I will sign anything that I can think is in the interests of the people and veto anything I think is not in the interests of the people if I believe it to be right."

There is absolutely nothing in the whole theory or practice of government so vital as this. Nothing in our institutions is so important as to place in office men who will refuse to be the agents of those popular impulses of which we all at times are guilty, though later we see their injustice or folly. Nothing will quicker bring complete disaster to a democracy than the government of men who will concede to organized minorities or even to unjust majorities what justice and the commonweal would refuse.

There are in this nation today forces of disintegration which will destroy it if they are not courageously combated. In the face of the iron unity of our international rivals we present an ominous discordance. We need strength and loyalty to the commonweal in our leaders more than at any time in our history since the rebellion of the south.

There is no assurance of this to be found in the records of the Wilson administration. There is every assurance of it in the record of Charles Evans Hughes and the history of the Republican party.

THE YELLOW CAMPAIGN.

When any sensible person considers what President Woodrow Wilson has done and said in the last two years and then considers that there may be four years more of it, the emotion is genuinely one of fear.

President Wilson has one class of Americans shivering in their boots. They will admit it. They are the Americans who fear that if he is reelected he will continue to try to destroy the morale of the nation, continue to neglect its defenses, continue to spoon platitudes into the national sentimentalism, continue to destroy the respect in which other nations ought to hold so powerful a country.

They fear that he will invite disaster. They fear that he will have four more years when the United States will face the greatest trials it has known since the civil war.

The United States must be a compact organization, resolute and determined, if it is to get through the impending period. Mr. Wilson has failed to show the slightest comprehension of the realities of normal expectancy. Nero fiddled and Mr. Wilson philosophizes.

The defects are fundamental. They exist in the man. They are fundamental in his party. They exist in it. They are the defects which Jefferson had in himself and inculcated in the party. Wilson and his party are unfit to take a nation through a fierce competition. Neither man nor party understand a nation.

When a cursory philosopher undertakes the wholly practical obligation of protecting the welfare and prospects of a nation he is certain to be found, as Mr. Wilson has been found, feeding the appetite of the people for phrases and neglecting to do the things which their security as an organized body of people demands.

Thus we find Mr. Wilson distributing phrases when any practical and less rhetorical person would have been pounding tacks. Mr. Wilson's office is not an oratorical office. It is an administrative office. He is not accountable to mankind. He is accountable to the American people.

With his shirking of practical details which must chiefly concern a nation he has tried to break down the stamina of the people. He has a wholly false conception of his position. He is not regulating the world. He is managing the affairs of Americans. They gave him that duty.

He was almost invincibly opposed to proper measures of protection. He consults beatitudes and neglects his plain duty. He was the first man in the United States to say that the nation in its weak estate was properly defended and the last man in the United States to admit that it might need more defenses. With the world afire he has fiddled.

He has diminished the respect in which weak nations held the United States. He has increased the disrespect in which strong nations held the United States. He has talked of humanity and has failed in every important respect to serve it.

The breaking down of a nation's prestige is a serious enough matter. It is serious enough that by trifling with the Mexicans we should have lost even their respect. Does any one think, after what has been done by the American government, that even a greaser respects American purpose and resolution? It is serious enough even for a determined nation to have its affairs so managed that it appears weak and irresolute. It is more serious when, as a cover for this irresoluteness, the inspirer of the irresolution endeavors to convince the people that the passive mood is heroic.

Mr. Wilson's administration not only failed to take into account the material and physical needs of the United States but it is endeavoring, as an excuse for its neglect of these material and physical needs, to break down the resolution and courage of the American people.

Mr. Wilson's administration, knowing that it has failed to prepare the people, as an organization, for an emergency, is trying to destroy their native resolve to meet an emergency.

We believe that the Wilson administration has proved to be a thoroughly demoralizing influence in the lives of the American people. We believe that the American people in these heroic times, when other peoples have given the best that is in them to what they regard as the best in worldly affairs that can exist for them—that in these times the American people have been urged by their government to a coddling, yellow sentimentalism which will make them tragic trouble.

We hold Mr. Wilson and his cursory philosophizing, the Democratic party and its lack of nationalistic impulse, responsible for this. We hold this vague and indiscriminate emotionalism responsible for the fact that an American is now regarded generally as but little more important than a Chinaman and, sincerely holding this opinion, we are violent in expression.

We regard Mr. Wilson as a disaster. We should regard his reelection as a disaster. And, being of this opinion, we are violent in expression. If, having this conviction, we were not violent we also should be yellow.

President Wilson has suggested only one distinct thought to the American people. That thought is he kept us out of war. That thought is yellow.

Editorial of the Day

AN EASY MARK.

[From the Topeka Capital.]

A manufacturer is quoted in an eastern exchange as saying that he was always for a tariff, but now he is convinced that there is nothing in the theory that the Democratic idea of tariff makes for low prices. This manufacturer may be an excellent manufacturer, but should be deprived of his franchise as being plainly unfit to use it. The Democrats themselves say their tariff idea is for low prices. That is its sole purpose. They were going to lower the cost of living. If this manufacturer wants to know why prices are high, why foreign competition has not forced low prices, let him ask himself the simple question, where the foreign countries are that are producing competitive goods. They have temporarily quit business. War has shut them down.

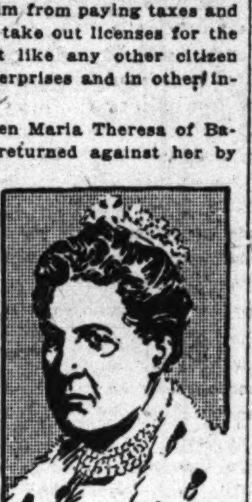
EMPEROR WILLIAM enjoys the distinction of being the first monarch to penalize flirting as a criminal offense. This is not a story invented by the allies, but is taken from reliable German newspapers, which announce that three of their countrywomen, residents in the outskirts of Cassel, have been arrested and sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from three to six months for flirting with French prisoners of war interned in the great prison camp in the vicinity of Cassel.

Hungary furnishes one of the strangest blends in the world of medieval feudalism and the most radical forms of democracy. Some years ago when the late Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose murder at Sarajevo in the summer of 1914 precipitated the present war, wished to have some newspapers at Budapest which had attacked him, prosecuted for lese majesty, the government declined to accede to his wishes, and intimated to him that his only means of redress was to start proceedings for slander and libel against the paper concerned, just as if he had been an ordinary, everyday citizen instead of the heir to the crown.

The late Archduke Joseph, who made his home in Hungary and who was celebrated for his wonderful knowledge of the Tsiganes, of their history, customs, and language, also found the fact of his being a member of the reigning house was not sufficient to relieve him from paying taxes and from being compelled to take out licenses for the distilling of spirits, just like any other citizen engaged in distilling enterprises and in other industries.



And now we have Queen Maria Theresa of Bavaria having a verdict returned against her by the Hungarian tribunals. The queen, who is by birth an archduchess of Austria-Hungary and a half sister of the queen mother of Spain and of Archduke Frederick, the generalissimo of the army of the dual empire, inherited from her Hapsburg father a large estate at Sawar, in Hungary, of which she is very fond and where she and her husband were staying when the latter was overtaken by the death of his father, the late Prince Regent Luitpold. It is a productive estate, owing to the extremely up to date and scientific methods of agriculture inaugurated by King Louis and his queen there.

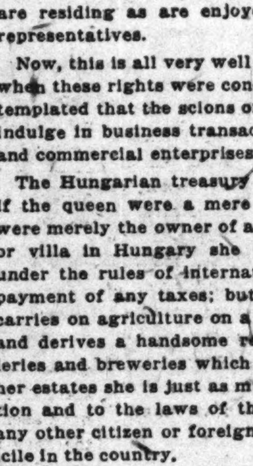
Since the beginning of the present war Queen Maria Theresa's duties have kept her at Munich, where the king is likewise tied down by his manifold activities when not engaged in visiting his troops on the various fronts. In the early part of last year the Hungarian government secured the enactment of a law at Budapest, providing that the absentee owners of estates within the kingdom of Hungary should pay throughout the duration of the war treble the ordinary amount of taxes.

Against this Queen Maria Theresa has rebelled, and accordingly the Hungarian revenue authorities have obtained from the lower courts at Budapest a judgment against her which authorizes them to seize and sell her property at auction to the highest bidder unless she pays.

The queen, however, has announced her determination to carry the case to the highest courts of appeal and to invoke that provision of international law which provides that members of foreign reigning dynasties shall enjoy the same ex-territorial privileges and immunities from the jurisdiction of the tribunals of the country in which they are residing as are enjoyed by their diplomatic representatives.

Now, this is all very well in ordinary cases. But when these rights were conceded it was never contemplated that the scions of foreign royalty would indulge in business transactions and in industrial and commercial enterprises.

The Hungarian treasury takes the ground that if the queen were a mere visitor or even if she were merely the owner of a nonproductive chateau or villa in Hungary she might be emancipated under the rules of international comity from the payment of any taxes; but from the moment she carries on agriculture on a large and paying scale and derives a handsome revenue from the distilleries and breweries which she has established on her estates she is just as much amendable to taxation and to the laws of the Magyar kingdom as any other citizen or foreigner having a legal domicile in the country.



It has recently become known that Sir William Dunn, the new lord mayor of London, whose inauguration takes place next Thursday, won his election to office by the narrow majority of one vote, cast by his predecessor, the incumbent of the chief magistracy of the city.

As a general rule the election of a lord mayor is a matter of mere form, and either unanimous or almost so. But there seems to have been a considerable amount of opposition to Sir William, mostly of a sectarian order.

His father was connected with the management of the huge estates of the Duke of Norfolk, premier peer of the realm and acknowledged leader of the Roman Catholic aristocracy of England, and Sir William himself grew up, therefore, to a great extent, under the auspices of the ducal house of Howard, the heads of which took a personal interest in his education.

On the occasion of his election the other day the proceedings were presided over by the outgoing lord mayor, and when they culminated in a tie it was the present lord mayor who gave the casting vote in his favor.

The result is that Sir William Dunn is now known as "the lord mayor's lord mayor" it being understood that this is the first occasion on which a chief magistrate of the city of London has been virtually called upon to determine the selection and the appointment of his successor in office.

HEALTH INSURANCE NEXT.

HEALTH insurance is the next great step in social legislation, is a recent declaration of Surgeon General Blue. This opinion is concurred in by most men who have given thought to social legislation. It behooves the politician to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

Recent congresses and state legislatures have shown a disposition to undertake the consideration of social legislation measures. In spite of the limitations which arise from the small consideration given social welfare by the framers of the constitution recent congresses have passed social legislation measures which are at once moderately effective and constitutionally sound. In the next presidential campaign there will be discussion of health insurance and the prospective congressman and state legislator will do well to learn what it is all about.

There are several reasons for holding that Surgeon General Blue is right in his opinion. There is some form of governmental health insurance in every country in Europe except Portugal, Spain, Italy, Montenegro, Albania, Greece, Bulgaria, and Turkey. In Sweden, France, Iceland, Switzerland, and Belgium the system is a subsidized voluntary health insurance. In the remaining countries health insurance is compulsory.

In Italy there is compulsory health insurance for maternity cases and for railroad employés; in France, for miners and seamen; in Denmark, for alien seasonal workers, and in Switzerland several cantons have compulsory health insurance. It has proved advantageous in those countries.

In Germany the series of health insurance measures began in the middle '70s, forty years ago. There has been ample time to judge of whether they are good or not. Since Germany began this type of legislation it has never shown any disposition to abandon it. The successive measures are progressively more comprehensive.

In March, 1916, William Hard wrote of health insurance in Germany under the title "Who Keeps the Watch on the Rhine?" He takes as his special theme the Federation of Leipzic Sick Funds. This federation spends $1,750,000 a year. One-third of this the employé pays. He may want to pay, and most of them do, but whether he wants to or not he must pay. Although he pays only one-third he has two-thirds of the management. The employer pays one-third, whether he wants to or not. He furnishes one-third of the governing body. If an employer is selected to serve on a managing board he must serve whether he wants to do so or not.

The federation not only maintains hospital beds, it maintains laboratories, baths, Swedish movement institutions, sanitaria, and homes for convalescents. However, far more important than the provisions for the complete restoration to health of those who are sick are those indirect effects of the European health insurance which show themselves in the reduction of illness.

William Hard says that if you pass a law saying that all tanneries shall be sweet and wholesome places you will need an army of inspectors to enforce the law. Court calendars will be cluttered up with cases against tanneries. Suppose instead, he says, you pass a law saying that an employment in which there is a heavy sickness rate shall pay extra taxes. At once, Mr. Tanner says, "that sickness rate is getting to be terribly high. The premiums we have to pay are awful. Everybody is sick. Grippe! Rheumatism! Pneumonia! Boy, is that fellow still in the building that tries to sell me that fool scheme for keeping tanneries dry? I think I will see him."

The monthly sickness insurance, says Hard, has been worth thousands of sanitary inspectors to the German government. It is paid now by virtually all employers. The number of insured wage earners reaches 19,000,000. Their employers all pay, and they pay more when sickness is high and less when it is low. It is not without sound reason that sanitation has become a holy passion in the minds of multitudes of the more intelligent among them.

The Lloyd-George act of 1911, the latest English act, is the best of all the national health insurance laws. It has two features that are especially calculated to lessen preventable illness. If the amount of illness in a city is especially high, and in consequence the cost of health insurance is high, a commission automatically investigates the health department of that town. If it finds that sewage or garbage disposal is poor, that the water supply is polluted, or that the health department is poorly organized or poorly supported, it raises the taxes of that town.

If the employés of a certain industry, a certain factory, or a certain employer have an undue amount of illness, the commission investigates the industry. If it finds that the laws of hygiene and sanitation are grossly disobeyed, it increases the tax rate of the industry, factory, or employer.

In spite of the effects of emigration and immigration, the death rates of the countries of northwestern Europe are falling as fast, and in some instances faster than in this country.

We would all agree that their plan of meeting the incapacities through illness by governmental agencies is better than our method through hospitals supported by passing the hat. The United States is not liable much longer to disregard the plain teachings of European experiences. A person does not need to have telescopic vision to see the advantages of compulsory health insurance.

Surgeon General Gorgas has had more experience than any other living sanitarian with coercive methods of health control. As a sanitarian he has been incomparably successful. And yet he affirms on every occasion that the most effective measures for health betterment are economic measures. Whatever increases the wages of those who receive low wages without at the same time or in the same or greater ratio raising the cost of living, lowers death and sick rates. With a disease which, like consumption, disables for months or years, questions of economics are of especial importance. "A consumptive cannot get well unless some one spends a great deal of money on his care and cure. Money lowers the death rate of consumption. Many cases of consumption develop because of low wages, poor food, long hours of labor, fatigue, poor housing, and close contact with consumptives. Money lowers the case rate from consumption.

After an experience now of about a quarter of a century, authorities are agreed that though consumption can be materially lessened, in fact, has been materially lessened, the great telling blow against the disease must strike the economic factors which underlie it. The next best thing to such a distribution of property (and an evenly distributed property would not stay distributed) as would raise even the poorest above the consumption line would be a sickness insurance with proper care of consumptives and indirect prevention effects. Such has been the experience elsewhere in the world.

Suppose we turn to infant welfare for another illustration. Any infant welfare nurse will tell you that the main reason for a heavy infant death rate is small family income. Any community in which a large proportion of the people work for just about what the rent, a few groceries, a few clothes, and a few drinks of whisky cost will have a high baby death rate. She will tell you that it does no good to talk about good milk, ice, flies, cleanliness, and fresh air in a home where the father works for $10 a week, the rent costs $10 a month, meat is high, milk must be bought from the corner grocery, a few cents' worth at a time, ice is not known, and coal is picked up along the tracks.

Readjusting the wages of the unskilled to the cost of living cannot be effected in a few years. There must be an intermediate step. The logical intermediate step is health insurance.

The American Association for Labor Legislation has drawn a tentative draft of an act. This draft follows rather closely the British and German acts. Accompanying this draft are the following health insurance standards:

1. To be effective health insurance should be compulsory, on the basis of joint contribution of employer, employé, and the state.

2. The compulsory insurance should include all wage workers earning less than a given annual sum, where employed with sufficient regularity to make it practicable to compute and collect assessments. Casual and home workers should, as far as practicable, be included within the plan and scope of a compulsory system.

3. There should be a voluntary supplementary system for groups of persons [wage workers or others] who for practical reasons are kept out of the compulsory system.

4. Health insurance should provide for a specified period only, provisionally set at twenty-six weeks [one-half year], but a system of invalidity insurance should be combined with health insurance so that all disability due to disease will be taken care of in one law, although the funds should be separate.

5. Health insurance on the compulsory plan should be carried by mutual local funds jointly managed by employers and employés under public supervision. In large cities such locals may be organized by trades with federated bureau for the medical relief. Establishment funds and existing mutual sick funds may be permitted to carry the insurance where their existence does not injure the local funds, but they must be under strict government supervision.

6. Invalidity insurance should be carried by funds covering a larger geographical area comprising the districts of a number of local health insurance funds. The administration of the invalidity funds should be intimately associated with that of the local health funds and on a representative basis.

7. Both health and invalidity insurance should include medical service, supplies, necessary nursing, and hospital care. Such provision should be thoroughly adequate, but its organization may be left to the local societies under strict governmental control.

8. Cash benefits should be provided by both invalidity and health insurance for the insured or his dependents during such disability.

9. It is highly desirable that prevention be emphasized so that the introduction of a compulsory health and invalidity insurance system shall lead to a campaign of health conservation similar to the safety movement resulting from workmen's compensation.

PTOMAINE.

F. E. B. writes: "A neighbor died from ptomaine poisoning from eating canned salmon.

"1. How great is our risk?

"2. Are there any safeguards?

"3. How soon do poison symptoms appear after ingestion?

"4. Is cottage cheese of value in arresting putrefaction in the intestine?

"5. Will it quarrel with sweet milk when eaten at same meal?"

REPLY.

1. Very slight. Canning establishments watch for spoils.

2. Examine the cans closely. Do not eat the contents of a swollen can or one that has more than two solder spots on it. When the can is opened smell and taste the salmon. The appearance of the meat, its taste, and its odor will sometimes, though not always, warn you.

3. Occasionally nausea is produced soon after eating. The rule is that symptoms come on from six to twenty-four hours after the salmon has been eaten.

4. Yes.

5. No.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

M. M. writes: "What is your opinion of the California climate for a man who is troubled with angina pectoris? Do you think it would help him any? Also, do you think going over the mountains would be dangerous for him? He is 52 years old and has had it about two years."

REPLY.

I do not think the California climate will do him any good. Angina pectoris is not materially influenced by climate. If he smokes, he should stop it. He should do whatever can be done to conserve his heart muscles by careful attention to hygiene.

KNOCK-KNEED.

K. K. writes: "I am 18 years old and knock-kneed. Is there any method by which I could remedy this?"

REPLY.

Ride a bicycle with the seat raised so that you touch the pedals with difficulty. Probably this will not cure you. If the condition is quite disfiguring, consult an orthopedic surgeon.

NUISANCE WILL BE ABATED.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is a restaurant in the neighborhood of Washtenaw avenue and Division street, the chimney of which reaches only to the second floor of the adjoining apartment building. The odors of cooking are very disagreeable and we would like to have conditions remedied. TENANTS.

An investigation was made by an inspector from this department, as a result of which a notice was served on the tenant as follows: "Extend the stack connected with hood over range and steam table to a sufficient height to abate nuisance of odors from restaurant kitchen."

THE TORRENS SYSTEM.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please tell me what the Torrens system is. A. B. C.

The Torrens system is an act of the legislature passed in 1897 and in operation in Cook county ever since. The purpose of the system is to establish and certify to the owner an absolute and indefeasible title to realty, under government authority. In other words, it purports to establish a system for the registration of titles to lands whereby the official certificate will always show the state of the title and the person in whom it is vested, and to provide that after the original registration the transfer of the land may be made in the manner prescribed in detail in the act. The title is established in the person found to be the owner by a decree of court and a certificate of title issued, and afterward the title to the land cannot pass except by entering a transfer on the register and the issuance of a new certificate. All mortgages, liens, and other matters affecting the title to registered lands must be noted on the certificate of the official register which is set aside for that land.

THE SALOON AND THE SCHOOL.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have been advised that there is no ordinance in the city which regulates the distance a saloon must be from a school. Please advise me if this information is correct. B. B. E.

There is no ordinance in this city concerning the location of saloons with regard to distance from church or school. The matter is discretionary with the mayor in granting licenses and the rule of 250 feet was laid down by the mayor several years ago and has been followed by succeeding mayors. This rule was sustained by the court in an action several years ago as a proper exercise of the mayor's discretionary power.

STOP TRADING.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A store on State street has in the window a dress marked $18. When I asked the clerk for a dress like it she informed me that they had only the one, but that she would show me some other styles, and if I didn't like them she would let me have the dress in the window. I didn't care to look at any others, as I wanted that particular dress. Then she said she couldn't let me have it, as there was already a deposit paid on it. The dress is still in the window. Can't I demand the same or compel them to remove it from the window if it is already sold? H. G. H.

Your only remedy is to quit trading at that store. The store has broken its promise to sell that dress at that rate; but you can do nothing legally.

NO LICENSE NECESSARY.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—One or two private individuals, without any broker's license, make it their business to solicit buyers for real estate property listed for sale with a legitimate dealer and take them to the owners direct. They secure the entire commission if a sale is made. A third party makes out the necessary papers. What protection, if any, goes with a real estate broker's license? G. B.

If these private individuals merely send prospects to the broker but do not "negotiate" the contract they need no license under the city ordinance.

Please advise what distribution is made of her interest in the real estate. READER.

THE COLOSSAL BLUNDERER.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I believe the coming election to be of vital importance, an importance so vital as not only to involve the future tranquillity and prosperity of our people, but the stability of our government. Our "spotted prosperity," so-called by Senator Beveridge of Indiana, and so graphically analyzed by the editor of THE TRIBUNE, as being due solely to the European war, must end when ends this savage conflict, and then, with an endless chain of international troubles and disputes, such as inevitably must follow as a result of the reprehensible, and vacillating policies of the Wilson administration, and then the eyes of the people will be opened who now believe the slogan, "He kept us out of war," and Woodrow Wilson will be judged anew.

But why defer judgment. As an early act of the administration he gave to the world at large the use of our billion dollar canal on precisely an equal basis of toil with our American ships. The British tolls bill, in which Mr. Wilson truckled to England, was forced through congress by Mr. Wilson. This, after openly declaring prior to his election he favored a preferential rate bill in favor of our own merchant marine. It is needless further to review the pitiful story of other blunders of the present administration.

Of the Democratic tariff, it speaks for itself. We were promised cheaper living. Today living is from 50 to 100 per cent higher than under the former Republican tariff, and there is no corresponding gain as an offset. With regard to Mr. Wilson's foreign policies there has been nothing but evasion and procrastination of the real issues till our country is rapidly losing its prestige as a world power.

In Mexican affairs no language can adequately portray the culpable cowardice displayed by Mr. Wilson in his dealings with that country; cowardice in not avenging crimes committed against the sacred rights and the lives of his own countrymen, as well as cowardice in his attitude toward the Mexicans. Yet Mr. Wilson says he will fight if driven to a corner. Has any one the microscopical vison sufficient to discern how small that corner is?

We are not a nation on parade with a chip on our shoulders, but we are a people entitled to a president unafraid, and who will stand in the open and defend our honor, integrity, rights and lives. Judged by his record Charles Evans Hughes answers fully every requirement for the high office of president and is entitled to the support of every loyal citizen. Thus, Mr. Editor, in summing up the charges and sins of omission against Mr. Wilson, I would discard and discredit the slogan, "He kept us out of war" and substitute a more fitting one, to read—Woodrow Wilson the Colossal Blunderer. F. B. HAVILAND.

IGNORANCE AND EGOTISM.

Hegewisch, Nov. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Pride goeth before a fall. Will it prove true on Nov. 7 next? If the average Democrat would read and study Mr. Wilson's speeches he would be more able to understand and think a great deal less of the character of the man now seeking reëlection. On numerous occasions I have seen the utter failure of his supporters rightly to interpret the substance of the Adamson bill, which they claim is making thousands of votes for their party. Although my faith in the wisdom and loyalty of the American people is of late being sorely tested, I trust I may renew it when they have decided that we shall not be governed by ignorance and egotism for four years more. F. L. WEILAND.

CREDIT FOR CHILD LABOR BILL.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Democratic campaign managers and newspapers in making so much of a campaign issue of the child labor bill are simply "stealing our thunder." They know as well as we do that this progressive and constructive bit of statesmanship was the work of our own Republican senator, Beveridge. As I read in a Chicago paper some days ago: "Beveridge blazed the way!" The point, however, was not sufficiently emphasized that had it not been for the time and detail work required to bring the bill within constitutional rights, it undoubtedly would have borne the signature of a Republican president. What special credit to any man to sign such a bill? It was a "privilege," as I believe the article above referred to stated. Give the credit for the bill itself where it belongs.

In keeping with that bill are the views of our next president—Hughes. "We shall not have any lasting industrial prosperity unless we safeguard our future by adequate laws for the protection of women and children in industry, and increase the opportunities for education and training." Women know the needs of women and children. Women shall have the right to tell of those needs when Hughes is elected president. He believes in full suffrage for women. MARGUERITE G. RIGBY.

RAILROAD MEN WILL DO THEIR OWN THINKING.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I read an article the other day stating that the four railroad brotherhood chiefs would deliver the railroad men's vote to Wilson. Of course such a statement is preposterous and reflects on the intelligence of the men in question. The majority of the men will do their own thinking and will vote accordingly and will not blindly follow a blind leader to the slaughter. I have been employed as freight brakeman and freight and passenger conductor for twenty-six years, and I have belonged to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors all of that time.

I voted against the strike movement and many others did the same. I am in favor of an eight hour day for all classes of labor, but this movement was far from that idea. This was a movement fostered by the younger element in the four organizations for their own benefit, and they and the switchmen are the only ones that would benefit by it. INSURGENT.

GERMANIZING AMERICA

by Edward Goldbeck

"SO we have your confession, my dear sir! You want to Germanize America and you are bold enough to state it frankly in the columns of a great newspaper which stands for undiluted Americanism!" I am willing to admit that the idea of a Germanized America may not very strongly appeal to the average American and that such a motto needs qualification and explanation. I would hardly have used it but for a letter which I received a few weeks ago from a prominent citizen of Chicago, an Anglo-Saxon if there ever was any. In that letter he said that he would gladly help in "Germanizing America"—it was he who coined the phrase—if these words meant that we intended "to put duties to the state before individual rights."

And this really is the issue condensed into the shortest formula. We want to supplant the words "Help yourself!" by the words "One for all, all for one!" We want to supplant the individualistic creed by an altruistic and nationalistic creed. Or no, it is not quite that; it will be better to say that we want to complete the individualistic creed by altruistic and nationalistic ideas. For we must not throw the individualistic tradition into the paper basket. "Help yourself" is a sound and manly doctrine which has built up the skyscraper of American civilization, and we must not disown it. It is good policy to stick to those ideas which have made a nation what it is; the danger is that we may exaggerate them in a one sided application. Let us illustrate this theoretical wisdom by a practical example: Liberty has been a tonic for the Anglo-Saxons, but it became a poison for the Poles, because with them the idea of liberty degenerated into rank individualism and anarchy.

WE maintain that American individualism threatens to become ruthless selfishness, a selfishness which means atomization. It is high time to oppose this dangerous tendency. We want solidarity instead of egotism, and we shall try to make the basic principle of American life the idea that everybody is a servant. This, too, sounds dreadful to American ears. Nobody wants to be a servant here; we have even to call the people who clean our houses and cook our food "hired help" to spare their foolish sensibilities. The motto on the crest of the Prince of Wales is "Je sers," and Frederick the Great called himself the first servant of the nation. Goethe said, "Educate the boys to be servants and the girls to be mothers," and when he saw in an album the inscription "Learn to obey" he said, "That is the only sensible word in the whole book!"

The average American is proud of his independence. Independence is a fiction; it does not exist. The strongest, richest, cleverest man, the millionaire, the aristocrat, the "kaiser," is just as dependent on others as the tramp who stumbles along the thorny road of life with bleeding feet and a heavy heart. The right word is interdependence, the knowledge that we all depend on each other and that every act, every word of ours has never ending consequences. Every one of us is eternal in his emanations. So the aim is to realize that we belong together, or, as Goethe (Goethe again!) said, that we are "collective beings." Think of it, what words like these mean in the mouth of one of the greatest geniuses of all times!

"SOMETHING is rotten in the state of Denmark." If the official statements report 125,000 divorces in one year our idea of marriage cannot be right. If our youth grows up without ideals education cannot be right. If school does not mold the character our school system needs overhauling. We must change our ideas about the state, which we consider now only as an institution to sponge on. If we refuse to realize that we owe ourselves to the state, the guardian of justice and morality, the treasurer of national traditions, the everlasting incarnation of the national spirit, if we cannot understand that, defective as it is, it is the highest conception which humanity has evolved up to now, then we shall never get rid of "graft" and "waste" and "pork" and all our other vices. At the bottom of efficiency are moral ideas. To make America "efficient" we need a moral revolution. If we all would understand it, then we would be sure to attain our aim, which is to make this country a better country.

From this point of view we demand social justice. If we hold that we are nothing but individuals trying to satisfy our instincts in the best possible way, then there is no logical basis for the demand of social justice. But if we consider ourselves as cells of an organism, as members of a whole, inseparable and interdependent, then this demand is natural, we feel that it is justified, and no logical demonstration is necessary to make us believe in it. If members of the community are suffering the whole suffers; if the whole suffers we are suffering. So we become aware that we must foster social justice, if it were only for motives of an enlightened egotism. And if somebody should ask sadly and disappointedly, "So we shall never get rid of egotism? We are in for selfishness again?" I shall answer that we must not try to overstep the limits which are drawn for human nature. We can try to ennoble it; we must not try to extinguish it. The great catholic thinker Pascal was right when he said, "He who wants to be an angel is in danger of becoming a beast" (Qui veut faire l'ange fait la bête).

WE call these and some other ideas "German ideas," not that they have not been thought and preached and partly realized in other countries, too, but we claim that Germany has gone farther than the other nations in their practical application. We think that Frederick William I. was the man who as the first European ruler realized the idea of an efficient, honest, saving administration; that Frederick the Great conceived the idea of the "expert" as far as it was possible then; that Frederick William III. started that protective social legislation which about sixty years later was expanded by Bismarck into the gigantic scheme of workmen's insurance, celebrated by the Italian statesman Luzzatti as the work of a cyclops. We think that the idea of subordinating everything to duty was a German idea and was never expressed so uncompromisingly as by Kant and Fichte. We believe that the German nation has lived up to these ideals as far as it is possible for feeble human beings, and we say that even if Germany should be crushed and all Germans killed, these ideals and these achievements would be there to witness to the greatness of the German nation. That is what I call the victory of the German thought and in this sense we want to Germanize America.

By this we do not mean that we ought to accept everything German as a model which is beyond improvement. We do not intend to bring over to this country institutions which may be adequate to the German conception of life and which are justified by historical growth but would not have any reason for existence in this country. We do not want to develop caste spirit, we do not want a militaristic hierarchy, we do not want any monarchical tendencies, any divine right theory, and we object to an aggressive foreign policy, as it is to a certain degree unavoidable for European nations which, like Russia, have an outlet the ocean, or which, like Germany, are edged in on an insufficient territory. If we want to Germanize America we have at first to Americanize ourselves. Otherwise what we would import here could not last, as it would be artificial and offensive to the national character. We have to count with this national character, with the American as he is. We cannot put at his place an American homunculus prepared and worked out by German science.

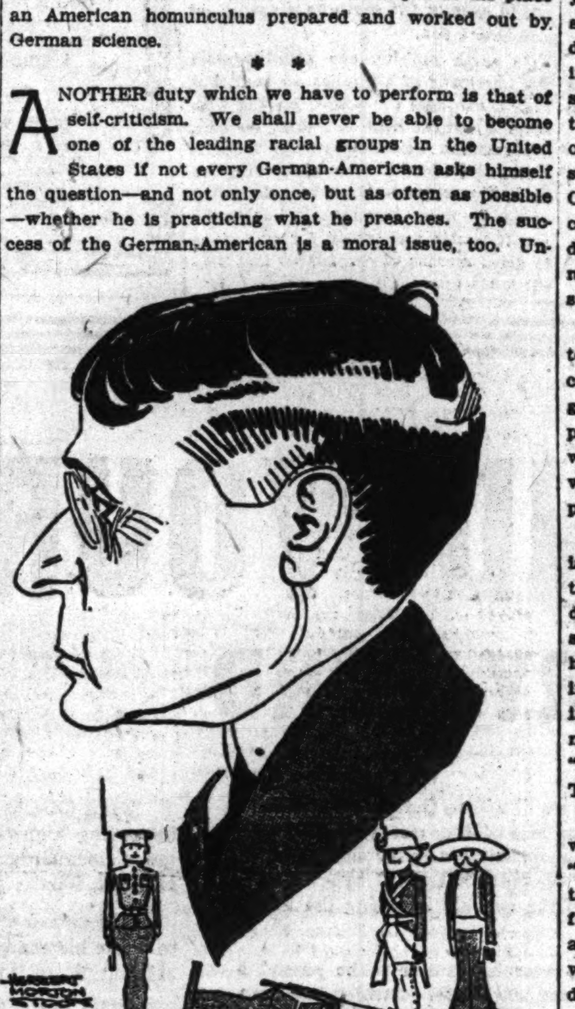
ANOTHER duty which we have to perform is that of self-criticism. We shall never be able to become one of the leading racial groups in the United States if not every German-American asks himself the question—and not only once, but as often as possible—whether he is practicing what he preaches. The success of the German-American is a moral issue, too. Unbounded self-admiration and an uncritical indorsement of the fatherland will only hamper our progress. In the long run the evolution of a nation is the evolution of Mr. Schmidt or Mr. Macpherson.



Newton D. Baker
Secretary of War

And so we cannot shirk the question, "Are we demanding too much?" I honestly think we are not. This country has been Anglicized through centuries and it is not only our right but our duty to do some Germanizing now, for most of the American deficiencies of character—exaggerated individualism, ruthless brutality in business life, base adoration of the rich man—are of English provenience. Do we intend to throng out the other nationalities? He who says so must be pilloried as a vile slanderer, whoever he may be. We do not join ourselves to any party which does not carry the flag and keep step to the music of the union.

ALL these things have been stated a thousand times, but it is the duty of the political writer to repeat himself. Buffon has said that genius is patience, and in election times we are a nation of geniuses, as we are immensely patient both as speakers and as listeners. I thought I had better repeat these things, since Mr. Hughes has been accused of subserviency to the German-Americans. The Democrats picture him as a German eater to the Teutonic element and as a slave of William II. to the Anglo-Americans. We do not expect him to be anything but fair. We do not demand an alliance with Germany, and we shall fight the idea of an alliance with England. We are in the company of George Washington, and the president who would dare to say that this company is not good enough for him will be applauded by Mr. Baker but hissed by the nation.

Mr. Hughes' rule is not longed for by the German-Americans as the beginning of the millennium. We know too well that a president cannot do for us what we must do ourselves. No matter who is elected, the German-American campaign will begin on Nov. 8. We shall keep up and strengthen our organizations, we shall influence public opinion by all legal means, we shall go into politics, we shall become just as active as we have been passive before. There is no secrecy about all that; we state it openly. We hope that a good many Anglo-Saxons will help us as soon as they see that our work is done not in a spirit of race antagonism and overbearing pride but in a perfectly good natured and well mannered way and with the sincere wish of fostering the physical welfare and the moral greatness of this nation.

Such a work would be immensely hampered and damaged by a president who, like Mr. Wilson, would be a bitter partisan while affecting to be an unbiased neutral. Looking at Mr. Wilson's record, we could not believe him even if he should come out now with an indorsement of all our views. We have lost faith in him. Mr. Hughes has an unblemished record for honesty, executive skill, sound views, and fairness. We are going to give him a chance, and afterwards we shall always be "en vedette." We have discovered our historical mission, and that is to prevent this country from becoming again the property of another King George. For our leaders in spirit we shall take hyphenates like Alexander Hamilton and Karl Schurz; to those who believe in an alliance with England and eventually a reunion of both countries we recommend Benedict Arnold as standard bearer. We hope that on Nov. 7 this nation will sign another declaration of independence.

[On Board the Women's Campaign Train for Hughes.]

I'VE grown so used to writing that every day lately it doesn't seem at all strange to be prefixing it to the Tabloid. It is pleasant, though, not to follow it with the tale of political meetings. There are four well known writers on the train whom I thought you'd like to get better acquainted with, and one who was with the train when I started out four weeks ago, but who left it in California, because she didn't get a chance to make more than one speech a day. That's what ardent workers they are on the trip.

The one you'll be most surprised about is Mary Antin. I suppose there has never been an immigrant's tale told to a wider audience than Mary Antin's "The Promised Land." It is the classic of the immigrant. When you see the tiny, frail body, the little girlish toss of her head, the short curls shaking, and listen to her raillery of the other members of the train, it doesn't seem possible that she could have suffered the spirit shattering molding into Americanism. The picture of a lovely little fair haired girl she shows you with great pride. It requires more than one mental adjustment to make yourself realize that it is her own daughter, 9 years old. On the other side of the double frame is a picture of her husband, an earnest, studious young man, a professor of sociology in New York, Grabau by name. On the train she isn't Mrs. Grabau, though, nor yet a mother, but just a child herself. "The train baby" she is called. She wears little Norfolk dresses, walks around with her hands in her pockets, and pastes quaint notes on her compartment door to keep you from disturbing her. When she gets up to talk, though, she is the most earnest and vital of speakers.

The dear little old lady of the train is Maude Howe Elliott, "the daughter of the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic'," she says James Whitcomb Riley called her. She has written some charming books of travel, sophisticated, gentle, cosmopolitan, but with an atmosphere of the quiet east filling their pages spiritually. She tells of her memory of her mother, Julia Ward Howe, who worked so desperately hard for the cause of women, and her eyes shine with the heritage. Almost everywhere that the train goes the local band plays the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the audience sings it.

Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy is the "beautiful woman" of the train. She is the only other woman besides Mrs. Demarest of New York who looks like the million that the train is imputed to carry. She wears luxurious furs and diamonds in some quantity and always pearl earrings and usually purple shoes. She tells of the tragedy of the Mexican situation in her famous "I have seen a nation in ashes" speech, as she tells it in "A Diplomat's Wife in Mexico." She is always the one which the crowd asks to see. We got into St. Paul in the morning about four weeks ago and went over to Minneapolis in the afternoon, and by 6 o'clock at night there wasn't a copy of "A Diplomat's Wife in Mexico" to be had in any of the book stores of the Twin Cities, and they all said they had had large stocks earlier in the day.

Annie S. Peck was the one who left the train in California. She is the woman champion mountain climber of the world, you know, and author of "The South American Tour." She has been making an investigation of the trade relations between the United States and South America and came up from South America to join the Hughes train. The most surprising thing about her—she is apparently about 50, with gray hair and a somewhat weather ripened look—is her voice. She speaks with the power and the deep tones of a man. She offered to teach the others how to talk that way, but the doctor wouldn't let her.

I have saved Frances Kellor for the last, because her authorship is more a byproduct of her political prowess than it is a means of necessary self-expression. She has written "America First" in the Macmillan political series. She is primarily, though, a politician, the only real one on the train. By that I mean that she really knows politics, the science of it, as almost no other woman in the country does. The idea of a train of women speakers crossing the continent as this one has was hers, and she has been the head of the train all of the way except for a few days when she had to go back to New York.

Hamlin Garland, author of "They of the High Trails" (Harpers') and a late Chicago pillar, speaks out about what he thinks of democracy in literature. "Theoretically," he says, "I am a democrat; actually I am an intellectual aristocrat. I believe in 'an aristocracy of mind, of character, of will,' as Ibsen puts it. It is not enough for me to write for the masses. I want to have the approbation of my intellectual superiors. I believe in the democracy of literature, but I do not believe in pandering to cheap men. I do believe in making literature helpful to the democracy. I think that as full grown authors we should consider the significance of the time in which we live. We should oppose with all the strength we possess every attempt to make us clowns for the amusement of the unthinking. The literature of this country ought to be democratic and significant in something like Whitman's vision—not by making our words cheap and our pictures vulgar." Watson, the needle!

Madeline Z. Doty, author of "Society's Misfits" (Century), is a lawyer by profession, but not by the grace of Harvard university. She did her best to study law there. One course she particularly wanted to study there, to which women weren't admitted. Dressed in a simple tailored suit with a soft felt hat pulled down over her hair and sitting in the back row she managed to escape the notice of the instructor for four days. When he discovered her he promptly forbade her to attend the class any more. She went to the men higher up and at a special meeting of the faculty it was solemnly decided that she might attend the class if the instructor would relent. That was a fatal proviso, though, for he refused just as firmly as he had in the first place, on the ground that she would "demoralize his class." So she went to New York. Miss Doty is now in Germany on a commission to inquire into the welfare of German mothers and babies affected by the war.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher, whose "The Bent Twig" (Holt) is still one of the best sellers, is now living in Paris with her children so that she may be near Mr. Fisher, who is a member of the American ambulance service. She is Dorothy Canfield in fiction and Dorothy Canfield Fisher in books like "The Montessori Mother." I print this information every so often because inquiries are always coming in about the identity of the two.

A laconic note, which is the death knell of the hopes of thousands, is the announcement "Complications have caused the withdrawal by the Bobbs-Merrill company of 'Charlie Chaplin's Own Story.'" What the complications are is a reel mystery.

"Isabel Carleton's Year" (Macmillan) is Margaret Ashmun's contribution to the literature of schoolgirl days. It's a very pleasant contribution you may be interested to know in case you are looking for a book for some little girl who "perfectly adores" tales of that sort.

"The Prince Without a Country" (Barse & Hopkins) is another of the nice little books for nice little boys and girls that bear the name of Mary Dickerson Donahey. Just tell the youngsters her real name—Mrs. Teenie Weenie—and see what they say.

Robert W. Service, whose "The Songs of a Sourdough" have had an unprecedented popularity, has been serving more than a year as chauffeur in the Anglo-American ambulance corps under the auspices of the Red Cross. One of the results of his experience is a volume of war verse which is published in England under the title, "The Rhymes of a Red Cross Man." Plans for its publication here have not yet been made.

Stacy Aumonier, the English painter and actor, whose first novel is "Olga Bardel" (Century), doesn't think much of the United States as a place to spend a honeymoon. He and Miss Gertrude Peppercorn, a pianist, who has had two successful tours of the United States, decided to spend their honeymoon here and so the day after they were married they sailed for our shores. Mr. Aumonier says, "We spent three months in overheated trains and hotels and were nearly killed by oysters, cocktails, and kindness." Mr. and Mrs. Aumonier now live at St. John's Wood and are very popular in London.

A reader asks if "Davenport" (John Lane), by Charles Marriott, is a history of the town on the Mississippi. He is hastily assured that "Davenport" is one of the rare novels of psychological abnormality, or supernormality, which combine sense and sensibility in its telling. Mostly tales of dual personalities or psychic phenomena are either so polemically "true" or so gushingly sentimental that they have no place on sacred library shelves. "Davenport" is a work of art, fascinating in its mystery of a personality and undeniably worth reading.

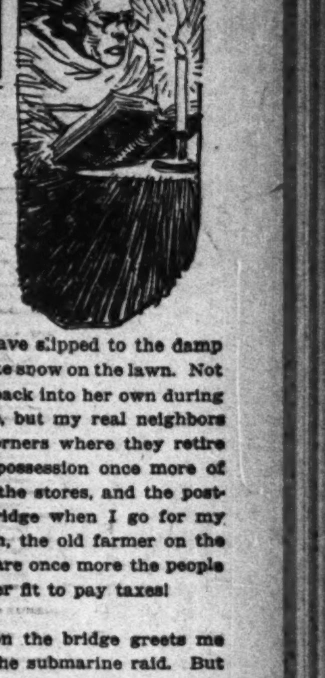
Do you remember "The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew"? It was one of my most treasured books, as dear to me as "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates" and "Black Beauty" and "Beautiful Joe." It has been many years since I sat with my feet tucked under me in the corner of a big chair and spent an evening alternately reading and honin' to be one of the five, but I've never forgotten them. And now there comes to me an announcement that Margaret Sidney—the forgotten author of "The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew"—has just published the twelfth of the Five Little Pepper series, "Our Davie Pepper" (Lothrop Lee). And one who knows says that the eleven are just as good reading as the first of the series.

AUTUMN FIRES

by Robert Herrick



LAST night there was a black frost. The heliotrope beneath my windows is literally black, leaf and blossom. Yesterday the blue tipped stalks waved bravely in the bitter west wind. The luxuriant gladioli blooms have shriveled also, only the white phlox holds up its head, shining with a virginal purity above the wasted garden. Beyond in the vegetable patch the pumpkin vines look like stricken sea serpents. I picked a wizened little rose that had done its best to defy New England by blooming in mid-October. Decidedly the summer is over! The wind just now is talking around the corner of the house in a fashion I know; it is telling of tomorrow's storm—one of those autumnal three day easterly affairs. No matter! I have plenty of dry wood in the house, and plenty to think about. I toss another log on the glowing coals and gaze out over the brown fields to where the river is flooding the marches with cold black water.

Beyond the river the summer cottages are beginning to reappear through the bare branches of the denuded trees. Last night when I drove through the busy little Harbor it was like a city of the dead—not a light in a house, not a loiterer on the street. The summer season is over; for another eight months the Harbor will sleep, and the village will return to something like its normal self. My more prosperous neighbors among the "natives" will hie themselves south to bask in Florida sunlight on the money they have made from the many strangers within their gates, until April, when they come back for the spring cleaning of their cottages in preparation for next season's grist of visitors. For such is the yearly round in these parts.

THE strangers stayed within the gates much later this season than usual. It was not the glory of the illuminated autumn that kept them, however. It was fear of infantile paralysis, which as far as fear inspiring power is concerned rivals cholera or the bubonic plague. Cases of it have kept cropping up all over New England in the most unexpected and mysterious fashion, one not many miles from here. The sum total of its toll of lives is not large, but it strikes terror into the households where there are children. The scourge of it does not seem adequate to account for the terror it has aroused. There has been a quarantine everywhere for children under 16—schools closed, certificates demanded, etc., etc.

Are we getting "soft"? As we have mastered epidemics, thanks to sanitation and preventive medicine, is the human imagination building up new terrors for itself of what is left to fear? In time we shall quarantine against influenza. Although I should not advise timid parents to take their offspring into infected districts, having all the natural timidity of a good family doctor, nevertheless I dislike to hear so much made of the inconsiderable attack of this disease, dislike to realize how much it occupies the minds of my neighbors—that is, of my city neighbors.

I remember that the class of 1917 has been called to the colors in France—where will they be by next spring? With their older brothers, their fathers and uncles, under some cross marked grave, in some military hospital! It may be illogical, but when so much real tragedy is going on in the old world, when so much awful grief is being borne in heroic silence, it seems to behoove us in comfortable America to take our troubles less excitedly than we do.

AT any rate infantile paralysis has kept many a family in the country through these wonderful autumn weeks that otherwise would have stifled in the dusty, desiccated air of our cities. Many a child has heard for the first time the mysterious whirr of the partridge startled from his covert in the flaming underbrush. They have seen the morning sun gild the asters and goldenrod, the fiery trail of the cardinal flower along the brooks, the shy blue blossoms of the fringed gentian in the meadows. The sumach has lighted the hills for them with its fires. The sea and the river have been flecked with crisp white waves. And they have felt the exquisite peace of a dying autumn day over fields and woods. And all that is worth a month's schooling; to my thinking, many months'!

But they have almost all gone from here now, and I like to have these restless summer folk gone. I linger on until the last leaves have slipped to the damp earth and the frosts hang white like snow on the lawn. Not merely does nature seem to come back into her own during these still, glowing autumn weeks, but my real neighbors—the natives—come out of the corners where they retire during the gay season and take possession once more of their fathers' fields, of the roads, the stores, and the post-office. I can find them on the bridge when I go for my mail—the carpenter, the fisherman, the old farmer on the hill. They have personality, they are once more the people—and I am only a belated stranger fit to pay taxes!

MY friend the lobster man on the bridge greets me with some remark about the submarine raid. But what he is really interested in is the harrowing scarcity of good fat lobsters in his traps. An ancient native opens his grizzled mouth to recall that when he was a boy one used to pick up lobsters by the bushel on the marshes after flood tides. There was a robbery in the village the night before, and the talk passes to this. The theory is that some rowdies from a nearby city came by motor and scuttled out the same way—another example of the lawlessness these infernal machines encourage! . . . And so it goes, I fancy, pretty much all over these United States.

While the U-53 sinks ships, and Candidate Hughes is telling us voters how undiluted an American he is, and President Wilson is suspending judgment or pointing with pride to his zigzag course, the common man is going about his daily tasks and his horizon is limited by his father's fields, his factory's chimneys, or the city block. Our minds do not get much farther afield than our gaze can go. I always come back to that thought when my city friends flit off by motor or Pullman to their accustomed beat of city pavements. We who remain have strictly domestic concerns. I think we are all more agitated over the $5 increase in tax rate this year than over the ten point slump in the stock market.

So the big, big world rolls over on its axis, carrying its burden of millions of human souls, all very like these, close bound in the coil of things as they are about them. The power to externalize ourselves, to escape beyond the limits of our own parish, in thought, is one of the more precious attainments of humanity. It is about the last development of civilization. When we are all able to realize ourselves, daily and hourly, as citizens of the world, not of a particular township, international jealousies will fade and wars will end.

But I know of no special process of education, no spreading of news and books, no increase of communications, that will give us the objective mind of a true citizen of the world. I once knew a man who had it, and he had never gone thirty miles from his home in the far north country. He was a world citizen because he had a tranquil and just soul that viewed everything under the form of eternity, as the beautiful old Latin phrase puts it. He had what my restless friends who romp over Europe and America usually miss. They carry their provinciality with them in their souls.

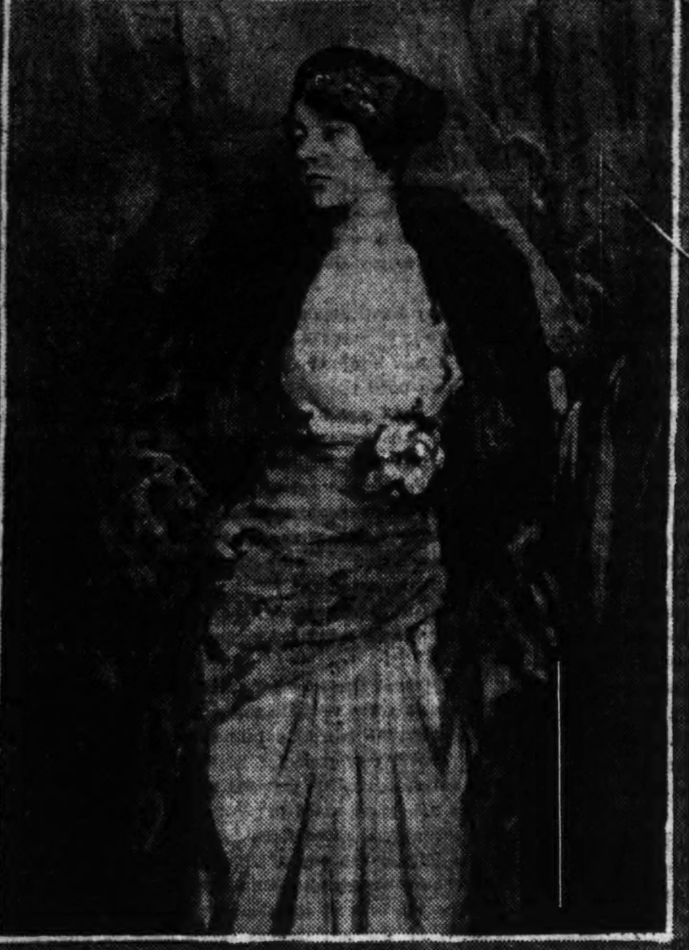
BUT while humanity is still limited in its vital interests by the length of its gaze, it is folly to talk about the evils of patriotism, the "international point of view," etc., as a good pacifist was doing at luncheon yesterday. There has been a lot of that sort of loose talk since the outbreak of the war, especially here in America, where we have so much time to sit and talk about the horror of the war. There are those who would do away with all nationalism, all patriotic feeling, who wish to see it submerged in a faint blur of "humanitarianism." They would do away with literature, art, racial individuality, all the divergent forms of evolutionary human development. The socialists would substitute for the clash of racial units the sordid clash of classes over the fleshpots.

All of them fail to understand themselves, to understand how human beings have grown to be what they are, to understand what the great mass of humanity is today. They should linger on the bridge and talk with the lobster man and the carpenter and realize once more that our brains are still parochially adapted, not cosmically. And in destroying the national bond they would destroy all reality of allegiance, in dropping patriotism from the virtues they would obliterate the impulse to virtue itself. . . .

But my fire is smoking: it needs a fresh log.

ART

By Louise James Bargelt



Portrait of Miss Wiles by Irving R. Wiles

EXHIBITS AT INSTITUTE.

FOUR exhibitions in one week is a lavish bestowal of art blessings. Yet with its annual reception last Thursday night the Art institute of Chicago opened its spacious new galleries which have just been completed and offered for public approval and enjoyment four interest compelling exhibits. All of these exhibits are inclusive of much of the best in their line, and all of them differ widely from one another.

There is the exhibit of American oil paintings and also the exhibition of American sculpture, and there is a rare loan collection of Millet etchings belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick and the unusual display of original work by the Atlan Ceramic club. Wide gulfs of artistic endeavor and achievement are covered by these different exhibitions, and the large numbers of people they are appealing to by their very diversity is already apparent in the crowded halls and institute display rooms.

I lingered longest in the rooms on whose cream tinted walls hang the vivid oils, some of them so radiantly hued that one might almost believe a wizard colorman had stolen unaware upon the artists and mixed their paints for them with magic skill. American art this is, too, with all its myriad hues. American art, which is supposedly more restrained, more inclined to the use of vitreous, chalky opaque tones that have for some time now characterized supposedly "modern art."

Louis Betts' vigorous painting of a girl of the west makes one wish that one were a bit farther removed from the smoky congestion of a big city, while Elliott Dangerfield has one of the most fascinating landscape pictures I have seen for a long time. It is just a lone dark cypress at sunset, but somehow it fairly pulses with all sorts of suppressed emotions, as though while the artist painted with his brush he was remembering all manner of things he had done and living over all the pleasure and pain he had ever experienced.

Then, too, there are some paintings there which make one wonder how they could possibly have been done in this busy workaday practical world. Mazzanovitch's "Rejuvenescence" is a mystical and haunting canvas. There is the same unforgettable lure about it that there is about the paintings of Davies.

Karl Anderson has a subtly impressionistic, ultra colorful painting, "My Ladyship's Attendants," Frank Bicknell a charming scene, "A May Morning."

Among the examples of strong portraiture are Adelaide Cole Chase's "Mrs. Swan," which won a silver medal at the Panama-Pacific exposition, and F. Luis Mora's "Two Brunettes." Ralph Clarkson's portrait, "Rollin D. Salisbury," should not be missed, while F. Edwin Church's "Peacock Girl" is a medley of color not inharmoniously combined. Irving Wiles' "Miss Gladys Wiles" is a charming picture of a charming woman, vigorously done with plenty of life in the face and figure.

Walter Ufer has some of his inimitable Indian pictures. Wendt has a characteristic landscape, William Ritschel some essentially Ritschel scenes, and Childe Hassam and Wilson Irvine some characteristic outdoor pictures. Besides these well known names are those of Ben Foster, Arthur Davies, Kenyon Cox, George Bellows, William Chase, and Charles Francis Browne.

No less comprehensive in scope and inclusive of the best known names in the country is the exhibition of American sculptors. It is on the floor beneath the display of oil paintings, and its importance would be hard to overestimate, since it is the largest exhibition of its kind which has ever been held in this country. Part of the work was displayed at the Panama-Pacific exhibition and in its entirety it has been at the Albright museum in Buffalo for the last six months. Manship and Bernard excepted, it represents the work of almost all the really important American sculptors.

Grouped closely together on one side of the room is the work of Mrs. Burroughs, John Gregory, Fry, and Polasek.

Mrs. Burroughs, who was the wife of the curator of paintings at the Metropolitan museum in New York, died last winter. She had reached a point where she was beginning to be pointed out as one of the coming sculptors of the country, and her work called the "Threshold" is considered one of the finest in the present exhibit.

Gregory, Fry, and Polasek are three American sculptors who have the distinction of having taken the Prix de Rome and are therefore known as American Academy of Rome men.

Of the three, Polasek is especially interesting to Chicagoans, since he has succeeded the late Mr. Mulligan as head of the school of sculpture of the Art institute. He has seven pieces of work in the exhibit, his "Sower" ranking among the best pieces of modern sculpture in the country. He is represented in the Metropolitan museum in New York, and during the six months this exhibit was in Buffalo his "Sower" occupied one of the most important positions in the exposition.

Bela Lyon Pratt, who is the leading sculptor of Boston and who has a commission to do the statue of Alexander Hamilton which is to be erected out of the Ferguson bequest, has three pieces of his work in the exhibit. Anna Hyatt, our most noted animal sculptor, has some ten examples of her work here, among them a replica of her New York statue of Joan of Arc. Lorado Taft's "Fountain of Time" is to be seen, and Herbert Adams, president of the National Society of Sculptors, has some twenty pieces of his work on exhibit.

And then there are the etchings by Millet, which are in the loan collection of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick. Passing from the display of gleaming, vivid oils with their portraits of pretty women and prosperous men and their landscapes, which for the most part suggest only the pleasing and the agreeable sides of life, one is conscious of a marked difference when one reaches the room of Millet.

Millet was supremely of the school of naturalism. His pen breathes the struggles of his early life, and where another artist might see rustic beauty and simple joy, he sees ugly flashes and dull dreariness and deadly toil which robs one of the capacity for pleasure at the day's end. Field labor to him meant bent shoulders and tired backs. In etching after etching one sees the same note sounded insistently. The peasant is at work, dully, steadily, with no song on his lips and no smile in his eye.

Even in the scene of intimate home life there is no lightening of the burden of a ceaseless drudgery. The father and the mother sit by the light of the candle log after the sun has sunk to rest and the animals are asleep. They are still working, their baby near them. The love they bear each other is dumb, their devotion to their home inarticulate, their life is colored only by their work and their future—one does not see it except as a dark, unlit passage stretching on through the long years.

Pslams of Life

by J. P. McEvoy

THE WAIL OF A POOR SIMP.

O, everybody else is in the market,
  They're getting rich in Motors, Steel, or Wheat.
I haven't got a neighbor
Who would think of common labor;
  I'm the only working man upon our street.
The janitor insults me when I meet him,
  Upon his mobile mush I see a sneer;
For while I have been striving,
In the wheat pit he's been diving,
  And he's made a hundred thousand dollars clear,
        O, dear!
  He's made one hundred thousand dollars clear!

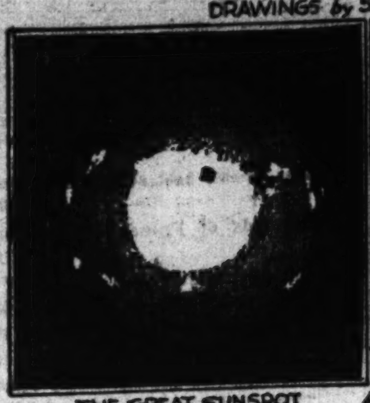
O, everybody else is in the market,
  O, everybody else has got a hunch;
Every morning they arouse and
Make a couple hundred thousand,
  Just to sharpen up their appetite for lunch.
While I pursue my daily dinky duties
  And barely buy the skittles and the beer,
The elevator man
Gets a corner, say, in Can,
  And presto! he's a million dollars clear;
        O, dear!
  How easily they make a million clear!

I, too, have tried to wander in the market;
  I fairly burned to grab this easy dough.
I spent a lot of tin
With a fluctuating fin,
  But did I make a million? Chorus: No!
And so again I'm working for a living,
  While all the world looks on me with a jeer.
I toil from day to day
For my microscopic pay;
  I guess the neighbors think I'm pretty queer,
        O, dear!
  Most any guy who works today is queer.

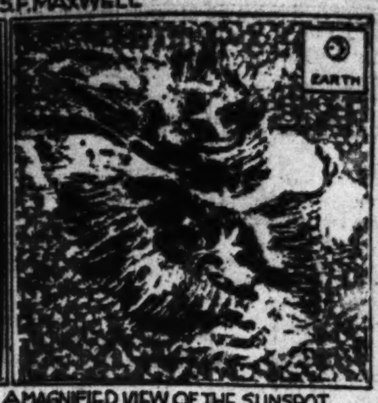
P. S.—The newsboy on the corner made $25,000 last week in May wheat, O, dear!

ASTRONOMY

SUNSPOTS
DRAWINGS by S. F. MAXWELL



THE GREAT SUNSPOT



A MAGNIFIED VIEW OF THE SUNSPOT

SUN SPOTS.

THE sun is a globe of seething white hot gases, 886,000 miles in diameter. On its vast surface terrific cyclones and tornadoes often rage. A whirling vortex as big as North America passes notice as "another spot," and no more is thought of it, for a cyclone on the sun in the area of which all the planets of the solar system could not be contained is not considered an important affair. This being the case, a truly large spot is a sight worth seeing.

During the last three years there have been prominent sun spots, but none has surpassed in magnitude or activity a great one which appeared in the fall of 1914.

Imagine if you can that you were on the sun and were looking at a hole 120,000 miles across and 15,000 miles deep. Its sides are made of glowing metallic clouds and vapors, and its bottom descends irregularly into the bowels of the sun. Into this hole the gases from above are being sucked, rushing and swirling as they descend with the sound of ten million Niagaras.

The vapors from above that rush in are much cooler than the neighboring gases and do not radiate light so brilliantly, making the center of the sun spot look dark. Long jets of intensely white gases leap up like fantastically shaped flames out of the surrounding surface, curve over and disappear, thrashing into the inky depths below. High overhead float gauzy, rosy tinted clouds, circling round and round over the whirlpool.

As you look at the writhing and tossing flames the spot changes its shape, grows, expands, roaring and shrieking until there is a hole in the sun that would contain the earth as a soup bowl contains a pea.

On earth nothing can stand against the hurricane of 100 miles an hour, but near a sun spot the winds, blazing with seven times the heat of a blast furnace, often attain velocities of 250 miles a second. It was a stupendous eruption when the volcano Krahatoa blew dust seventeen miles into the air, but on the sun it is not uncommon for explosions to drive masses of gas 200,000 and 300,000 miles up.

HUMANITY—AND YOUR VOTE

By HENRY FORD

IN this great crisis of our country I am more interested in measures than in men, I am not interested in parties at all. But measures can only be put into force through the men in office. We must therefore make a choice of the man and men who will put the measures in force.

In the first place we should guard against Wall Street influences again securing the control of our Government. They have been rooted out during the last four years, and they are working hard to get back.

The eight-hour day should be extended to all our industries where possible. Women should be given the rights which in justice belong to them. For years the argument has had some force with me that women should be discouraged from working in factories and stores, and hence, they have been discriminated against in wages, but I have slowly come to the settled conviction that this practice has been unfair, because equal work deserves equal pay. Hence, all women in our employment who do equal work shall receive equal pay.

I regard war as the greatest curse of mankind—that it has done more to retard the progress of the race and its material well-being than any other single cause. We want to see war abolished and we believe it can be done, and we must try to choose the man for the head of our Nation who will do the most for these ends.

ALTHOUGH NOMINALLY A REPUBLICAN ALL MY LIFE, I AM FOR WILSON, AND URGE MY FELLOW CITIZENS TO STAND FOR HIM, BECAUSE OF HIS POSITION ON THESE AND OTHER GREAT QUESTIONS, BECAUSE HE HAS KEPT US OUT OF WAR AND HAS DONE MUCH TO BRING ABOUT THE REMARKABLE PROSPERITY WHICH WE ENJOY, AND BECAUSE WALL STREET IS AGAINST HIM.

He is entitled to be rewarded for his great service to mankind, and the only way we can reward him is by giving him the opportunity to be of still greater service.

The greatest reward for doing a good thing is the privilege to do more, that is why Mr. Wilson wants to be re-elected; in other words, to be paid for what he has done by the privilege of doing more.

I have much admiration for Mr. Hughes personally, but he is surrounded, influenced and advised by nearly all the evil influences of selfishness and greed which I feel have retarded our progress for so long. I fear his election would restore the old crowd to power and put back the cause of humanity for fifty years.

In my mind, the most undesirable citizen in the world is the man who will buy another man's vote, and the next most undesirable is the man who will sell his vote—because he not only injures himself and his family, but the community at large.

I AM FOR MR. WILSON BECAUSE WITH A WORLD AT WAR HE HAS KEPT US OUT OF WAR. ALL OTHER GREAT NATIONS ARE BEING CONSUMED AND DESTROYED, BUT WE HAVE PEACE WITH HONOR, AND OUR BOYS ARE AT HOME. SPECIAL INTERESTS ARE DEMANDING WAR, AND THE PRESIDENT IS BEING CRITICIZED WITH MANY WORDS, BUT STRIPPED OF ALL UNNECESSARY WORDS THEIR REAL COMPLAINT IS THAT HE HAS NOT PLUNGED THE COUNTRY INTO WAR FOR THEIR PROFIT.

There has been much talk of the attitude of the so-called "hyphenates." To my mind these are merely sentimental Americans, men and women, who, like myself, have a feeling of love for the place of their birth. My observation has shown that among the best of Americans are these citizens.

To all these let me say: I know from many conversations with Mr. Wilson his absolute neutrality among all the nations at war, his intense devotion to peace, his deep desire to serve all the peoples of all those countries impartially. Any single act apparently against any one of these countries is made only in pursuance of his duty as President of the United States and his duty to mankind.

I know positively he bears no ill will to Germany or to England, or France, or Austria, or any of those countries at war, but he does understand and is opposing that invisible government, that unseen hand which caused this war. I believe those same selfish forces that caused the war are opposing the President's re-election.

I AM FOR WILSON because he caused to be passed a large number of wise and humane laws, most of which had been promised by the politicians of both parties for many years without fulfillment.

No one class has been favored, no one disregarded. He has served the United States as a whole.

Among these laws are:

THE FEDERAL RESERVE LAW, which wrested from Wall Street its monopoly of finance, released credit, forbade usury and dispelled the fear of money panics which hung over every business. It has done away with the concentration of money in the hands of a few men in Wall Street, and distributed it among twelve Government controlled reserve banks throughout the country. The passage of this law alone, from the viewpoint of the honest business man, should entitle Woodrow Wilson to re-election.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAWS—The eight-hour day issue has suddenly sprung into great prominence.

I say to you from experience and not from guess work, that the eight-hour day will help both employers and employes. We have had the eight-hour day in force in the Ford factory for nearly three years, and it has been a complete success from every point of view.

I AM FOR WILSON because he favors the eight-hour day. The President has declared that he is in favor of the eight-hour day in all kinds of business, except a very few in which it is impracticable, as, for instance, farming.

The President has been criticized for the passage of the Adamson eight-hour law, which applies to railroads, but that law averted the wholesale ruin which a universal railway strike would have brought. A strike had been ordered. It meant the closing of factories, violence, and the enforced idleness of millions of persons and the loss of millions of dollars. Neither side to the struggle took into consideration the one hundred million people who would have to bear the burden. Every business man in the country was trembling with fear. The President acted as the representative of all the people, and the strike was prevented and the principle of an eight-hour day endorsed. Seventy-four Republican Congressmen voted for the bill, and no word of protest came from the Republican candidate, although the law was under consideration for several days.

Mr. Wilson showed great wisdom and courage in preventing this strike, which would have paralyzed the nation.

The Commission which has been appointed to study the effect of this law will, I hope, report that with increased efficiency the railroads will not need higher rates. But in any case this action is, I believe and hope, the first step towards the government ownership and operation of railroads.

THE RURAL CREDITS LAW, under which the farmer is enabled to borrow long time loans on small payments, at low rates of interest; and it promises an annual saving of $150,000,000 to farmers who were formerly the hopeless victims of loan sharks. These rural credit banks are now being established by the Commission in various parts of the country.

THE CHILD LABOR LAW, which prevents employment of young children in factories and stops the coining of dividends out of the lives of little children. There is no factory and no institution that can possibly give any care equal to a mother's care.

A WISE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW, providing compensation to those injured while in the service of the government, which measure will lead to "safety first."

THE LAW CREATING THE NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION, which will go into effect very soon, and which has taken the tariff out of politics and placed it in the hands of a commission of different parties, so that tariffs can be altered as conditions change.

THE GOOD ROADS LAW, which provides $75,000,000 for improving highways throughout the United States under adequate safeguards, which will facilitate transportation. This will help the country feed the city.

The farmer will be greatly benefited by not being compelled to waste his energies on bad roads. Fruits and vegetables today are rotting on the farms from lack of good roads.

THE INCOME TAX LAW AND THE INHERITANCE TAX LAW, which readjust the burdens of taxation, compelling the wealthy to bear a fair share of the load which has hitherto rested all too heavily on the backs of the poor.

THE AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION LAW, which provides an annual appropriation for the direct education of the farmer, in order that the farms of the land may be worked with greater efficiency and upon a sound and scientific basis and produce larger crops for the benefit of all our people.

THE ALASKAN RAILWAY LAW, which provided a railroad built and operated by the government, and which has opened up the resources of that great territory in the interests of the PEOPLE, not for the benefit of the few.

THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION LAW, which creates a non-partisan Board to arbitrate commercial disputes, to prevent unfair competition and to stand as a barrier between the consumer and extortion.

THE GRAIN ANTI-GAMBLING LAW, which provides better grain storage facilities, and enables the farmer to obtain certificates on which loans may be secured. He is thus enabled to borrow on the products of his labor—and is not compelled to sell during unfavorable times.

THE SAFETY-AT-SEA LAW, through the passage of which ships now carry more life-saving equipment, and the general living conditions of sailors at sea have been improved.

THE COTTON FUTURES LAW, which prevents gambling in cotton in stock exchanges and establishes standards for cotton. I hope the President will find some way to pass a law to prevent all speculation in stocks.

THE CLAYTON ANTI-TRUST LAW, which does away with interlocking directorates, prevents railway looting, ends the abuse of the injunction, and declares the great truth that a "Man's labor is not a commodity but a part of his life."

THE ABOVE RECORD OF PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION in the interest of all the people and not of the few, far excels any ever before known in our history.

THOMAS A. EDISON SAYS THAT PRESIDENT WILSON AND HIS COLLEAGUES IN CONGRESS, BOTH DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS, HAVE ENACTED MORE LAWS FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE INDUSTRIOUS PEOPLE IN THE PAST THREE YEARS THAN THE REPUBLICAN PARTY HAS IN ALL THE TIME IT WAS IN POWER; and it is because of these laws and his leadership in the interest of all the people that the President is being fought by the special interests, by every master of Wall Street, every monopolist, every munition maker, every man with a special interest to serve. No business man should oppose Wilson, because Wilson is the greatest friend honest business ever had in the White House.

GREAT PROSPERITY COVERS THE LAND AS NEVER BEFORE. LEGITIMATE ENTERPRISE IS ASSURED A PROPER REWARD. THERE ARE NO BREAD LINES, AND EVERYBODY IS EMPLOYED THAT WANTS TO BE. OUR PEOPLE ARE CONTENTED, PROSPEROUS, AND HAPPY. WHY SHOULD WE MAKE A CHANGE?

In order to carry out his work President Wilson will need the co-operation of a Congress thoroughly in accord with his own far-seeing policy. It is our plain duty as voters to send back to Congress the right men, irrespective of party, to assist the President in the great tasks that face him.

A Second for a Second

By Oney Fred Sweet

THERE was one cornet player in the Eau Claire (Wis.) band who had been away from town for quite awhile and had just come back—I could tell by the way he was being greeted by his old pals who were busy clamoring for ringside seats to the fight.

This particular player in the band was standing just in front of me back there on the Eau Claire opera house stage. I don't know what he worked at in the daytime, but he was only partially in uniform. His name was Ed.

Old acquaintances would come working their way along among the chairs as best they could with their heavy overcoats on, catch sight of Ed, and say: "Well, well; shake hands; how long you going to stay among us this time?" And Ed, gripping his cornet and black bound music book with his left arm, would stick out his right with an assortment of answers.

His best answer, I thought was: "O, I may be gone again tomorrow. Been down to Beaver Dam all summer. Home with me is anywhere I happen to hang my hat."

Which went to show that Eau Claire was not so big but what it kept more or less track of its children.

The prize fight had been the occasion of a band headed automobile procession down main street with the dining room girls at the Eau Claire house leaning out third story windows. Every ounce of red blood in Eau Claire had gotten past the door tenders one way or another.

Finally the prodigal Ed tucked his cornet farther back under his left arm and turned toward me. "There ain't an empty seat in the house right now," he remarked. "Who do you think'll win?"

"Naturally I'll say Anderson," I answered, "being that I am one of his—one of his seconds."

"O, ho!" nodded Ed. "Well, it's just as I was telling the bunch down in the barber shop this afternoon, this fight means a lot. One of these two big fellows is bound to go against Willard for the heavyweight championship. They're both big enough. What kind of shape is your man in?"

"Couldn't be better," I says, just as if it wasn't the first prize fight I'd ever been to in my life. "I suppose all you fellows who play in the band got in free. If—excuse me, they're calling for me in Anderson's dressing room now."

Anderson's trainer, King Brady, and his manager, Kid Howard, were both busy bandaging the fighter's hands as I entered the dressing room. Stripped down to trunks and shoes, the giant was smilingly holding out his hands while the tape was being wound across his knuckles. I hung up my coat and hat and went to fetch a pail of water and a hunk of ice. When I returned the crimson sweatered and spectacled King Brady, last season's trainer for the Cubs, gave me final words in instruction:

"Now listen; you want to get that chair back between the ropes just as soon as the bell clangs. Forget what I told you about swinging towels; the rules here call for fans. Hunt 'em up—two palm leaf fans."

"And don't get excited," interjected Anderson.

"No, for the love of Mike, don't get excited out there when things start," added the check suited Kid Howard. "Act just as unconcerned as if there was nothing going on at all. Don't work too fast between rounds, but make every move count."

"I won't get excited," I hastened.

The band that had come back on the stage was bursting forth again, the big bass being right close to our dressing room door. Out on the stage where many a one night stand actor had trod the boards ropes had been stretched in the form of a square. The curtain had gone up while I had been out after the pail of water and I had caught a glimpse of the packed balcony and gallery. Big Fred Fulton, humped over on a trunk beside Frank Force and Harry Sherman, a dressing gown flung over his shoulders, had grabbed me by the arm as I had passed him.

"So you're one of Anderson's seconds," said Fulton.

"Yes, sir," I stammered.

He was three men in one, Fulton was. Down in my heart I felt he was going to get licked and I was half sorry for him. Over in the lobby of the Eau Claire house that day the two six-foot-fivers had strolled about without speaking to each other. There was no love between them; each stood in the other's way to Willard.

I had eaten breakfast with Anderson. He had ordered a piece of toast and an egg. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, following his cross country run, we had had a big steak cooked for him, but his breakfast was light. While buttering his toast he had inquired of the pretty dining room girl if "the other big fellow had been down yet."

"I guess he's upstairs snoring," concluded Anderson, turning toward me. "Well, we'll see if we can't make him do some more snoring tonight."

After supper the town had come down to hang about the Eau Claire house. Out in front of the lobby window smallboydom had stood close to the panes—eyes widened, noses and cheeks reddened by the fall chill, mouths expressing tense interest.

"Look," I remarked to Anderson as he towered above me at the cigar case, "look how you are being hero worshiped!"

"And it was just a few years ago," he answered, "that I was a kid like that and saw Rohdel fight in Milwaukee. To me Rohdel seemed so wonderful then, and yet the time came when I fought him in New York—fought him and knocked him out."

Turning toward the cigar case, the nattily dressed giant had begun toying with the dice box. In a few hours the thing for which he had so carefully trained would be over. Either he would come forth victor and the contender for the world's championship, with all the fame and fortune attending it, or—— But there was to be no "or" to it. For his size he was one of the best boxers in the game. King Brady had not only put him in the pink of condition but he had also developed his left hand wallop. If he were not in such splendid condition he would be irritable and peevish.

During that after supper hour of hero worship Fulton had sat for the most part in one of the office chairs, his shoulders towering above mankind in the vicinity. To me the former plasterer's color appeared sallow. I could see that he was still boyish of nature—a big, bashful 24 year old boy. He had not yet learned to pose; the limelight seemed to make him ill at ease.

And now the fight was but a few minutes off. Anderson's hands finally bandaged, he reached for the can of talcum powder himself and scattered the contents over the tape so that his gloves would slip on easily.

Ed and the rest of his bunch wound up "No. 21" piece in the black bound music books, and Anderson and King Brady and Kid Howard and I wound our way through the ringside chairs to our corner.

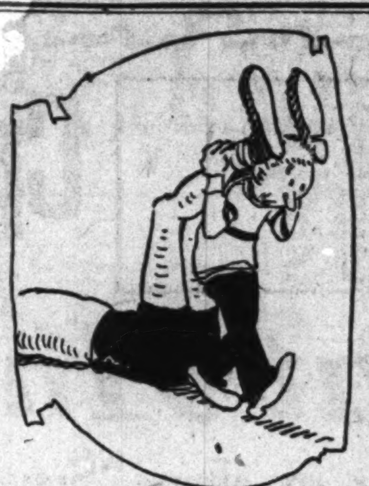
I don't remember much about the formal introduction of the gladiators to the audience. I was too much occupied in going over and over in my mind the things I must do and do just right when the first round should end.

Suddenly Anderson, who had been sitting in our corner on a low chair, his long limbs sprawled before him and his gloved hands resting on the ropes, arose and met Fulton in the center of the ring. I remember that as Fulton came forward I noticed his face had lost its bashful, boyish look. His face was deathly white under the glare of the electrics; his lips were set tight, his nostrils dilating.

Just for an instant or two they sparred. And then—— Anderson had gone crashing through the ring ropes. The ropes had given way with him and the posts to which they were attached lopped to one side. I saw Anderson try to rise from his crumpled posture and attempt to disentangle himself from the ropes. Something sudden and crushing and bewildering had happened to him. His smile was gone. He was trying to figure out what had happened. With wabbling head he looked from side to side as the confused referee began to count. Before the count of nine he had forced himself to his feet.



SOMEHOW WE GOT HIM TO HIS DRESSING ROOM.

Both King Brady and Kid Howard had impressed upon me the importance of a fighter's staying game mentally. They had told me how times without number they had revived a fighter's courage with a bite on the ear or a severe bawling out. But even in that tense moment I could see that both King Brady and Kid Howard appeared resigned, even though Anderson was finally able to rise to his feet before being counted out. Believers in sticking to the ship, they were experts nevertheless in knowing when the ship had done sunk.

So far as I was concerned the fight wasn't over yet. The two were sparring again. I clutched at the two palm leaf fans I held and began making ready to shove the chair back through the ropes when the gong should sound.

True, they were sparring again. But Anderson was pounding his own gloved hand in his own face in an effort to drive away the cobwebs. He would be himself soon, I figured. A little rest between rounds and——

Alas, a swift nip to the chin and a clout to the ribs and Anderson was on his hands and knees—first on his hands and knees and then rolling on his back on the floor.

One may have all the mental gameness in the world, there may be no such thing as quit in a man's nature, but if a brick building falls on one, one is pretty apt to lie quiet anyhow. And before dropping to his hands and knees Anderson's great naked body had seemed to shiver in every nerve and muscle.

We lifted him over to his corner and somehow we got him to his dressing room, where he drooped into his chair and lowered his head into his gloved hands. When we came to leave I noticed that the empty ringside chairs had been overturned from hurried departures and the ring ropes and poles sagged almost to collapse. Out in front the opera house was dark and emptied and the card at the side of the stage still read "round one."

There had been no spilling of blood, no broken noses, no split lips, but the man whom we helped along down the street to the hotel was still in a haze. Fulton, in his street clothes and with a grip in his hand preparatory to taking the first train back to Minneapolis, was standing on the hotel steps as we approached.

"Well," he says to me, "you didn't get much chance to get in your second work."

"Aw," I answered, "you just happened to get in those last two biffs."

"Those last two biffs didn't count," poohed Fulton. "They were [illegible] taps. It was the first clout in the jaw that finished things. He left me an opening and I put it across. He was on his way to dreamland the instant it landed."

"And I suppose you think you're smart," I retorted.

Mr. Fulton stepped toward me and I'll say it was as if I was looking up the side of a skyscraper. His big right hand reached down and clinched about my shoulder until I winced.

"Some day," he says, "some day I'm going to meet Jess Willard and give him the same kind of a clout in the jaw that will make me champion of the world."

And I, looking back at him, didn't contradict him at all.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

NOVEMBER

The Last Blossoms.

IN THIS jocund season of colorful life when leaves are wind-driven from the trees there comes a period of delicate beauty which is to autumn what the moment of the shad bush blossom is to spring.

When the time of most brilliant coloring is gone from the woods, when there are filaments of foliage instead of masses against the sky, when woods and thickets have been opened and stand as a revealed structure of brown and yellow trunks and stems, when the flame of early fall is flickering out the wych hazel in the fullness of its blossoms commands the scene.

Until the thinning out process has reduced the foliage of summer to the gossamer of fall, the wych hazel, although blossoming does not dominate. It is hidden in the small oak and viburnum, the last flowering thing which is to enrich the woods for the eye, but the falling leaves must drop the curtains before the yellow blossoms of the many bushes spread a golden mist which reflects the golden quality of the mellow sunlight.

The moment of beauty in the spring when the shad bush blossoms has this advantage for its white petals: the budding foliage; the wych hazel gives colorful serenity to the falling leaves, to the mellow, jocund days, jovial and benignant on the threshold of stimulating rigors, snow flurries and winter charms.

STOCKMEN and other salesmen of my acquaintance—I recently have become associated with a syndicate composed of some of the best business men in Chicago who are backing the squarest and most attractive stock proposition going. Even men with little or no previous stock selling experience are making big money. Plenty of good leads, splendid commissions and the best kind of co-operation and backing from men of standing and influence. It is one of the few propositions that you would be willing to put your own money into. Stock going fast. Men are earning from $100 to $500 a week. Can take care of a few more men who have the ability to do likewise. No advances. H. B. Tracy, 1601 Harris Trust Bldg.

TRAVELING SALESMAN—SELLING TO banks, to sell on commission, as a leader or side line, the most attractive pocket bank on the market. Give age, experience, and present line. Address Y 282, Tribune.

WANTED—AN ASSISTANT to our General Sales Manager.

This man must be around 35 years of age, good personality, appearance, and exceptionally convincing talker. Must be forceful, a quick thinker, and capable of making quick decisions. He also must have had experience in selecting high grade, capable salesmen and be able to formulate a correct opinion of prospective salesmen through correspondence and personal interviews.

This position requires the services of an unusually capable man and will pay a satisfactory salary to the man who can show us that he will measure up to these requirements and qualify.

This will be a splendid permanent connection with the largest manufacturing concern of its kind in the world. Tell us all about yourself in your first letter and why you think you are the man we are looking for.

Address by mail only. Box 20, Lord & Thomas, Mallers Building, Chicago.

WANTED—WOULD YOU LIKE TO MAKE $5,000 and associate yourself with large corporation backed by responsible business men? You can make small fortune with our new selling plan. Address P. O. Box 589, Memphis, Tenn.

YOUNG MAN—AMBITIOUS TO SELL ADvertising; to one who has industry, perseverance, a good presence, and reasonable persuasive powers an opportunity is offered to learn the business and to establish himself in a permanent position; previous experience in selling advertising not especially desired; small salary to begin, increasing as ability develops; prefer a man now employed, who wishes to develop himself in a broader field; give as full particulars as possible. Address P S 81, Tribune.

YOUNG MAN—WIDE AWAKE; TO ACT AS salesman on strictly commission basis; experience unnecessary. Address P S 60, Tribune.

WE WANT TO ADD SEVERAL MEN TO our organization to fill vacancies made possible by the recent extension of our business and by consequent promotion of men from the ranks; prefer men who have had grocery, laundry, bakery, milk, or other clerk experience, or who have sold household commodities; liberal to producers; no investment; bond and references. Address P J 114, Tribune.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

WANTED—FIVE WELL APpearing, sincere and earnest salesmen to handle leads resulting from heavy advertising. We prepare you thoroughly, finance you. Returns to successful workers are high and promotion certain. Men of character wanted. We cannot spend our time interviewing any one else. Call Room 917 Manhattan Building.

We Have Spent $1,000,000

getting ready for you, Mr. Salesman, and we are ready now for business. Are you?

We are out to connect with men who can get the business if they get the opportunity. This will be a national advertising campaign on a completely new idea of retailing to the purchaser at wholesale prices, a proposition that combines "Safety First" and an unrivalled opportunity for speculation. It is a security and an option with 10% annual increase in units of $250 up and on payments as low as $10 monthly.

We want agents who will follow up and close leads secured by our constant advertising. Our commissions will be liberal, our advertising will be high class and plenty of it, and we will pay expenses for examination of the property, but business must be strictly on a commission basis, for we only want live agents who are looking for connection with a big, responsible firm, who are experienced in their line.

We have been getting ready for several years and have spent one million dollars. We are ready now to launch a campaign that will be a whirlwind during this winter.

Our property is in the south and combines attractions that will appeal to all investors. It is ready now and the investing public is ready for just this opportunity, as our price is so low and our proposition so convincingly put in our handsomely illustrated booklets that the business is waiting for the salesman. We want salesmen who can make us write three figure commission checks weekly. If you believe you are the man we want, write today.

E. T. ANDERSON,
110 S. Dearborn-st., Chicago.

Exceptional Opportunity.

TO BUY AND TAKE POSSESSION OF A PRODUCTIVE IRRIGATED FARM, WITH NEW BUILDINGS, WITHIN DRIVING DISTANCE OF DENVER, COLO.

At ten annual payments.

The first installment payable on Dec. 1, 1917.

Complete equipment of live stock, farm machinery, and tools; also seed, poultry, and feed furnished for deposit with trustee of SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS.

The colonist has to have also $400 for living expenses for the first year. Thus the experienced farmer colonist with but ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS can take possession of a fully equipped sixty acre irrigated farm, make a good living out of the crops of his own farm, be enabled to pay when the installments become due, and retain some money for margin of safety. A great many fine farms in this section prove that the soil is fertile, the water supply abundant, and the climate favorable for growing crops. No crop failures under irrigation, which is easy to learn. This land is free of stones, swamps, and stumps. Come before the last of these fully equipped, good farms has been sold. All reasonable assistance extended free of charge by

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Florida.

A POTATO FARM AND INDEPENDENCE.

We show you the way to better your condition, escape from the worry and grind of an office, shop, or factory, live in a land of flowers, fruit, and sunshine, right under your own Stars and Stripes, where there's no snow to shovel or coal to buy; no other climate like it in the United States. Where a progressive community is established, with schools, stores, churches, bank, artesian mineral health giving water, fine roads, boating, bathing, hunting, fishing. 365 day growing climate, where oranges, grapefruit, and other citrus fruits, potatoes, and all truck crops are grown in midwinter. General farming, corn, oats, cattle, hogs, poultry; close to markets, rail and water transportation.

Crops are being harvested and shipped at big prices right now. We want particularly potato and cabbage growers immediately. 10 acres oranges and grapefruit sold on trees for $7,700.

Our booklets, "The Winter Garden of America," or "The Potato, Mankind's Greatest Blessing," free if you're interested. Specially conducted low fare excursion to Vero, Florida, free to purchasers, November 7th; reservations now being made. Full information. Call, write, or phone.

If You Own Any Land in Florida Why Not Have It Make Money?

Knowing the superiority of Florida oranges and grapefruit, you doubtless eat them whenever possible. When you tried to buy these fruits during the spring you found them scarce and high priced. Since early summer, probably, you have been unable to secure any.

Why? Not enough Florida oranges and grapefruit are grown to give general and uniform distribution. This is especially true of the late varieties, ripening in the months of April, May and June, the supply of which is far less than the demand.

If you own land in Florida that is not in production, why not put it to work growing citrus fruits? We can tell you if your land is adapted to these, and, if so, how to make good groves, even if you are not in a position to give them personal supervision. Write us today.

Isle of Pines.

THIS WONDER SPOT OF THE WORLD, the land of flowers, fruit, and sunshine, located south of Cuba and 1,000 miles closer to Chicago than Calif., offers an unusual opportunity to combine a Winter home and a remunerative investment. The scenery is beautiful beyond description and the climate unsurpassed. Automobiling on wonderful roads; boating, bathing, and fishing 365 days a year. The purest of water, combined with an invigorating atmosphere, makes the Isle of Pines the rival of Carlsbad, where there are no frosts or cold and no heat prostrations. For sufferers from rheumatism, nervous disorders, stomach and kidney troubles this island presents a haven of health, where ocean salt water and warm fresh water bathing are in close proximity. The possibilities for making money from citrus fruit growing are unequaled. One 30 acre grove of grapefruit has netted its owner over $50,000 this season. I must sell my 40 acre grapefruit grove with 3,000 trees at once, and will sacrifice and make suitable terms if taken at once. Address P G 301, Tribune.

Michigan.

If Peace Comes.

WHEAT IS THE HIGHEST it has been for twenty-eight years, beans were never so high, rutabagas have gone up 310%, cabbage 150%, and potatoes in proportion. These are only a few samples. This means increase in land values everywhere.

THE BRITISH CHANCELLOR says that his country has to find $10,000,000 for every working day to meet expenditures in America. Food is not going up because people are getting high wages, nor are people getting high wages because food is high. If peace comes in the near future and our factories lay off their employes, and you are one of them, you cannot expect the price of living to be much less for years to come.

THE SUREST WAY to become independent is to start at once to secure a piece of farm land. A reaction in the labor situation is bound to come, and many men are right now preparing against that time by purchasing land in the Swigart Tract on our easy payment plan. Our October sales were the largest for any month for several years.

THE GOVERNMENT is doing great things for farmers, and no matter which party wins at the polls next Tuesday the farmers' interests are going to be promoted. Of all the industries of America, agriculture is the most important.

AMERICA AS A WHOLE is getting rich fast. The money will not remain idle. Real estate and land are favorite investments. New lands are more profitable because of the bigger rise in value from development and greater earning capacity for the amount invested.

THE SWIGART TRACT is a well advanced, permanent, colonizing project, offering new lands to farm renters and young men who have to leave the farming districts of other states because of land scarcity. Its lands in Manistee, Mason, Lake, and Wexford Counties are in Michigan's Clover and Fruit Belt, near the center of population of the U. S. and big national markets. Transportation, both lake and rail, roads, schools, living, and farming conditions are all good. The crops include clover, rye, oats, wheat, vetch, alfalfa, barley, millet, timothy, 90-day and fodder corn, peas, beans, vegetables, and big yields of potatoes, tree fruits and berries. Developed and well cared for orchards of apples, pears, peaches, plums, and cherries yield annual profits of $200 and up per acre. Cattle, hogs, sheep, and poultry thrive here.

A BIG OPPORTUNITY is offered you in present prices of $15 to $25 per acre and terms of $25 to $50 down and $7 to $10 per month on 40 acres, and the protection of insurance for the unpaid balance after part of your contract is paid.

A FULL DESCRIPTION of the lands, soils, and farming of this district is contained in a 72 page book illustrated with 115 photographic views. Send for it. I will mail it free, together with a large map. Call for it if you can and see my Little Land Show.

MY NEXT SPECIAL EXCURSION will be Tuesday, November 14th. Come and see "what the harvests be." Party leaves my Chicago offices at 11:20 a. m. Round trip from Chicago to Wellston, my Michigan headquarters, including railroad fare, meals, and lodging, $12.50. Accommodations for both men and women. Automobiles and guides free. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons.

Announcement

We are closing out our Farm Lands located in the Famous Mississippi Delta or Valley, between Memphis and Vicksburg in Mississippi—the richest and most productive agricultural locality in the South.

Write for our list containing forty-one separate tracts, with plat, description, and agricultural conditions, which includes highly improved grain, hay, and cattle farms, producing an income and a steady increase in land value; also all year cattle range land.

Exchange for other property will not be considered, but we will make terms if required.

Here is an opportunity to get a highly improved rich farm at about half the actual cost. A perfectly safe investment in a well settled healthy locality.

We are manufacturers of lumber on a large scale and find it desirable to liquidate our farm holdings. Prompt action important.

A
Investment

A Rebuilt Cadillac
Is the Safest Investment
It Is Possible to Make.

Rebuilt Cadillacs are superior to any new car at the same price. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is as good as new in every detail.

We are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in the new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them. We have a variety of body styles to choose from at the present time.

NOTE NEW PRICES

1916 Victoria coupe	$1,750
1916 7 pass. Touring	1,550
1915 7 pass. Touring with dem. winter top	1,900
1915 Salon Touring	1,250
1915 7 pass. Touring	1,250
1914 Touring	800
1913 Limousine	1,250
1913 Touring	700
1912 Touring	500

A few Cadillacs which have not been rebuilt but are in good condition will be sold at substantial reductions.

We also have a very select list of miscellaneous makes at attractive prices.

BUSINESS FOR SALE—

Two prominent Chicago men, one the president of an advertising agency, the other a manufacturer, have developed a "side line" business which has outgrown their expectations.

Neither one can afford to leave his own business to manage this new one.

And the NEW BUSINESS has every earmark of becoming a tremendous national success IF MANAGED RIGHTLY.

$6,000 has been spent by these two men in the last 90 days to PERFECT this new business. To duplicate the work already done would now cost much more.

Therefore, this business is for sale, either ALL or a controlling interest.

Applications will only be considered from men who have or can raise $6,000. The buyer should also be experienced in the handling of salesmen and know advertising.

This is an unusual, bona fide proposition. Highest commercial and bank references given and required. Address P D 481, Tribune.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

AN UNUSUAL SUBDIVISION OPPORTUNITY

A subdivision of one of the most rapidly growing cities in the south has become the property of several business men and bankers through the failure of the principal owner in another line of business.

Situated partly within the city limits, real estate specialists pronounce this one of the finest subdivisions in the south. Each lot has a bonded guaranteed value. The retail selling prices total $385,000.

The present holders, having no real estate experience, will sacrifice the property at about one-fifth of the retail price and on terms which will present an excellent opportunity for the right parties to make an enormous profit.

To the capable, experienced real estate operator with some money, whose character and past achievements indicate ability to handle an undertaking of this type, an unusually attractive proposal will be made. Address

R. V. COVINGTON,
Jacksonville, Florida.

RECEIVER'S SALE—BY ORDER OF THOS. G. Windes, judge of Circuit court, goods and stock of Greenleaf Buffet and Cafe, 2759 W. COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—COTTON—While irregular, the market showed an upward tendency today on buying which was attributed chiefly to local covering for over the week end and the national election. March contracts advanced from 18.89c to 19.12c and closed at 19.06c, with the general list closing steady at a net advance of 6@13 points. The opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 12 points under overnight selling orders, with January selling at 18.70c and May at 19.08c, or about 30@33 points under the best level reached on the rally of yesterday morning. Futures:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
December	18.87	19.00	18.80	18.98	18.87
January	18.85	19.00	18.78	18.97	18.88
March	18.92	19.12	18.89	19.06	18.98
May	19.07	19.28	19.03	19.22	19.15
July	19.06	19.27	19.03	19.25	19.14

Spot quiet, middling upland, 18.95c; no sales.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 4.—COTTON—Was quiet today, with the recent tendency to even up strengthened by the nearness of the presidential election and the government report on ginning. Prices hardened toward the close on short covering on the week end, but at the highest the trading months were at a net rise of only 8@15 points. The close was 7@9 up, net. Futures:

	High.	Low.	Close.
December	18.36	18.21	18.35
January	18.55	18.35	18.49
March	18.78	18.59	18.72
May	18.96	18.76	18.90
July	....	.....	19.02

Spot steady and unchanged. Sales, 243 bales; middling, 18.25c.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—SUGAR—Following prices were quoted by the wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $9.18; powdered, standard, $8.26; standard cane granulated, $7.98; beet granulated, $7.78; extra C, $7.78; canary, $7.38.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—There were no new features in any department of the sugar trade and business was very quiet. In raws there were buyers at 5½@5 9-16c for Cubas for prompt and nearby shipment, but holders were still asking 5⅝c. In the absence of new business spot prices were nominally unchanged at 5 7-16c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.46c for centrifugal and 5.59c for molasses. Except for moderate withdrawals on old orders in refined sugar business was light, although the undertone was firm and prices unchanged at 7.50@7.60c for fine granulated. In futures operators appeared to be waiting fresh developments in the spot market. Trading was very quiet and principally in the way of evening up for over the week-end. Prices consequently were irregular and moved within a very narrow range, closing 3 points lower to 2 net higher. Sales were only 1,000 tons. December sold from 5.17c to 5.19c, closing 5.18c; January, 4.75@4.58c, closing 4.58c; February, 4.29@4.30, closing 4.29c; May closed 4.33c; July, 4.40c.

Hog prices at Chicago yesterday were 10c lower than Friday's average, or about steady with that day's closing level. Receipts were only 17,000 head, but there were nearly 12,000 hogs left from the previous day and the supply on sale exceeded requirements. Packers and shippers were good buyers at the decline and the stale supply on hand was well cleared, although values showed no recovery. Top sales were at $9.80 and the bulk at $9.15@9.65.

Final prices made hogs generally [illegible] lower than a week ago. Some of the prime heavy grades showed a decline of only 40c, but many of the lightweights were as much as 60@90c lower for the week. Pigs showed a decline og $1.00@1.25. Receipts for the week aggregated around 237,800 head and were the largest of any week since February, 1915.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 5,900; Swift & Co., 3,000; Wilson & Co., 2,000; Morris & Co., 1,300; Anglo-American, 3,000; Hammond, 1,500; Boyd-Lunham, 600; Roberts & Oake, 1,000; Western Packing company, 3,000; Miller & Hart, 300; Independent Packing company, 1,200; Brennan Packing company, 1,200; butchers, 1,100; shippers, 1,500; total, 26,500; left over, 3,500.

CATTLE.

Range cattle and good to choice native steers sold higher at Chicago this week, while the plain short fed and grassy native steers sold and closed lower. Receipts for the week decreased about 10,000 head, nearly all of which was in the movement from the northwest ranges. Shipments fell off 4,000. Best natives reached $11.75, establishing a record mark for open market cattle here in November. Native cows and heifers closed [illegible] higher than a week ago, while calves made a gain of 50c.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 272,700, against 292,700 the preceding week, 234,400 a year ago, and [illegible] two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, [illegible] against 6,547,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Sheep and yearlings closed strong to [illegible] higher than a week ago, while lambs were 10@25c lower for the fat grades and [illegible] much higher for the feeders. Receipts for the week decreased more than 20,000 head, but specializing by buyers left the demand for heavy lambs, which formed the bulk of the supply, inadequate, while it lent strength to the market for the lightweight animals and the matured sheep. Yearlings were scarce and firmly held throughout the period. Shipments for the week were curtailed because of the scarcity and increased price of desirable feeding stock.

THE large number of important transactions, including downtown as well as outlying property, made last week's real estate market of a fairly sensational character, exceeding by a wide margin that of any week of the year.

The feature, of course, was the two transactions covering the property at 316-22 South Michigan avenue, eighty feet north of the Blacksotne hotel, the aggregate consideration of the two being $1,965,000. Some brokerage complications imparted an additional interest to the transaction.

The fee of the property, 80x172 feet, was first sold by the estate of Hetty H. R. Green to Frederick R. Barnheisel, the owner of the leasehold and building, thus merging the fee and leasehold, for $665,000. This transaction, which was preliminary to the sale of the property to Thomas C. Denehy for $1,300,000, was negotiated by Albert L. Straus. In the sale to Mr. Denehy Harry H. Harper of Oliver & Co. represented Mr. Denehy and Edward C. Waller Jr. Mr. Barnheisel.

Under 99 Year Lease.

The ground was leased by the late Hetty H. R. Green to John D. Murphy for a term of ninety-nine years from April 1, 1912, at an annual rent of $15,000 for the first five years, $20,000 for the next five years, $28,000 for the following thirty-nine years, and $35,000 for the remainder of the term. The sale of the fee to Mr. Barnheisel was on a 4 per cent basis for the first twenty years of the term.

The leasehold subsequently was sold by Mr. Murphy to Mr. Barnheisel for $105,000 and the present ten story building on the premises was erected. The original ground lease provided that should Mrs. Green at any time receive a bona fide offer for the fee she must first submit the offer and the property to the lessee and give him the privilege of buying the same within thirty days at the same price and upon the same conditions.

Estate Receives Good Offer.

Recently the estate of Mrs. Green received an offer of $665,000 for the fee and accordingly notified Mr. Barnheisel, with the result of his purchase and subsequent sale to Mr. Denehy.

The contract of purchase provides that Mr. Denehy may take over the leasehold interest and building within thirty days.

The legal details of the transaction for the purchaser were handled by Isador Blumenthal and for the seller by Emil C. Wetten.

McCormick Trustees Buy.

In another downtown transaction Nettie F. McCormick and Cyrus H. McCormick, as surviving trustees for Mary V. McCormick, purchased from Edward S. Atwater, president of the Farmers and Manufacturers National bank of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., the fee at 28-30 South Wabash avenue, east front, 40 feet south of Madison street, for $200,000. E. Orris Hart & Co. were the brokers, John A. Chapman and Judson F. Stone representing the McCormick estate.

The lot, 40x172 feet, was leased by the father of the present grantor to Edwin C. Donaldson in 1892 for ninety-nine years at an annual rent of $8,000, making the sale on a 4 per cent basis, thought to be the lowest rate any fee has sold for since the war.

Leasehold Sold for $375,000.

The leasehold interest and the five story building, which has been occupied by A. G. Spalding & Co. for many years, were sold in 1911 by Lucien M. Williams and the estate of Robert C. Ismond to the Northern Trust company, trustee, for $375,000, the trust company subsequently conveying to S. G. Pirie and others comprising the firm of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.

Adding the price paid for the fee to that paid for the leasheold estate gives a total of $575,000, which is at the rate of $14,375 a front foot and $83.58 a square foot.

One of the interesting features of the Atwater lease is the fact it contains a clause providing for an appraisal of the improvements at the expiration of the ninety-nine years' lease, giving the lessor the option to buy the buildings within sixty days or extend the lease for an additional ninety-nine years at an advance of 25 per cent on the present ground rent. The board of review valued the property at $416,614, of which $40,000 is in the building. W. B. McIlvaine attended to the legal details in the present sale of the fee.

MODEL FLAT FOR NORTHWEST SIDE

New Structure Just Completed at 3925 North Keeler Avenue.

KAUFMANN & FABRY CO. PHOTO

The Ferguson is the name of an attractive new apartment building which has just been completed for Dr. R. R. Ferguson at 3925-33 North Keeler avenue. It is of the court type, occupies a lot fronting 110 feet with a depth of 174 feet, and contains twenty-four apartments, twelve of four rooms and twelve five rooms. It is one block from the Irving Park station and with the land will represent an investment of $90'000.

SELLS 40 ACRES ON NORTH SHORE

Walters Estate Disposes of Tract on East Boundary of the Skokie.

An interesting transaction in north shore acres was reported in the sale by the Walters estate to Ayres Boal of a tract of forty acres on the east boundary of the Skokie in West Winnetka. The consideration is withheld, but it is said to have been $30,000, which is at the rate of $750 an acre.

A short time ago Mr. Boal purchased the forty acres lying south of the foot of North avenue in West Winnetka, at the intersection of Vernon avenue, for $30,000, also at the rate of $750 an acre. It is stated he will subdivide the entire tract into five acre tracts for high class estates. E. E. Stults of E. R. Haase & Co. represented both the parties to the transaction.

George F. Dixon and George W. Prassas have purchased from the North Avenue Building and Loan association a subdivision of seventy-three lots on Avers and Springfield avenues, between Argyle street and Foster avenue, for a reported consideration of $30,000, the purchasers giving back a part purchase money mortgage for $16,500.

Adjoins Albany Park.

It adjoins on the west the newer section of Ravenswood, known as Albany Park and Ravenswood Highlands. It is stated the same high class improvements will be maintained in the property just purchased. It is registered under the Torrens system of land registration.

Perry L. Smithers of the Booth Fisheries has purchased what is known as the Edward J. Lies farm, northwest of Wilmette. The farm comprises eighty acres, and the consideration is given at $16,000, said to be a record figure for farm property in that vicinity. It is stated Mr. Smithers will improve it with an attractive residence and occupy it as a country home. Paul Schroeder & Co. were the brokers.

Evanston Vacant Deal.

A noteworthy transaction in Evanston vacant was reported in the sale by the estate of D. E. Murphy of Milwaukee, Wis., to A. P. Morey of the entire two blocks of Central street frontage between Asbury and Jackson avenues, with a total north frontage of 600 feet, with a depth of 138 feet.

The consideration is not disclosed, but it is stated the inside property has been held at $40 a front foot and the corners at $60 a foot. It is stated it is not thought the purchaser has any immediate plans looking to the improvement of the property. This is the last of the Evanston Park addition which was placed on the market three years ago by McGuire & Orr.

REPLEVIN SUIT FOR REALTY CONTRACT BARES MIXUP

Negotiations for the sale of the Kellshore apartment hotel at 718-56 Irving Park boulevard led to a curious tangle in the Municipal court during the week.

Suit was filed to replevin what is described as a contract between Nelson T. Kell, owner of the building, and the Edgewood Farms, Inc., owned by S. W. Kieckhefer of Milwaukee. County Recorder Joseph T. Connery was made defendant, the document having been filed of record in his office. But there's a division of opinion as to what it's all about.

According to Fred A. Bangs, attorney for Kell, a contract covering the sale was drawn up by his client and filed by an employé of the real estate firm of W. S. Hennessey & Co., who was in a hurry to get his commission, despite the fact that Kieckhefer, the purchaser, had refused to sign it. Kell, his lawyer said, knew nothing of it until he read an announcement that the sale had been completed.

This version was denied flatly by the head of the real estate firm. "If Mr. Kieckhefer didn't have the contract filed I have no idea who did," he said.

LEITER ESTATE GETS SITE

The estate of L. Z. Leiter has acquired from Kate Clifford et al. the property in South State street 80 feet north of Eighth street, 20x138 feet, west front, for $80,000. The Leiter estate owns the property adjoining at the northeast corner.

WRIGLEY PURCHASES PLANT FOR BUTTERINE COMPANY.

In an interesting deal in west side manufacturing property the Dairy Farm Products Company of New Jersey sold to William Wrigley Jr. the property at 509-19 North Union street. The lot is 120x150 feet and is improved with a seven story concrete building, 40x90 feet in size, and a six story mill building, 80x150 feet.

It formerly was occupied by the Jelke company, which sold it to the Dairy Farms Product company, which used it for the manufacture of process butter. The company went into liquidation and the property was acquired by Mr. Wrigley. The consideration is withheld, but the asking price is said to have been about $125,000.

It will be occupied by the James T. Downey company, butterine manufacturers, with which Mr. Wrigley is connected. It is stated the two buildings will be thoroughly remodeled at a large expense, estimated at about $200,000. Cremin & O'Connor were the brokers.

BUYS 40 FEET OF VACANT

Charles Antoine has sold to Arthur A. Goes the fifty feet of vacant just south of the attractive colonial residence at 4940 Kimbark avenue, which Mrs. Goes purchased last August. The vacant is said to have sold for $10,000. J. J. Parker of J. Grafton Parker & Co. and H. E. Goettler of A. Edward Frear were the brokers.

BIG ADDITION TO PLANT

The announcement is made that the Western Electric company is about to construct a building to contain 300,000 square feet at Hawthorne as an addition to the telephone apparatus shop there. Its cost is placed at $700,000.

COUNCIL BODY REVERSES ITSELF ON HIGH BUILDING.

In order to permit the erection of an $800,000 apartment building at Goethe and Stone streets, the city council committee on buildings on Friday agreed to recommend to the council that a special permit be granted to Eugene A. Bournique & Co. for the construction of the building. About two weeks ago the aldermen refused Bournique & Co. a permit.

Their objection was based on an old ordinance providing that where apartment buildings are flush with the lot line their height shall not exceed one and one-half times the width of the street. Mr. Bournique's building could not exceed ninety feet, but his plans called for a height of 105 feet.

PACKING FIRM TO BUILD $250,000 ADDITION TO PLANT

It is announced that Guggenheim Bros., packers, contemplate the erection of a large addition to their plant in the stockyards district to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. They have purchased from the John Eiszner company a plot of 34,500 square feet at the northwest corner of Forty-sixth and Loomis streets, fronting 275 feet on Forty-sixth street and 125 feet on Loomis street, for a reported consideration of $35,000, as the site for the proposed addition. Sidney Kahnweiler & Co. were the brokers.

The erection of a forty-five apartment building to cost over $160,000 is involved in the purchase by Harry C. Cottrell from Diana E. Colles of the 145x191 feet of ground at the northeast corner of Monroe street and St. Louis avenue. The consideration is nominal, but the actual figure is said to have been $20,000. In connection with the construction of the building S. W. Straus & Co. have made a bond issue loan of $115,000, seven years, at 6 per cent, to Mr. Cottrell. The building will be known as the Monroe apartments.

The construction of a $75,000 theater and office building on Twenty-sixth street west of Crawford avenue is involved in the purchase by Joseph Bernstein from Thomas Rosen of the 48x125 fet on Twenty-sixth street about 250 feet west of Crawford avenue for a reported consideration of $10,250. Morris Sex & Co. represented both parties.

REALTY BOARD TAKES UP COUNCIL'S ZONE PROJECT.

At the monthly meeting of the Chicago real estate board on Wednesday President Paul Steinbrecher appointed a committee consisting of Ernest H. Lyons, George H. Taylor, Harry Goldstine, John Gould, John P. Hooker, and Francis E. Broomell to coöperate with the Association of Commerce and other civic bodies over the proposed zone project, now under consideration by the city council.

A resolution was also adopted favoring a state law for the incorporation and supervision of private banks, the opinion being expressed that the city council should take no action until the legislature has had time to pass such a law.

George H. Taylor, Callistus S. Ennis, Henry T. Carr, Walter Mills, and Harry Goldstine were named as the nominating committee to select the regular ticket to be voted on at the approaching election of the board. A committee, of which Walter Mills is chairman, was appointed to investigate the proposed ordinance providing for concrete docks along the Calumet river.

BUILDING SHOWS BIG GAINS

Evidence of the great building activity of the year is found in the fact that the total cost of the permits issued for the ten months of the year is about equal to the cost of the permits issued for the entire year of 1915. Thus, the figures for the ten months of the present year are $96,926,550, as compared with $97,291,480 for the entire year 1915. There were 10,340 permits issued for 1915, as compared with 8,961 for the ten months of the present year. Little doubt remains now that a new building record will be hung up for the year.

BRISK TRADING IN APARTMENTS FEATURES WEEK

Nonresident's Extensive Purchase the Leading Deal Reported.

As was the case in connection with business property, there was much doing of an important character in apartment house property, the week's market in this respect offering a strong contrast to that of the previous week.

The features of the week's market were the purchases by G. E. Hotle, a nonresident, who in his own behalf and as the representative of others, closed the purchase of three properties for an aggregate consideration of $190,000. During the previous week he purchased from Harry Weymouth the twenty-one flat building at the northeast corner of Sherman and Madison avenues, Evanston, for a reported consideration of $70,000, making his total purchases for the last two weeks $260,000.

More Purchases in Evanston.

Last week he purchased from William H. Brown the twenty-one apartment building of three, four, and five rooms on a lot 100x150 feet at the southwest corner of Sherman and Seward avenues, Evanston, for a reported consideration of $75,000, subject to an incumbrance of $57,000.

He also has purchased from Mr. Brown the new twelve apartment building at the northwest corner of Seventieth street and Calumet avenue, on a lot 58x125 feet, for a reported consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $29,500, and the three new six apartment buildings, 6625-35 Ellis avenue, on a lot 160x135 feet, for a reported consideration of $75,000, or a grand total of $260,000. Mr. Hotle gave in part payment olive and alfalfa land near Oroville, Cal.

The transaction is particularly interesting as evidencing the confidence of nonresident investors in improved Chicago real estate. Krause, Beak & Co. represented all parties to the transaction.

Woodlawn Avenue Flat Sold.

The high grade thirty-six flat building at 5460-70 Woodlawn avenue on a lot 150x164 feet has been sold by C. A. Londelius to H. G. Dreis for a reported consideration of $140,000, subject to $80,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment an improved farm and tract of land in Langlade county, Wisconsin. V. Herrick represented Mr. Londelius and John Illigaudus represented Mr. Dreis.

There was filed for record the transfer of the new big Lake Park apartments on the east side of Lake Park avenue, 125 feet south of where Oakenwald avenue debouches into Lake Park avenue. The property has been conveyed by J. L. Duplissis, the builder, to John R. W. Sargent, the former owner of the ground.

The lot fronts 100 feet, with a depth of 304 feet to the Illinois Central right of way, and is improved with a court apartment building containing seventy-two apartments of three, four, and five rooms. The consideration is reported to have been in the neighborhood of $234,000, subject to three trust deeds aggregating about $200,000. The building was completed last spring and is said to have a reported gross annual rent of about $38,000 when filled. Chandler, Hildreth & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

Buys Washington Boulevard Flat.

John S. Erickson has sold to J. W. Bond the high grade nine apartment building just completed at 2909-13 Washington boulevard, lot 75x130 feet, for a reported consideration of $53,280, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500. In part payment the purchaser conveyed a farm near Kenosha of 317 acres, valued at $28,500, subject to $10,000. Regelin, Jenson & Co. represented Mr. Erickson and L. M. Courtney the purchaser.

Murray Wolbach has sold the new fifteen apartment building at the northwest corner of Jackson boulevard and Kilbourn avenue for a reported consideration of $48,500, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500. Mr. Wolbach took in part payment a two story store and flat brick building at 4243 West Twelfth street and a three flat building at 3232 West Congress street at a valuation of $16,000. Jesse T. Wilson represented both parties.

There was filed for record the transfer by F. G. Gustafson to Henry E. Hedberg of the high grade nine apartment building at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Forty-eighth street. The building, which is about three years old, occupies a lot 75x150 feet, the apartments containing nine and ten rooms. The building is said to have a gross annual rent of over $15,000. A nominal consideration is given in the deed, subject to an incumbrance of $60,000, but the actual figure is said to have been in the neighborhood of $110,000.

Prairie Avenue Deal.

The apartment building at 6224-34 Prairie avenue, lot 162x125 feet, which was sold by Herbert Slater to Albert B. Halvorsen, contains thirty apartments and is said to have a gross annual rent of $11,000. It was sold for a reported consideration of $100,000, subject to $57,100. Property at 317 Wendell street and Western and Shubert avenues was taken in part payment. W. E. Meyers & Co. were the brokers.

There is reason to believe the announcement of the sale by Nelson W. Kell to S. A. W. Kieckhefer of the apartment hotel at the northeast corner of Irving Park boulevard and Clarendon avenue at a reported price of $350,000, it being given in part payment of what is known as the Edgewood farm on Pewaukee lake, Wis., was premature.

Leases and Loans.

There was not much doing of a particularly important character in leases and loans last week, the only department of the week's business which compared unfavorably with that of the previous week.

The most important lease of business space in the downtown district, which was negotiated by E. F. Keebler & Co., covers the store and basement at 70 West Randolph street, which was leased by Ben Roth to George P. Chiagouris for ten years from Nov. 1 at a term rent of $75,000. The store adjoins the Olympic theater on the east and was just vacated by the Comfort Candy company, which recently went into the hands of a receiver.

The new lessee will remodel the store and occupy the same for a chocolate shop in connection with soda water and light lunches. The store contains about 1,800 square feet of floor space. The same brokers have also leased for James F. Porter to S. Raymond space on the fifth floor of the Loop End building, southeast corner of State and Lake streets, for ten years from Nov. 1 at a rent of $24,000 for the term.

The Central Realty and Investment company reports ten leases in the North American building for an aggregate rental of $24,700.

The Independent Drug company has added two more to its chain of stores. It has leased the store at the northwest corner of West Washington boulevard and Cicero avenue for ten years at a term rent of $15,000, and the store at the southwest corner of Forty-seventh and Vincennes avenue for ten years at a term rent of $8,000.

Russell D. Hill has just returned from abroad, where he purchased $980,500 in loans on American property, of which $887,500 are on Chicago real estate. From the Scottish Provident institute, $500,000 on the Tacoma property, Madison and La Salle, payable in 1925 at 4½ per cent; $200,000 on the Walker property, southwest corner Wabash avenue and Van Buren street, payable Dec. 31, 1919, with interest at 5 per cent; $150,000 on the Caxton building, 500 to 508 South Dearborn street, 4 per cent, payable June 15, 1919; from the Edinburgh Life Insurance company, $37,500, at 5 per cent, payable May 1, 1919, upon an undivided one-quarter interest in the Stewart fee, State and Washington streets. Mr. Hill purchased $93,000 in loans secured upon farms in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Minnesota at 5 per cent.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a serial bond issue of $275,000, two to ten years, at 6 per cent, to Tom Chamales, in connection with the construction of the Broadway building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Lawrence avenue. The building will be three stories high and will occupy a lot 150x150 feet. It will be a theater, store, and office building, and in addition will contain thirty-six one room bachelor apartments.

The theater will have a seating capacity of 2,000, and in addition there will be eight stores on the ground floor. On the second and third floors there will be office suites and apartments. The basement will be finished for commercial purposes. The theater has been leased to Jones, Linick & Shaefer at a reported net annual rent of $25,000.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $180,000, seven years, at 6 per cent, to Allen McLennan, secured by the Beaconsfield apartments at 206-22 Delaware place.

R. A. Boulton with William H. Suehler & Co. has leased for the Great Northern Hotel company to Jacob Goldberg of the Raymond Jewelry company the store at 233 South Dearborn street, to be occupied as a jewelry store, for a term rent of $2,750.

OUTSIDE STORE PROPERTY SETS YEAR'S RECORD

McCormick Estates Acquire Fee at Prairie Avenue and Twentieth for $108,000.

Transactions in outside business property during the week were of a record breaking character, the number of important transactions being greater than for any week of the year.

One deal of special interest because of the acquirement by the McCormick estates of an outside fee was the sale by the Chicago Title and Trust company to the McCormick estates, represented by John A. Chapman and Judson F. Stone, of the fee at the northwest corner of Prairie avenue and Twentieth street, 192.75x177.5 feet, for $108,000.

The property, which is improved with a one story and basement fireproof building which cost about $110,000, is under lease to the Hump Hairpin company for ninety-nine years from Aug. 1, 1915, at an annual rent of $5,400. The McCormick estate also has paid about $55,000 toward the cost of the building, which is to be repaid with interest by the lessee. Albert J. Allen & Co. negotiated the deal.

Charles Koekek sold to Harry R. Wolf the property at the northeast corner of Crawford avenue and Lexington street, 125x125 feet, for a reported consideration of $110,000, taking back a part purchase money mortgage for $62,000, ten years at 5 per cent.

The corner is improved with a three story brick building containing four stores, a 750 seat theater known as the Lexington, eight offices, and six flats, the rest of the lot being occupied by three two flat buildings. The property is said to have a gross annual rent of $12,500.

Gives Corner in Trade.

In part payment the buyer conveyed the northwest corner of Ogden and Turner avenues, 45x136 feet, improved with a building containing two stores and thirteen flats, valued at $85,000, subject to $13,000.

Fred Becklenberg sold to Maurice Alschuler and Philip Steinberg the three story store and flat building, containing four stores and eight flats and a theater, on 100x125 feet of ground, at the northeast corner of Washtenaw avenue and Division street, for a reported consideration of $120,000, subject to $55,000.

The purchaser conveyed in part payment the new store and flat building of three stores and thirteen flats on 54x125 feet of land at the southwest corner of Cicero avenue and Superior street; also two vacant parcels. Hyman Polakow was the broker.

Homan Avenue Corner Sold.

An interesting deal in West Twelfth street business property was the sale by Bismarck Feilchenfeld to M. M. Rothschild of the property at the northwest corner of Homan avenue. The lot fronts fifty feet, with a depth of 125 feet, and is improved with a new three story and basement building containing three stores and twelve apartments.

In this connection Mr. Rothschild has sold to Max M. Cohn the vacant property at the northwest corner of Twelfth street and Springfield avenue, 48x112½ feet, for a reported consideration of $15,000. It is stated that Mr. Cohn will improve the property with a three story store and flat building to cost about $37,500. Mr. Friedman was the broker.

Sells Chain of Stores.

Marshall Smith sold to John H. Eberhart a chain of six stores at the southeast corner of Fifty-seventh street and Kenwood avenue, on a lot 64x100 feet, together with the three flat building adjoining on the south. The consideration is withheld, but it is said to have been about $47,500. The property is said to have a gross annual income of about $5,500.

Mr. Smith took in part payment the business property at 9012-16 Commercial avenue, lot 50x126 feet, at a reported valuation of $20,000, and the vacant property at the northeast corner of Ninety-first street and Escanaba avenue at a valuation of $7,000, said to be a record price for property in Commercial avenue in that district. F. J. Rodgers of McKey & Poague was the broker.

Lower prices prevailed for wheat throughout the entire session yesterday, and closing quotations were not far from low points of the day, and showed net declines of 2¼-⅜c for December and ⅜@1¼c for other months. Week end liquidation and the desire of many longs to reduce risks until after the election is over put the market under much pressure, while the buying, though good at times, was substantially lighter than it has been of late. It is believed that most of the wheat taken yesterday went into strong hands, but bulls miss the general outside demand.

Early selling was largely due to the closing decline of 7c at Buenos Aires Friday, this break said to have been caused by foreign pressure. Wheat at Buenos Aires opened 6⅜c higher today, while Rosario was up 4½c, and this news caused a price bulge here to the best points of the day. Liverpool spot wheat was unchanged and the cargo market there was also stationary.

Export Demand Is Lighter.

Export demand for wheat at the seaboard was reported as small, and the big sales claimed Friday were not all confirmed. Omaha reported export bids there yesterday for 200,000 bu wheat at ⅜c better basis than Friday and made sales of 115,000 bu. Local shipping sales were only 15,000 bu. Cash wheat was relatively steady for most grades. Wheat shipments from India for the week were 888,000 bu and total world's shipments for the period again will fall materially below weekly foreign requirements.

Primary receipts were 1,709,000 bu yesterday, against 2,232,000 bu a year ago. Northwest cars for the week totaled 3,806, against 10,620 a year ago, while Winnipeg had 5,928 cars, against 12,587 a year ago.

Corn Values Are Weaker.

Corn also displayed a weaker tone and finished with losses of ⅜@⅞c. December continued to be relatively firmer than other months and held in strong hands. Leading concerns were selling May corn freely, while there was buying, principally of December, by cash and export houses. A good export demand for corn was reported here for early and December shipment, and eastern points also claimed a big demand. It is believed that a large export business in corn was put through. Liverpool spot corn was 1¼@3d higher on reports that the British government was considering the mixing of corn with wheat for making flour.

Argentine crop advices were unfavorable and advances of 3¼c were made at Rosario and 3⅝@4¼c at Buenos Aires. Cash corn here was 1@5c lower, with receipts 118 cars, including 97 cars of new corn. Local shipping sales were 30,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 646,000 bu, against 612,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Prices Show Decline.

Much selling of oats was encouraged by the weakness in other grains, and prices closed ⅛@⅜c lower. A leading elevator concern was prominent on the selling side, while there was active buying of oats by export houses. The long interest in oats is believed to be larger than in other grains, while the statistical situation is against the bulls. Local receipts of oats this week were 3,816,000 bu, while only 2,665,000 bu were shipped out, promising another good increase in the local stocks. Cash oats were unchanged, with shipping sales 70,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 1,029,000 bu, against 1,552,000 bu a year ago. Clearances from the seaboard were 450,000 bu.

Provisions were irregular with pork closing a little lower and other product showing gains. Lard was relatively strongest and also proved most active. The latter was supported by the leading holders of lard and the weak hog situation was ignored. Prices at the yards were off sharply and 245,000 hogs are expected here next week. General trade was small. Hog receipts at western markets for the week totaled 692,700 head, against 471,000 a year ago. Liverpool spot product was unchanged. Local meat shipments for the week were 17,744,000 lbs, compared with 21,553,000 lbs a year ago, and lard shipments were 5,509,000 lbs, against 12,566,000 lbs last year.

Rye Market Firm.

Rye was firm with $1.44 being bid for choice No. 2. Receipts were 15 cars.

Barley ruled unchanged. Malting was quoted $1@1.23 and sold 98c@$1.22; feed and mixing quotable, 80c@$1.00 and sold $1.00; screenings were quoted, 50@85c, and [illegible] 65@70c. Receipts, 88 cars.

Timothyseed was quiet. Year, $5.25 bid, $5.00 asked; March, $6.75 bid and $6.00 asked; cash lots sold $4.10@5.00. Cloverseed held steady with cash lots quoted $12.00@17.00.

Duluth flax closed 1c lower. Cash on track, $2.67½; December, $2.65, and May, $2.68; receipts, 120 cars. Minneapolis was ½c lower with cash on track $2.61½@2.66¾. Receipts were 67 cars. Winnipeg closed 1¼@1¾c lower. December, $2.45¼, and May, $2.50. Receipts, 24 cars.

POLITICAL FACTORS EYED.

New York, Nov. 4.—Speculative interests were again inclined to pay heed to political factors today, the short period of trading being accompanied by more or less irregularity. Important stocks, including United States Steel, were dull or under moderate pressure, with metals, motors, Crucible Steel, Pressed Steel Car, Atlantic Gulf, and West Indies, Pullman and paper issues.

Offsetting features were found in Sloss-Sheffield Steel, which rose 3 points, Columbia Gas up 3⅝ to the new record of 45½, National Enameling common and preferred, Continental Can, Baldwin Locomotive, Mexican Petroleum, and Montana Power.

Rails were comparatively inactive, the only noteworthy features being Norfolk and Western at an advance of 1¾; Peoria and Eastern, which rose 2 points, and Seaboard Air Line preferred; Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic common and preferred, and Toledo, St. Louis and Western at gains of 1 to 2 points.

Coppers Advance Again.

Market news of more than ordinary significance included the announcement of another rise in the price of refined copper, the advance applying to deliveries running into the first quarter of the coming year, and indications of still higher quotations for fabricated steel and iron, industrial centers reporting pig iron at a premium.

Foreign gold received during the week accounted in large measures for the actual cash gain of over $22,000,000 shown by local banks and the further substantial expansion of excess reserves to almost $125,000,000, against little more than half that amount the middle of September. There was a lessening of offerings of international bonds, but those issues were mostly irregular. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—COFFEE—The market for futures opened at an advance of 10@14 points and sold about 16@20 points net higher during the early trading. There was buying by houses with European connections, but the bulk of the demand seemed to be in the way of covering shorts for over election day, and it appeared to be pretty well supplied around 8.65c for March and 8.75c for May. Slight reactions followed under realizing, with March selling off to 8.60c and May to 8.70c, but the close was steady and from 10 to 12 points net higher. Sales 46,750 bags; November, 8.42c; December, 8.47c; January, 8.51c; February, 8.55c; March, 8.59c; April, 8.64c; May, 8.69c; June, 8.74c; July, 8.79c; August, 8.83c; September 8.87c; October, 8.91c. Spot coffee steady; Rio 7s, 9⅝c; Santos 4s, 10⅜c. No fresh offers were reported in the cost and freight market. The official cables reported no change in Brazilian markets except Santos futures, which were unchanged to 25 reis higher. Santos cleared 19,000 and Victoria 12,000 bags for New York. Brazilian port receipts, 72,000 bags; Jundiahy, 43,000. The world's visible supply showed an increase of 840,642 bags for October, against 601,215 last year, making the visible on Nov. 1 10,619,237, against 10,463,295 last year.

METALS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The copper market has shown continued firmness and it is reported that one of the larger agencies has sold all its production available for the first quarter. Quotations for the first quarter secured from other sources today ranged from 28½c to 29c, while dealers were asking from 27½c up to 28½c for deliveries of electrolytic during the second quarter. Iron was unchanged.

Most People Dependent in Old Age.

It is as certain as anything in human affairs can be that of all the people now living between the ages of 21 and 65, at least six out of every ten will reach the age of 65, and that unless they make better provision for themselves than the average person has done, thus far at least, five out of the six will be dependent on charity of some sort. In other words, one-half of the people now more than 21 years old will be dependent either on public charity or on relatives who probably will find them a burden.

It is obvious that this condition ought to be changed, and that the way to change it is for each persons to provide for himself. As has been stated before, the best possible provision is an annuity beginning at the age of 60 or 65. A very small income means all the difference between dependence and independence.

Annuities can be purchased now but they are calculated on a 3½ or 4 per cent interest basis and therefore the yield seems, and is, small. The returns on such an investment could be much improved in Illinois at least if the state would inaugurate a system of "pensions" something like that of Massachusetts. If the funds received were placed in the best Illinois mortgages, an average income of probably 5½ per cent could be obtained from the investments and this would make possible a higher annuity rate than is paid in Massachusetts or probably anywhere else at the present time.

Columbian Insurance.

M. F.—The Columbian Insurance Company of Indiana began business early in 1912 with $60,820 capital, and $5,976 surplus. Its underwriting operations have been unprofitable thus far because only a moderate business has been done and overhead expense has of course been relatively high. More stock has been sold at from two to two and one-half its par value and on Dec. 31 last paid in capital was $256,709 and surplus $37,809. Losses have been small.

St. Louis and San Francisco.

J. H. C., Winnipeg, Can.—The St. Louis and San Francisco company bought control of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois in 1902, paying a high price for the stock. Payment was made however, in stock trust certificates instead of cash. Later the Eastern Illinois failed to earn dividends, the Frisco could not pay dividends on the certificates it had issued, and both roads went into the hands of receivers. The Frisco is to be reorganized shortly. The plan provides that holders of these certificates shall get back the Eastern Illinois stock for which such certificates originally were issued, also, some shares in the reorganized St. Louis and San Francisco company. A preferred trust certificate will receive under this award its old Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred stock, 18 per cent of new St. Louis and San Francisco preferred and 2½ per cent of new common.

California Improvement Bonds.

E. P. L.—There is no known difference between "standardized" and ordinary California street improvement bonds. These bonds are issued under a law that secures each bond on a certain lot or lots. The result is that some of the bonds are much better than others and people familiar with the district take the best bonds. Then the rest are sold to investors in general. Notwithstanding their peculiarity these bonds have a fairly good record.

Lackawanna Steel.

W. N.—The $34,750,000 stock of the Lackawanna Steel company was placed on a 6 per cent dividend basis in September. Its earnings in the nine months ended Sept. 30, were at the rate of over 32 per cent a year. Previous to the September dividend, the only disbursement ever made was 1 per cent in 1913, except for dividends on sixty shares of preferred stock that were outstanding for a time.

Brief Answers.

F. K., Mattoon, Ill.—The Sanitol company has outstanding $1,302,440 of stock. It paid dividends for ten years ending in 1908, and has reported no distribution since then. It publishes no reports of earnings. Its balance sheet of Dec. 31 last, showed less than $3,000 of debts. Tangible assets were $392,127, trade marks, etc., being carried at $1,000,000.

J. L. O.—The Spanish River Pulp and Paper company was formed in 1911 in Ontario. It has outstanding $8,000,000 of common stock and $5,699,100 preferred. Dividends on preferred were paid till June 30, 1913. In the next year earnings equaled 2.1 per cent on preferred and in the year ended June 30, 1915, between 1½ and 2 per cent. No later report is available.

W. J. G., Rock Island, Ill.—Dividends on United States Steel are usually declared on the last Tuesday of October, January, April, and July and paid on common stock the day before the last day of December, March, June, and September.

MARSHALL FIELD CO. REVIEW.

Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, says:

"Wholesale shipments of dry goods for the current week have been well ahead of the last few weeks and exceed the volume of a year ago by a considerable margin. Road sales for both immediate and future delivery show splendid gains over the same week 1915. Customers have been in to market in much larger numbers. Collections continue greatly in excess of last year. The market on domestic cotton goods is firm and advancing."

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

A thoroughly responsible company, wishing to concentrate, will sell one department which manufactures and sells two articles very generally used in homes. Will sell this department for cash, or for stock in another company if that company be financed and with the proper selling ability to market the product. Have been on the market six years, selling direct by mail or personal calls or through established merchants who handle carpets, furniture, hardware and electrical supplies. The line has been advertised and has a valuable good will. The department is making money and there is a broad field for expansion. The buyer may take the selling only or the manufacturing too. Full details on request. References exchanged.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Bar silver, 32⅝d per ounce. Money, 5 per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 5½@5⅝ per cent. Three months, 5½@5⅝ per cent. The stock market was generally firm, with investment stocks the feature. The war loan and the French loan were the brightest spots, and rubber stocks advanced with the commodity. Mining and copper shares and Canadian industrials were quietly strong. Trading otherwise was narrow and featureless. American securities were simply adjusted to parity.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Rentes, 61f 10c. Exchange on London, 27f 81½c. Five per cent loan, 87f 65c.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 4.—The statement of the Imperial bank of Germany, issued Oct. 31, shows the following changes: Total coin and bullion increased 2,289,000 marks; gold increased 2,674,000 marks; treasury notes decreased 131,526,000 marks; notes of other banks decreased 10,221,000 marks; bills discounted increased 261,726,000 marks; Advances increased 2,397,000 marks; investments decreased 3,752,000 marks; other securities decreased 723,000 marks; notes in circulation increased 226,412,000 marks; deposits decreased 127,788,000 marks; other liabilities increased 21,566,000 marks; total gold holdings, 2,506,075,000 marks.

NEW YORK BANKS' EXCESS RESERVE CLIMBS IN WEEK

Statement Showing Large Gain Brings Item to Figures Double July Record.

The New York bank statement showed an increase of over $13,000,000 in the excess reserve, bringing that item up to $124,107,040. This is about double the low record reached last July. The gain was caused by an increase in cash of approximately $22,000,000. There was an increase of $48,633,000 in deposits. The loan expansion was moderate at $26,436,000. The figures:

Chicago Securities.

On the Chicago stock exchange the principal activity was in Chicago City and Connecting Railways. Both the common and preferred were active. The common touched a new high level at 6. The preferred was dealt in to the extent of over 3,400 shares. From an opening at 38¼ the stock closed at 37¾. The price movement is based upon earnings, the prospect of a consolidation, and the further fact that the shares are to be listed on the New York stock exchange.

Series 2 certificates of the Chicago Railways company advanced to 24 against an opening price at 22¼. The upward movement was presumably in sympathy with the strength in Chicago City and Connecting Railways shares.

Swift & Co. stock advanced 1⅛ points to 157. United Paperboard was in good demand at 36. Stewart-Warner was quoted at 109¾ up to 110.

New Shaw Stock Issued.

F. B. Hitchcock & Co. are offering $900,000 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock being issued by the Walden W. Shaw corporation, preferred as to dividends and assets. The stock is redeemable during the year 1917 at $101 per share and accrued dividend, during 1918 at $102 per share and accrued dividend, and at a price increasing $1 a share each year thereafter until 1926. If not all retired then at $115 per share and accrued dividends.

In discussing the affairs of the company President Shaw says:

"The company has been engaged in the automobile livery business for the last nine years as owner of the Walden W. Shaw Livery company and the Yellow Cab company. The net tangible assets of the corporation owning both the companies are $1,052,134, or over $116 per share of preferred stock. The management and control of the business remains in the men who have been responsible for its development and success."

Local Curb Market.

American Fork and Hoe common was in good demand at 113½ bid, offered at 115½; the preferred was quoted 123@128. A little inquiry exists for American Hominy common around 42. Butler Bros. has been comparatively quiet at 283@286. Consumers common was neglected, being offered at 27, with buyers at 26, while the preferred was quoted 79½@80½. NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

Directors of the United Alloy Steel corporation and of the Transue & Williams Steel Forging corporation are expected at their meeting next month to take up the question of inaugurating dividends. The corporation has a capitalization of 500,000 shares, no par value. Earnings are estimated at the rate of $7 a share.

There are positive predictions of an increase in the dividend distribution on Ray Consolidated copper, due to expansion in earnings. The present dividend rate is $2 a share, while current earnings are estimated to be in excess of $9 a share. The next meeting of the directors for dividend action is scheduled to be held about Dec. 1.

The movement on the part of a so-called outside syndicate to secure control of the Merchants National bank of New York is said to have gained much headway, and it is expected that the new management will be in control following the annual meeting next January.

In official quarters it is estimated that the combined earnings of the American Zinc company and the recently acquired Granby company will show about $9,500,000 earned on the common stock for the year ended Dec. 31.

According to London cables Dr. Addison, one of the chief officials of the ministry of munitions, has said he calculated Gerat Britain would be entirely independent of foreign steel supplies by next March.

Good buying of Anaconda copper is reported from private banking circles, where there is expectation that the stock will cross 100 within a few weeks. Anaconda is estimated to be earning at the rate of $25 a share.

Sales of March copper have been made at 28½ cents flat. One interest having 1,000,000 pounds has declined an offer of 29½ cents and is holding out for 30 cents a pound.

According to the mercantile agencies neither the pending election nor the persistent rise in prices has reduced the momentum of the current business movement.

Directors of the West Side Trust and Savings bank of Chicago have elected Edward Morris Jr. and Thornhill Broome directors to succeed Nelson Swift Morris and John A. Spoor.

It is announced that the offering of $4,500,000 United Dyewood corporation 7 per cent cumulative preferred stocks is part of an authorized issue of $5,000,000.

There are indications that standard railroad stocks are being picked up during recessions by capitalists for personal speculative investment account.

The resources of the national banks of the country were on Sept. 14, $14,411,000,000, according to announcement made by the controller of the currency.

New securities issues for 1916 are expected in banking offices to exceed a total of $2,000,000,000.

SEQUOYAH OIL AND REFINING
Advances From $1.25 to $1.75

Last week we predicted that there would be an interesting advance in the price of this stock and advised our clients to buy at the low price then quoted. The stock has advanced from $1.25 to $1.75, showing a 50-cent increase on every share. We anticipate still bigger advances in the near future owing to greatly increased earnings.

7 New Producing Wells, Adding Large Earnings, Cause of Big Advance

The company is pushing its development fast. Seven new producing wells were brought in the last few weeks, which should add at least $150,000 to the earning capacity of the company. It has bought material for 30 miles of additional pipe lines, which will be laid at once and add still more to these earnings. Fifteen miles of this now completed. The week on the Curb has been marked by active trading in Sequoyah Oil and Refining. Over 41,000 shares were traded in, and the report that large interests are buying this stock on the prospect of a reported large increase in dividends adds to the interest in this investment and has helped develop the activity in this stock.

Sequoyah Oil and Refining on Substantial Basis—Now Earning Well Over 27%

This company has solid, substantial merit. It has paid 12% dividends consistently and has earned more than twice as much, the balance of earnings going into surplus and developments. The company now owns and controls—
Fifty-two Producing Wells
Six Thousand Acres of Oil Lands
Thirty-one Miles of Pipe Lines
Seven Power Pumping Plants
Perpetual Gas Franchise for the City of Collinsville, Okla.
No experiments here, but a producing, large dividend earning, carefully managed and financed company, backed and handled by strong men, oil experts and bankers, who are making every effort to develop and add to the solidity of the company.

TIME TO BUY IS NOW

We believe that at the present market price quoted on the New York Curb—about $1.75 a share—Sequoyah Oil and Refining is a good profit-maker and will pay large returns. We have information that leads us to believe that a very substantially increased dividend will be announced shortly. We believe that when this dividend is announced the stock should go to $2.50 or higher. This is nearly double what our clients paid for their stock who bought before the present advance, and will give those who buy now a 75-cent profit on every share as soon as the stock goes to this price.

Send at Once for President's Letter and Other Important Reports

We shall be glad to mail you this valuable information so that you may get complete knowledge of this investment. Then buy quickly, so as to get the benefit of the advances which will immediately follow the announcement of the reported increased dividend. Early buying will entitle you to receive the November dividend of 1% on your stock, for which the books close November 10th.

Just Before You Vote

You are not a rock-ribbed partisan. You are going to vote according to your conscience. And your conscience demands Reasons. Now let us have a square talk about those reasons. Let us see why, this year, so many Voters, like yourself, will finally decide at the last moment that a vote for Mr. Hughes is the only safe vote.

A Very Big Issue

Now, all that Mr. Hughes has said about National honor, protection of our citizens, the need of preparedness to prevent war, a sincere, fair policy—these ideals are mightily important to our country, and he is the right man to carry them out.

But bread-and-butter—that is, common, ordinary prosperity for the common people—is another very big issue in this election. For 365 days in the year there is one all-important question for all of us who are not rich—that is, How to Make Both Ends Meet.

Your Dollars Are Worth Less

If you are a working man, you may be getting better wages than you did. If you are a salaried man in business, perhaps your salary has been raised—perhaps not. If you are a teacher, a minister, an ordinary brain-worker, you probably have no more money. If you are a merchant or have a small business, you are probably making more money.

But, workingman or merchant, if you are getting more money, does it buy as much as it did four years ago? Absolutely, NO.

For Prices have gone up faster than incomes, and those rising prices have been for the necessities of life. They range from one-third to two-thirds higher today than when Mr. Wilson and his Congress were elected four years ago.

But your Income has not run up at that rate, has it? No matter how much more money you are now earning in this period of fictitious prosperity, due entirely to the European War, your money doesn't buy as much as it did four years ago. That is the real test of "prosperity."

Wilson Promised Low Prices

Now, what have Mr. Wilson and his Congress had to do with that?

When we elected Mr. Wilson and his Congress, they said they would "revise the tariff," and that "would reduce the cost of living." They put through the Underwood Tariff bill and declared this new Tariff would do two things:—

1. "It will reduce the cost of living."
2. "It will not disturb business."

How about these bright, joyous promises?

As to the Cost of Living—You all know that living is from One-Third to Two-Thirds higher than it was then.

As to Disturbing Business—Have you forgotten that dark, pitiful year just before the war? Thousands of factories closed down, or ran at part time, and over 40,000 business concerns couldn't pay their bills and went into bankruptcy. Over a MILLION working men were out of a job. Every city had every night that heart-break of poverty—a BREAD LINE. Charity had its hands full. Mayors called citizens' meetings to appoint relief committees. Governors called special sessions of their legislatures to see what could be done to make jobs for workless men.

How Wilson Explained the Hard Times

And President Wilson? He wrote and said, "These hard times are only psychological."

But psychology didn't feed the daily bread-line. The bad times didn't begin to mend till the War began, and Europe had to buy our guns and powder and wheat and horses. That frenzied War-demand set everybody working, sent up the workmen's wages, helped the merchants sell their goods,—and raised the prices we had to pay faster than the money came in.

This simply means that Mr. Wilson and his Congress figured that Free Trade was a fine theory that would work. They tried it. It knocked the very bottom out of business and the dinner-pail. Then the war came along. It set business going, but it sent Prices going faster.

After the War Is Over

The War will end, suddenly. Then, no more demand for our guns, powder, wheat, horses, and a hundred other things Europe has to buy of us now. Then, unless we adopt a different policy, we will again be just where we were in 1913-1914. Only worse. For business will have to readjust itself again to that Underwood Tariff. Men will lose their jobs by the million. And it will take a long time for Prices to get down.

Unless something very wise is done by our government, the end of the War will see more Unemployment and Business Ruin than we had in 1913-1914.

Now, the big question is—Who can be trusted to do that Wise Thing?

"No Danger," Says Wilson

Can Mr. Wilson and a Democratic Congress be trusted to do the sure, right thing?

Here is what Mr. Wilson just said in his Cincinnati speech on October 26:—

> "It is predicted that after this War, Europe will in some way overwhelm the United States by her economic power. I wonder that any thinking man can entertain an opinion of that sort. The whole dexterity and thought of Europe has been concentrated on destruction. The whole nervous and physical energy of Europe will require a generation to recover its tone."

He followed what his Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, had said on October 18:—

> "Our virile, rich, unmaimed and highly developed people need fear nothing from the competition of stricken and broken Europe."

The same old bland, blind Trust-to-Luck as four years ago.

"I Don't Know," Says Wilson

But now listen to what an expert says. Not a Republican but a Democratic Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, one of Mr. Wilson's own appointees. On October 27, the day after Mr. Wilson, in Chicago, said, "No danger," this Expert said in New York.

> "When we think of Europe as a continent engulfed in war, devastated and disordered, I want to say to you that we are not correct in that conception. Under the stress of the struggle every effort is being made, in the warring nations, to obtain the highest efficiency in the production, distribution and use of commodities of all kinds. * * * The War has compelled Great Britain to make 30 years of industrial progress in 30 months. The Germany that emerges from the War will be years ahead of the Germany we knew in 1914. * * * Within five years we shall find a new Europe competing against us with war-sharpened brains, not only in our foreign markets, but right here at home."

What did Mr. Wilson say after reading that rousing alarm? On October 28, at Shadow Lawn, he said to a Tammany delegation: "I don't know what will happen after the War."

Hughes Does Know

On the other hand, consider Mr. Hughes and the Republican policy.

As to the terrible economic danger ahead after the War, Mr. Hughes clearly pointed it out in his very first speech last July.

He showed how the warring nations were building up a new system of co-operation between labor and capital which beats any efficiency the world has ever known.

He described how each of these nations was eliminating industrial waste, and was organizing a mutuality of interests which was bound to make them more formidable in peace than in war.

He made it clear that the stress of the struggle was awakening the most sluggish men, and was training them to do better work than they had ever dreamed of.

And he not only sensed the situation, but in speech after speech he indicated just how he would meet it.

Contrast The Two Men

Now you are able to see the fundamental differences between the two men. You can see how the election of Mr. Wilson will leave the country to flounder in the coming crisis, while the election of Mr. Hughes will lead business and labor in a straight road. This is an election for thinking men, not for sentiment to decide.

Wilson, at every point, has shown an inability to sense a situation till it reaches a critical stage, when only hasty and inadequate measures are possible.

But Hughes, because of his practical mind and large training in affairs, sees the need and the remedy while it is afar off. He says:

> "We cannot afford to be running along without any regard to business standards. We need a fair understanding of costs, a testing out of methods, an interchange of information, an endeavor to ascertain where waste can be avoided, in order to promote business."

That is the deep problem which Europe, while still at war, is trying to master, and which America must learn if we are to meet the new competition.

Hughes, awake to this, wants to give to America, ORGANIZATION—not interference, but a friendly spur and aid to co-operation.

Contrast The Two Policies

Another remedy which Hughes says is vital is a scientific PROTECTIVE tariff.

Wilson as a professional free-trader, and standing on the Democratic platform, holds that the Government has no right to make a tariff except for revenue.

Hughes, backed by the Republican Party, believes that a scientific PROTECTIVE tariff is the only basis for American prosperity, fair wages and fair prices.

All thinking men agree that America must use the Tariff as a means of defense against the invasion of cheaply-made European goods. The question that YOU must decide is—To which man shall that Tariff be committed?

Shall we have a Democratic tariff that only pretends to help the wage-earner, the salaried man and the man of business—or a Republican tariff that does really protect him?

Be Mighty Sure Before You Vote

You are picking out a man who for four difficult years must safeguard your honor and protect you and yours from danger and from want. The vote you put in the ballot box cannot be changed or withdrawn.

Face squarely the facts and the reasons printed here. Then, when you have gone to the very bottom of things—you will

A BATTLE IN THE SKIES—This photograph was made from the bridge of a Zeppelin, looking toward the stern. The triangular body at the top of the picture is the keel of the gas envelope, and the box like arrangements are the rudders. Three aeroplanes, attacking the Zeppelin, are shown, one immediately below the gas bag, and the other two below the Zeppelin. The two white puffs and black spots are exploding bombs dropped from other aeroplanes above the Zeppelin. The dirigible, which was raiding England at the time, eluded its pursuers and reached Germany safely.

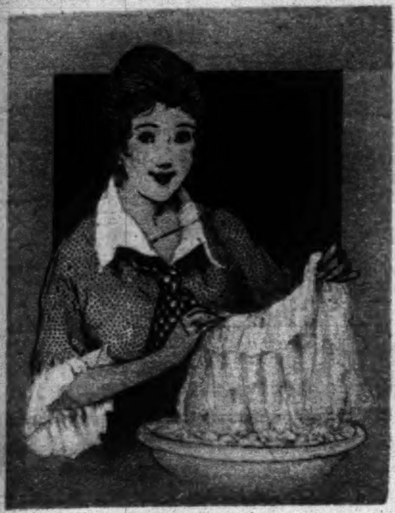
THIS WONDERFUL NEW PRODUCT



Lux is the modern form of soap for all fine laundering—the thin, transparent flakes of pure soap make such a thick soapy lather that, without rubbing, Lux easily dissolves the dirt!

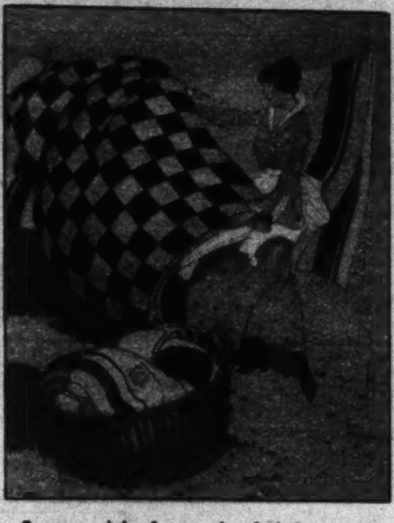
Won't shrink woolens!

Won't turn silks yellow!

Won't injure even chiffons!

Pure soap in flakes—nothing else like it has ever been made. Not a soap powder, not a chipped soap, not a cake of soap, but fine, transparent flakes of pure soap, ready for use.

These flakes melt the moment they are thrown into hot water. They dissolve so completely that not the slightest trace of soap is left in the garment to yellow it.



Lux positively won't shrink woolens or flannels. It leaves them beautifully soft and fluffy, just as they were when new. Try Lux and see for yourself how beautifully you can have your woolens look.

The hardest test of a soap

The hardest test of any soap product is in washing woolens and flannels, and in the choice of your soap product lies the secret of complete success in their laundering.

The formula for Lux produces a soap product which will not shrink woolens, and which leaves them soft and fluffy, just as they were when new. You may find it difficult to believe that Lux really will not shrink woolens or flannels, but order one package and try it. Think what it means to you to have at last found something which will wash any woolen!

How you can keep your silk blouse as white as when new

It is the combined action of alkali and hot water on silk which makes it acquire a yellow color which cannot be washed out.

With Lux and lukewarm water, you can wash silk fabrics dozens of times and they will not turn yellow. Lux contains no free alkali, and lathers wonderfully, even in lukewarm water! Lux won't harm anything that pure water alone will not injure.

For fine laundering, soap should never be rubbed directly on the article

For fine laundering, never rub soap directly on a fine article. This coarsens and tends to discolor the fabric. Lux cleanses wonderfully without rubbing. The thin, transparent flakes dissolve instantly and contain more real cleansing value than you would believe possible.

Now on sale at all grocery and department stores. Order a package and test it! That is the way to settle for all time the product you will use for all your fine laundering.
